We offer to the Country, the Lott Carey Baptist Foreign Mission Society of U. S. A., as a reliable medium through which money may be conveyed to maintain Missionaries on the Foreign Field. We give official receipts for all monies and publish the name of the giver in our Official Organ, The Lott Carey Herald.

Annual Report

Of the Executive Secretary

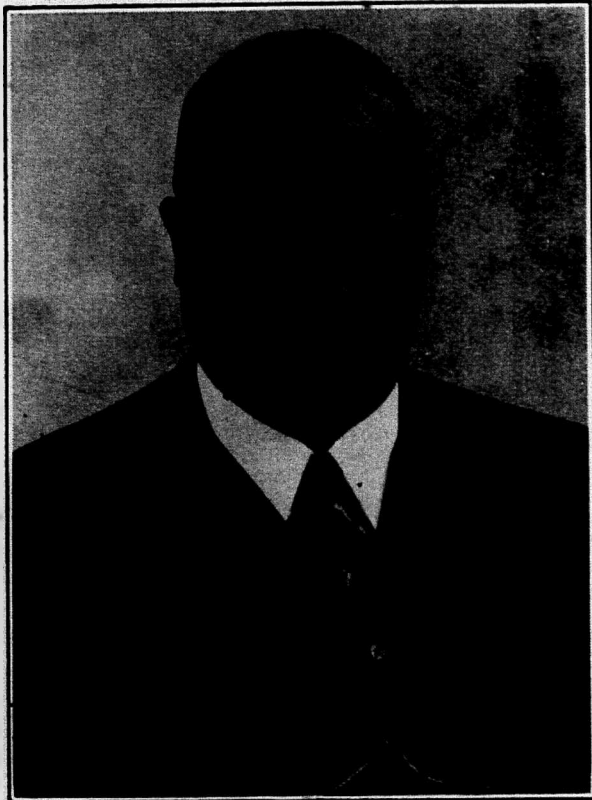

We have special reason to give thanks unto God in this Session of our Convention, since it marks our 40th Anniversary as an Organization. We are, therefore, climaxing an effort of 40 years as an organic entity in Foreign Mission endeavor, and throughout this unbroken period we have not swerved from the original idea set extant by the noble men and women who initiated its policies and committed to our keeping the paramount objective in the all-absorbing idea set forth in the caption, "The Work For Christ."

Thirty-nine years of this period we were led by one intrepid Christian statesman, whose matchless personality and untiring efforts by pen, speech and otherwise gave great notoriety to our principles as an Organization and won multitudes into its fold—I refer to Dr. C. S. Brown of Winton, N. C., who passed to his eternal rest in September, 1936.

Dr. William Alexander of Baltimore, Md., served the Society for 22 years as Corresponding Secretary, whose fiery eloquence crystalized favorable sentiment in the Organization and spread of our principles of cooperation throughout the country, and passed to his reward. Then came on the scene Dr. A. A. Graham of Phoebus, Va., the versatile and alert traveller and writer, who served the Society for 9 years as Corresponding Secretary and gave great popularity to the Organization in this and other countries. On account of health his activities closed August, 1928. It was at this point that the present incumbent was elected to carry on the duties of the office of Corresponding Secretary, which he has endeavored to do for a period of 9 years.

Another noted character to whom some reference should be made in this connection is Dr. A. W. Pegues, who efficiently served the institution as Recording Secretary to the date of his death, 1929, and was succeeded by Dr. J. H. Moore of Charlotte, N. C., the present incumbent.

Dr. J. M. Armstead of Portsmouth, Va., served as Treasurer of the Organization for a number of years, and was succeeded by the astute and painstaking Dr. J. H. Hughes, September, 1911. Dr. Hughes was a unique character and possessed every element needful in the service he so conscientiously rendered the Society. He passed to his reward September, 1936, after having served the Society for 25 years.

First Baptist Church, Roanoke, Va., and Acting
President, Lott Carey Baptist Foreign Mission Convention.

Dr. W. H. Stokes of Richmond, Va., filled the position as Editor of the Lott Carey Herald for many years. He was prolific and masterful in his writings. He travelled and spoke from many platforms, setting forth the principles of the Society. He was untiring in his efforts and knew no defeat to the end of an eventful career which came in 1936; then the intrepid and resourceful Dr. J. L. S. Holloman, who had served as an assistant to Dr. Stokes, took up this important post as Editor, and has carried on with increasing success, beyond the most sanguine expectation of the Brotherhood.

Our veteran Statistician, Dr. G. E. Read of Richmond, Va., has served the Organization through a long period of years, with credit to himself and satisfaction to all who are interested in the growth and development of the Institution. You have but to turn to the various surveys and statistical reports to ascertain this fact.

~~Dr. W. T. Johnson of Richmond, Va., the only known survivor of those who were in the organization, has served as Chairman of our Executive Board for practically the entire history of the Organization.~~ Dr. Johnson is an exceptional man, and has travelled in the interest of the Organization extensively at home and abroad and enjoys the confidence and respect of all who come in contact with him.

The Society was organized for the purpose of affording an unbiased channel through which American Baptists might give the Gospel to our brothers in Africa and the world in general. It was formed in the most heated period in our denominational life over questions which then perplexed our Fathers, as to ways and means of doing things denominationally on the Home Field and how the Baptist could give the Gospel to the heathen.

It was agreed that the object of the Society should be to foster the Kingdom of Christ in all the world, and to do this, in cooperation with all organizations in fellowship with it, either in the United States of America or in countries where it operated Mission Stations. This policy of the institution has been religiously adhered to and still stands in spirit and letter to be its course of procedure.

Great emphasis has been placed upon "The Great Commission," with the hope of stimulating the Foreign Mission spirit among the Churches of the land. To this, notable responses have come from colored and white Baptists in the support of our principles. When it was decided that such an organization should be set extant in the Country, exclusively interested in Foreign Missions, no name appealed to the brotherhood, in its entirety, as did the name of Lott Carey—a man who is outstanding in the history of Negro Baptists of the world.

He was born in Charles City County, Va., and was brought by his Master to Richmond, Va., early in life where he was employed in a Tobacco Factory. The exact date of his birth is not known but there stands today in Charles City County his childhood home. He became a Christian by the preaching of the Gospel of a white Baptist Minister. There was created in him, at once, a burning zeal which showed itself in the desire to preach the Gospel and he soon offered himself to go to Liberia, as a pioneer in the field of Missions.

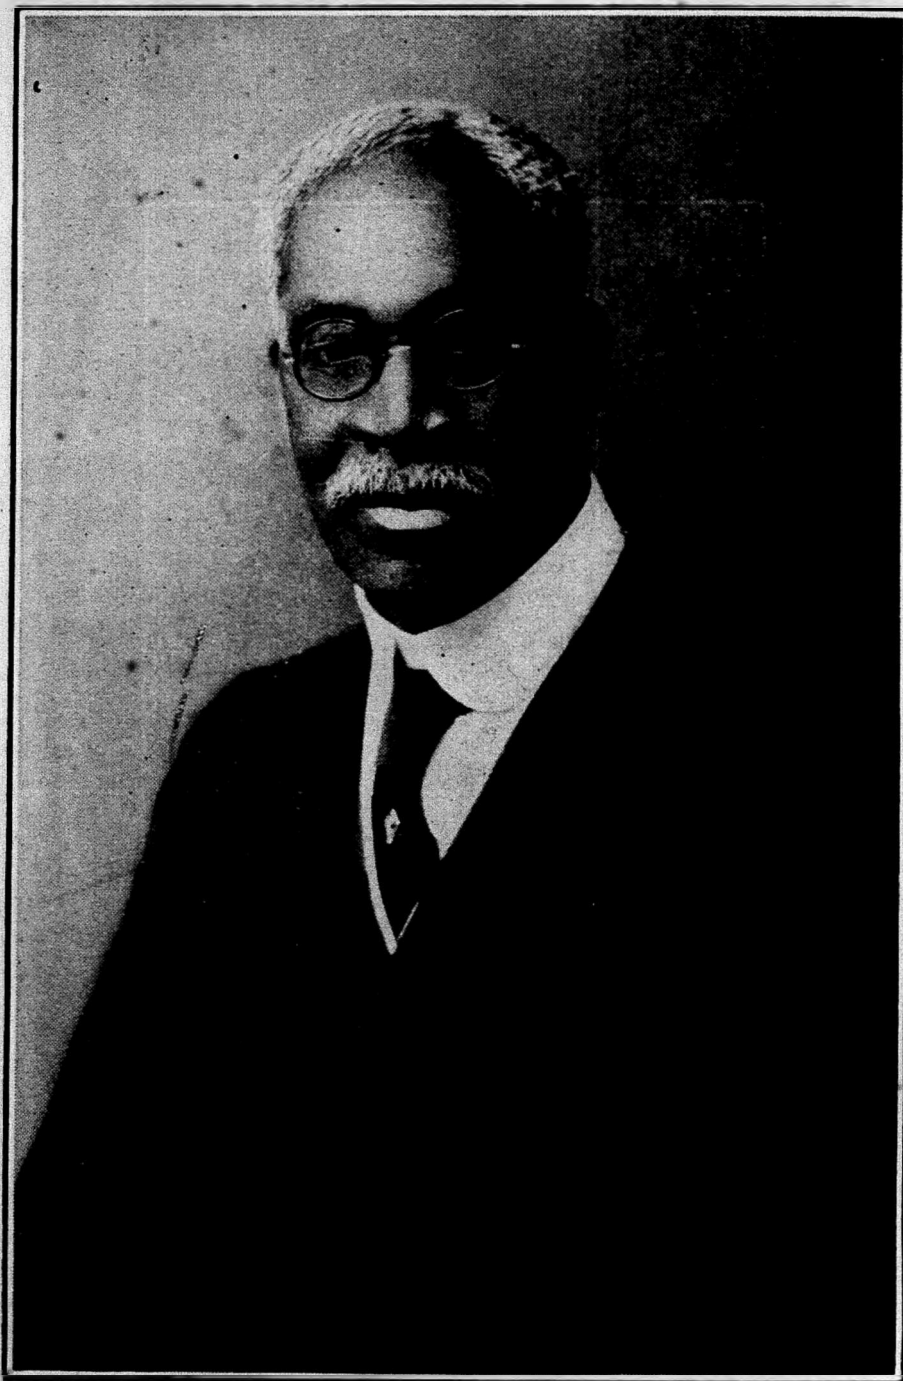

He was a man of exceptional vision and a deep sense of his responsibility to Africa. He purchased his freedom in 1821 and organized the first Foreign Mission Society in the world among Negroes, so far as we know, and under the direction of the American Colonization Society and the Missionary organization referred to above, he became one of the first settlers of the Republic of Liberia on the West Coast of Africa in 1822.

The organization of the Society was effected in the Shiloh Baptist Church of Washington, D. C., in 1897, of which Dr. J. Anderson Taylor was then Pastor, and an inspiring leader in the interest of Foreign Missions. It has proven itself to be a marvelous instrument in contending for the faith and the proclamation of the simple Gospel of Salvation to all who believe, on the Home and Foreign Field, alike.

Its present official set-up, with the Woman's Auxiliary organized in 1901 and the Young People's Auxiliary to the Woman's Body in 1921 is as follows:

In the course of time it became apparent that the Society needed a Headquarters and an office building. To this end a Committee was appointed to find a suitable place, of which we recall the names of Drs. G. O. Bullock, Chairman, J. Milton Waldron and Mrs. A. B. Randolph. When the Committee met for decision it was decided to accept our present Headquarters, which was discovered and reported by Mrs. Randolph for consideration during the Fiscal Year 1924-25.

The building is admirably located on the corner of 11th and P Streets, N. W., Washington, D. C. It contains 12 spacious rooms, with a frontage on 11th Street of about 100 feet. Its architectural design appears to have been conceived for no other purpose than a great Foreign Mission Headquarters. The Corner Stone was laid February 12, 1926, with a simple ceremony in keeping with the purpose for which it was dedicated. The President, Dr. C. S. Brown; Corresponding Secretary Dr. A. A. Graham, and Mrs. A. B. Randolph, President of the Woman's Auxiliary, were in charge of various phases of the program.

Later on a House Committee of 3 was appointed, namely: Drs. W. D. Jarvis, G. O. Bullock and Mrs. A. B. Randolph. This Committee has rendered invaluable service to the Institution and its Chairman, Dr. Jarvis, has served without financial remuneration. The Committee deserves great credit for the service rendered.

The call of the hour is cooperation and fellowship among Pastors and Churches. The hope for developing a potent force in World Evangelism is that we see Christ and His plan of salvation only. This has been the aim of our Society from its beginning. The local Church, with its entire following, is to be brought in contact, sympathetically with the great movement of World Evangelism, so that the whole territory, covered by the Society, may be able to utilize its numerical strength in concentration upon the objective set forth in "The Great Commission."

MISS BENETTA BULLOCK
President, Junior Young People's Department

As Missionary Baptists we should not be satisfied until every Christian unit in the Country has recorded its name as regular contributors to the Cause of Foreign Missions. To this end, I shall ever urge upon those who desire to please Him who has called us into this larger life, that we dedicate our powers and influence in this direction. We must become more and more a vital propagating power that is irresistible in making Christ known among all men.

There should be a mutual faith and confidence in evidence everywhere, as supporters of the work of Foreign Missions. This will attract and inspire others who may but casually look on, because of our sincerity and faith in Christianity as a panacea for the ills of the world.

The Church of Christ is a militant and courageous force in the world guided and directed by the Holy Spirit. This idea must be emphasized today as it was in the days of the Apostles, if we are to fulfill our mission. The tactics and intrigues of Satan are multiplying everywhere, but under God, who is our strength and our salvation, we shall conquer.

We must definitely and fearlessly grapple with all the problems of life and society, and so change the thinking of men and women that they will gladly abandon the ways of sin and turn to the powers of righteousness and truth, recognizing Christ as the one to be obeyed in matters of faith and practice.

We are living in a period of transition but gradually the light is being turned on as truth is being discovered more and more. The call comes to us from dark and benighted lands, to send the light. If we are children of Christ, we will heed this plea and re-dedicate ourselves to the task without complaining, for we are not doing what we are capable of doing commensurate with our numerical strength, and perhaps, our great and urgent need is the creation of a new sense of responsibility.

Incessant prayer will reveal to us this sense of responsibility, for we already know, in many instances, more than we are willing to do. Team-work in every Church and community will solve many of our problems. We can do much single-handed but we can do more by working together. In every place where two or more Christian groups may be found, there should be team-work in action and conferences held to enlighten and inspire the people touching Foreign Mission Work.

LOTT CAREY
The Heroic Pioneer in Liberian Missions.

Christianity is on trial today as never before. Petty differences and race prejudice are at work in the world which seem to crowd out Christ at every testing point of man's life. We cannot be Christian and at the same time entertain those abhorrent and destructive elements in our lives.

The war clouds and outbursts among the nations of the world today are but evidences of these slumbering evils that have been long entertained by individuals, races and nations. Now, we behold them in their mad rage and slaughter. We must practice "The Golden Rule" or else we will sacrifice the word, Christian, on the altar of avarice and human annihilation.

It is the function of the individual as well as the universal Christian Church to interpret Christianity to the world. Church membership, therefore, should mean something more than is ordinarily expressed in the attitude of man to man. It should grind out in rigid discipline outstanding and unique characters patterned after the life of Jesus Christ, that even in a time of upheaval such as now exists in our world among men and nations, Christianity should be seen and recognized as an entity of good-will among all men.

Therefore, if we are striving toward the goal of a better world, we should cooperate denominationally and otherwise, as far as possible, in the Missionary enterprise, since history shows that more has been accomplished through this means for civilization than in any other organic force of operation among men. Personally, I am very grateful to those who have rallied to the challenge of our Missionary program and have acknowledged it as their imperative duty. Were it not for such loyalty, our workers on the Foreign Field would not have been sustained through these trying times.

While there has not been done what we have desired, from every point of view, on account of lack of funds, yet, the Kingdom's program is still moving onward. Let us continue in prayer for a united effort and consistency in the work of Foreign Missions. Our achievements, as an institution, are outstanding. Thousands have been won to Christ in Foreign lands, and abiding impressions have been made upon Rulers and Governments on account of the efforts put forth by our Society in behalf of the lowly and indigent of their people.

Our banner has been effectively unfurled and the exalted Christ, proclaimed through our contributions of money and service, in Africa, Russia, India, Haiti and the Isles of the Sea. We still believe in Missions and Evangelism and shall go forward with courage and faith emphasizing these elements as the greatest civilizing forces at work in the world, ever giving attention to the training of a dynamic leadership that will make vital and supreme among all issues, the proclamation of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

A period of 40 years with an enviable financial and economical record closes, and today, we re-state and emphasize the practices and principles of the fathers, facing our task with the conviction that our field is the world and accepting the challenge to serve our fellowmen, among all races, wherever an open door is found, to the extent of our ability.

Woman's Auxiliary

Much praise and honor are due our noble Sisters for the fine job they are putting over in helping to foster the work committed to our trust. Their reports come to this office regularly and they respond on every occasion to such calls of emergency that arise in the prosecution of a work like ours. In every time of stress and strain, they have come to our rescue in keeping with their pronounced purpose and attitude to help.

The President, Mrs. A. B. Randolph, and Treasurer, Mrs. R. S. Bullock, being near at hand can easily get together and facilitate urgent matters according to the order of the Auxiliary that there may be no hold up in the execution of the financial affairs of our Convention. We are praying for the continual growth of the Auxiliary and that every Church in the Convention may become a member and cooperate in the salvation of a lost world.

Mrs. M. L. Penn, their untiring Corresponding Secretary, deserves special mention because of her alertness and intense interest in helping to meet the salaries of our Missionaries on the Foreign Field. Our Young People's Organization, led by Miss Benetta Bullock, is forging its way ahead among the youth. Their conduct of the work is admirable. It is a pleasure to see them in action as they carry on the business of the King in Foreign Missions.

Missions and Education in Haiti

(Headquarters: St. Marc, DR. BOAZ A. HARRIS, Superintendent.)

Dr. Boaz A. Harris, Superintendent of our Haitian Missions, is greatly disturbed on account of the drought condition in Haiti. The suffering among the people at La Gonave is referred to as extremely sad and perplexing, large families are without food, and his plea to us to help is worthy of consideration. He exclaims thus: "Oh, Dr. Randolph, our brethren here need real material help."

There is, I know, great suffering among Missionaries elsewhere; in the far off East appalling conditions obtain, but here at our door, the call comes through our indefatigable worker, Dr. Boaz A. Harris. He is preaching, teaching and baptizing men and women the year round. You will note the Stations mentioned elsewhere. He has just ordained Brother Christian Coicou, who is serving as Pastor at Fons-des-Negre in the Church that takes the name of Sixth Mt. Zion Baptist Church of Richmond, Va., of which Dr. A. W. Brown is Pastor.

There are 7 Churches under his direction and 23 other stations, with a membership of more than 1,500; 2 Pastors and Missionaries and 34 other Preachers. There are also more than 2,200 Sunday School Scholars. He reports having baptized more than 100 persons.

As Executive Secretary, I beg that we read with care the following BRIEF STATEMENT OF THE WORK AT THE BREWERVILLE STATION, LIBERIA, WEST AFRICA, by the Principal, Rev. W. H. Thomas, who is now in this Country endeavoring to awaken interest in Foreign Missions:

In spite of handicaps and the lack of means to carry on the work effectually, God has in His own inimitable way prospered the Brewer-ville Station in its physical, educational and spiritual developments. We have taken this as a sign of His approval of our humble service, more than by anything else, we have been encouraged to continue in the work.

Physical Phase

However, slight, we have been enabled each year to make some improvement on the campus. Through the kindness of Miss Lyon and Spelman College, we have recently completed a small Library, 22 by 15 feet, with a veranda on three sides of the building made of concrete cement. The square columns that hold up the roof of the veranda serve to make the building, though small, imposing and durable. Four months ago we built a bell-tower of concrete cement, from which tower the large bell donated by the Rev. Dr. L. H. Hackney of Chapel Hill now rings. The members of the Girls' Progressive Club of our Mission have, for several years, been saving their pennies for the purpose of erecting an arched gateway at the entrance of the campus. Last February, the goal was reached. The campus is now graced with a beautiful cement arched gateway in which swings a pair of galvanized iron gates artistically designed. And before I left for America, at the expense of the Alumni Association of the school, cement posts on which wire fencing will be hung, were being erected on the eastern side of the campus.

Educational Phase

Very apparent is the progress of the educational department of our Mission. For the most part, the children are ambitious and persevering. Their parents are increasingly learning the value of "learning book" as they term it. And the children, in turn, are diligently applying themselves to the task. While now and then we do come across a pupil that is dull, yet it is astonishing how the children of the aborigines, on the whole, learn to speak, read and write English. Up to ten or twelve years ago, when the pupils of our school got to the third and fourth grades, they were ready to leave the Mission, but now they are anxious to complete at least the eighth grade. Last year we had four students to graduate from the Senior High School and eleven from the Junior. This year there are twelve in the graduating class. It is gratifying to note that most of the teachers at our Station received their training there, and many of our former students are employed as teachers by the Government and other Missions. A few of them are in Government service. As far as I know, they are all making good.

In this connection I cannot refrain from uttering a note of regret for our failure to maintain an industrial course for the boys of our Mission. While the girls have learned to do little things to make themselves useful in the home and community, yet aside from a little printing shop, which is poorly equipped, we have nothing in the line of trades for our boys.

Spiritual Phase

Although we are keenly interested in the educational development of the children, yet even that is subordinated to the spiritual. I can not recall a single child that spent a session in our school without becoming a Christian. Not only do we observe morning and evening prayers daily, and on Sundays Preaching service, Sunday School, and B. Y. P. U. meeting, besides a regular graded Bible Study course, but we have a special week of prayer and decision. The week before I sailed for America twenty-two of our pupils were converted. These children will return home and diffuse the light which they received.

Never before have we seen such a rush of people into the Kingdom as we have witnessed for the last five or six years from the Bassa, Kru, and Golah tribes. But with deep regret we must admit that we do not have sufficient workers to take care of this rich harvest of souls. No Christian can be brought face to face with this appalling need without sharing in a measure the passion of our Royal Master who exclaimed: "The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few."

Urgent Needs

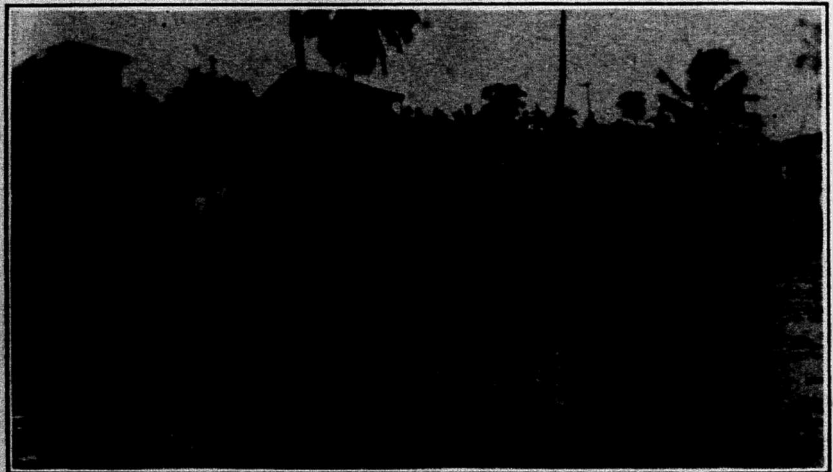

At this Station we need more workers, a Boy's Dormitory; Equipment for Classrooms and dormitories; an Industrial department for boys; fifty $25 scholarships.

Let us pray that the Lord will give us a new vision of the task that is so near and dear to His divine heart, and that as we go to Norfolk we may be willing to subordinate our wills to His will, so that He may work through us to extend His Kingdom among the waiting millions in Africa and in other heathen lands.

OUR DEAD

Sacred to our memories are the following who have thrown off this mortal coil and passed to the realm of Eternal Bliss. Their labors of love and influential activities among their colleagues will live on through the passing years as an exhibition of their enthusiastic and tireless efforts in religious service in the community, State, and Nation. Their Christian faith, patience, and integrity are incentives to those they have left behind to carry on with Christ, with undaunted courage and faith in Him who inaugurated the great cause for which they sacrificed their lives for its promotion.—Foreign Missions:
