L. K. WILLIAMS, President. R. B. HUDSON, Secretary.

DR. L. K. WILLIAMS, President of the National Baptist Convention.

BAPTIST TABERNACLE, TWENTY-FIRST AND COMPTON STREETS, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA.

September 5, 1923.

The National Baptist Convention met pursuant to adjournment in its Forty-third Annual Session at Los Angeles, California, at 10 A. M. President L. K. Williams called the Convention to order and the grand old hyinn. "Praise God From Whom all Blessings Flow," was feelingly rendered by the Convention, standing, followed by the Convention hymn, "Just Think of His Goodness to You."

introductory remarks outlining the purpose of the meeting, the method of procedure and the manner of decorum were then made by the President. Devotions were announced. A special prayer for stricken Japan was offered by Dr. R. A. Adams. Arkansas. Chorus rendered very effectively. "Jesus Is all the World to Me."

Vive-Presidents and Correspondents were invited to the platform. "Just fiver in the Glory Land" was sung. Brethren A. Teal, of Kansas, and J. H. Hughes, of New Jersey, were summoned. Dr. Teal led in the devotional prayer presenting our thanks and imploring the leadership of Jehovah in the meeting. The Motto Scriptures were read in concert and Dr. J. H. Hughes discussed with earnest-press and faithfulness, The Uplitted Christ, the Revelation of Gol's Nature, John 12: 32 and contextually 1 John 2:23. The Identity, Affinity, and Infinity of Christ. He magnified Christ as the central figure and in fact in all Christian activities and the secret force in all success in Kingdom advance.

Text-John 12: 32. And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me."

Subject. The Uplifted Christ, the Revelation of God's Nature." Introduction—The Subject expresses a truth found in the amplification of the text, more than it does express the sum total thought of the text which always forms the subject of the discourse. It is evident, to any casual observer that the text was not intended to teach anything, as such, about the Revelation of God's Nature, but in so far as we teach even the kind of death Christ suffered we do leach or reveal God's Nature, for in its last purpose, this was Christ's mission on earth.

We have said the foregoing not as a criticism on either the subpet given nor on the text selected, but to enlighten, if not to forestell the critic who might, and will argue that the text was uttered primari's to tell what kind of death Christ would die. We accept as challenge and still we claim that the "magnetism of the cross of Christ," when understood, or may we say, when reflected upon in the light of the New Testament Scriptures is but a higher term for the Revelation of God's Nature. Christ said of himself, "And this is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jeans Christ, whom thou hast sent." John 17: 3.

"He that hath seen me hath seen the Father." John 14: 9. We are asking that we consider at least three thoughts, which seem to use, to grow out of our text and verify our subject: Identification, Attraction, Contraction.

1. Identification—It may be peculiar to the Aramaic idiom to use the pronoun I in its consecutive sense as used in the text, but to my mind, it goes farther than an idiom, it sets forth, at least for us, in this present day of skeptfelsm, the idea of identifying Christ from the Antichrist. You have crucified many and may be, many more, but I, if I be lifted up from the earth, etc.

How necessary it is for us, as messengers of the cross to get this one fact in our minds and hearts. This is the parting of ways for many of the so-called churches: into every man's life there must be a crucifixion: there is no getting around this. Every mortal must see the Christ crucified, and must be for him or against him. He saws, "And as Moses lifted un the serpent in the wilderness even so must the Son of man be lifted un." This was as significant in the death of Christ as it was in the lifting up of the serpent in the wilderness; when the serpent was lifted up in the wilderness he was life to all whose faith caused them to look upon it, even so with Christ.

Not only must one behold the Christ, but the Christ must be lifted up; not the church, not the choir, not the edifice, not the minister, but the Christ.

Not only his glory, not only his heautiful life, his words and he works, but every minister of the Cross must be Heaven's arilst moint in all of its horrors, all of its ghastly details the death of the Christ on the Cross. The true minister of Christ, is after all, but the distant mirror and the ever present sounding hoard of Calvary reflecting in his life the life of the Christ, painting in his matchies message, the tragedy of Calvary. Men should cease their trying to explain the Christ, his Divinity or what not, but simply repeat the old, old story of the Cross and then drop back into the wilderness of meditation and prayer, and give the Christ a chance.

II. Attraction—"I will draw." Here again we have the sneaferhange to allow Christ to do the drawing: I will draw. What need we touch the laws of magnetism? Why lose time talking about motion to the holes attracting smaller" or about molecular cohesies of atomical adhesion. It is not the how that so much concerns us at the who. I will draw. Men are losing their heads and hearts trius to explain the how of this attraction. But need we perplex our bails to drift into Paul's trouble at Athens, when he attempted to too much the how, instead of the simple who, and leave like the sun, the rest to Him. Need we doubt the sunshine because we not understand its structure? We need not cease enjoying the the breezes just because we cannot see them.

We have five principal kinds of attraction: Attraction of gration; attraction of cohesion: attraction of chemical affinity; attraction of electricity and magnetism; capillary attraction.

With the unsaved, Christ is in the first class, attraction of spiritual gravitation; like the gathering of small particles around larger ones as they float upon the water, or like the clouds drawn toward the mountain peaks, every human soul finds itself drawn toward the Christ. Romans 1: 20. "For the invisible things of him are clearly seen from the creation of the world, being understood by the things that are made, even His eternal power and Godhead; so that they are without excuse." Romans 2: 15: "Which shew the work of the law written in their hearts, their conscience also bearing witness and their thoughts, the meanwhile accusing or else excusing one another."

Naturally the drawing here is, as anywhere it would be predicated upon being lifted up from the earth, there seems to be a thought of clininating the carthly; not whether Christ was divine or not divine; he came not lifting his voice in the streets (Isa. 42: 2) that telling a simple story of his kingdom and of its heirs.

Diversity of being is the basis of completeness and the source of restful joy. The old folks often expressed it: "Variety is the spice of life;" to this we come to prove that even in the spiritual world we find the law of "unlike things attracting," no exception, for indeed this law works in the fullest sense of the word in Christ's attraction for sinful mon. The more of the Christ, the greater the attraction.

We insist that much of the negative work we have in our churches is due to our not eliminating the earth from our Coherer, the most important part in our spiritual Radio outfit, if we would attract for Christ. "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth I will draw all men unto me."

It is possible that you may notice that we have not given our second general head, "Exaltation," any special place in our discourse, for the reason that it is so closely interwoven into the idea of Attraction as not to warrant, perhaps, a special place, but as the foundation indexes the superstructure, or the depth of the night, the brilliant day to follow, so does the idea of Exaltation go before Attraction, but to my mind gets added strength to be seen or pointed out from the leat rather than viewed as a perspective.

we say, before we come to our final word on the Contraction, that Exalintion of Christ is to the Attraction of Christ what advertising is to selling. We never hear a reputable merchant in the man it places complaining that no one comes into his place, that the other man is drawing all of his customers, but to the contrary he active has worderfolling his business, "the law of want and supply." e sets out to supply your wants; if you have no wants, he makes you want perforce of advertising; he spends the time thinking out better paus of exakting his goods, that he may create within his prospective contomer a greater desire for his wares.

are two dominating impulses controlling human conduct. In inherent, the other acquired, or we might say is inflected. These are Curjosity and Necessity. We are not all agreed upon the sit the attraction. Man lost his first estate in his attempt to are first in curiosity, and was thrown into the realm of necessity. The preachers worked almost entirely from a necessity viewpoint; they painted hell in all its dreadful horrors, until one was compelled to the its lurid flames.

Whether I seek Christ to satisfy my curiosity to see and know the mysteries of heaven or whether the pangs of fear stir my soul into a need of better condition, the result is the same, I will have found the Christ.

Drawn unto Christ-not the Pope or Bishop-but auto Him, the embodiment of all righteousness.

III. Contraction—"I will draw all men unto me." It is a common truth that the Greeks philosophized religion; the Bomans legalized religion; the Jews idolized religion. When Christ came he found the Greeks still worshipping their Socratic trinity of "Happiness, Virtuand Knowledge;" the Romans worshipping Law; the Jews idolining more religion. Know thyself, said the Greeks, control thyself, said the Romans; exalt thyself, said the Jews. "Deny thyself," said the Christ; thus Christ came to fraternize religion. To this end said he, if I be lifted up from the earth I will draw all men unto me. There is possibly no point in our life where we meet on such a common level as in the redemption by Christ.

Let a thousand men relate their birthright and you will have a thousand different stories.

Let a thousand men tell of their life's experience and you will have a thousand volumes as different as the men.

Let a thousand men sing you their choice song of earth, and you will have largon excelled only by the pratter of so many babes of the same number, or worse still, the bedlam of a shick's tent.

But let a thousand men whom the Christ has drawn, tell of His drawing power and you will have a chorus as strange as Pentecost but as forceful and as harmonious as the Angelic Recessional on the Resurrection morning, when they sang that antiphonal (Ps. 24: 1, 5) welcome to our risen Lord.

I will draw all men nato me. In John 6: 44, Jesus says: "No made can come to me, except the Father which sent me, draw him," and I will raise him up at the last day,"

Then in John 14: 9. He says: "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father. Every man therefore that bath heard and hath learned of the Father cometh unto me."

"He that believeth on me hath everlasting life" (John 6: 47). Christ here defines the new birth, for he distinctly said (John 3: 5). "Except a man be born of the water and Spirit, he cannot enter fall the kingdom of God."

Should the skeptic reason how a helief is a birth, say to him that all we know of our natural birth is belief. We have no proof, positive that our own methers, so-called, are our mothers; we found them being over us or feeding us, or singing to us, but many a man or wonshas been adopted at birth and reared by a woman who did not lead to the world, still, for all he knew, it was his mother, how our natural mothers only by faith in what we saw and heard.

The man who wills to mirder and follows that will up with at of the action possible, although the gun fails to kill, that man is a n deror. The same is absolutely true In coming to Christ. Ency man awakes one day to find that inexpressible drawing, minormost being, toward the Christ of the ages, to that extent he is willing to die even the natural death for that Christ, the man knows not the joy of the new birth.

To be born means to come out of. The man above finds the heart (which is but the sum of our desires) caught away to this Christ, who is heaven; but like the sun drawing the water from the sea, ife finds that pulling, that thudding, that drawing to that Christ of whom be has heard. This continues until it may be of short or it may be, with some, of long duration, but this man awakes to find his inner life rekindled with new desires, with new throes, with new notives, with new and fixed determinations until they burst into a flame of conduct. This we call the new birth, for these came down from above. Jesus said: "Amen; amen lego soi ean me genesthe anothen on dunatui idein ten Basileian tiu Theou." "Of a truth, of a truth, it say unto thee, except a man be born 'from above' he will not be able to grasp, or enjoy the Kingdom of God."

Truly, brethren, when we absorb His life, His principles, His character, we shall teach men that robes mean life, that blood means life, that love means living, that living means lifting, that preaching means teaching, that teaching means touching, touching means vitalizing men's lives because of the Christ in us.

After all, brethren, we are but mediums through which the magnetizer, the Holy Spirit, works and working in us and through us, will draw all men unto Christ to be brothers with one common mercy seat. We will exemplify so forcibly the "Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man," that men will see in us the "Uplifted Christ" and the Nature of His Father and our God revealed.

The address was spiritually affamed, intellectually brilliant, Scriptually accurate and doctrinally sound. "Come Holy Spirit Heavenly Dove" was led by the President, the Convention joining in with spiritual enthusiasm.

The program was read by Secretary Hudson. After discussion a notion prevailed to adopt the program as submitted. "What A Friend We Have In Jesus" was rendered by the chorus. Prof. Lewis sang a solo, "The Old Time Religion," while the programs were being distributed.

The Local Committee presented Rev. Wm. R. Carter, who in turn introduced Rev. W. H. Tillman, Jr., to preside during the welcome exercises. The chorus sang "The Star Spangled Banner" as a welcome thorns with variations and medley. Dr. A. P. Shaw, a splendid specimen of humanity was presented and welcomed the Convention on behalf of the other denominations. Rev. W. H. Tillman welcomed and urged on behalf of the Baptists that the great assembled host assist in lengthening the cords and strengthening the stakes that nothing he lost of denominational influence. Rev. J. L. Campbell, D.D., Tennessee, in well chosen words like apples of gold in pitchers of silver accepted the welcome on behalf of the Convention. The words of this response fell in smooth rhythmic flow as did the melliftuous words flow from Nestor's lips, sweeter than honey and the noneycomb. It aptly pictured the history and triumphant progress of Negro Paptists and their attitude on world's problems. "Steal Away to Jesus" was appropriately rendered by the chorus. We Meet Again" was also sung.

Adjourned. Benediction, Rev. A. J. Green, D.D., Maryland.

Afternoon Session.

The Convention reassembled for the afternoon session at 2:16 Rev. J. Francis Walker, D.D., Chio, presiding. "Just Think of His Goodness to You" was sung by the Convention chorus led by Prot. Austin. Devotions were conducted by Roy. W. B. Brownlee, Arkanss, who read the 13th chapter of First Corinthians. "God Will Take Care of You" was then sung and prayer was offered by Dr. J. W. Balley, Texas. "In the Cross" was very feelingly sung by the chorus Prayer was offered by Revs. Shaw and B. F. Laden, Missouri. "I Heard the Saviour Say" was sung. Dr. I. S. Powell, Colorado, petitioned Heaven's benediction upon the assembled host of Bapfists. Inspirational talks of two uniquies were had from various brethren: Revs. B. F. Laden, Missouri, J. H. Martin, North Carolina, Lyon, Coorado, Locust, Kentucky, G. W. Hartis, California, J. H. Grayes.

Convention joined in singing, "Coming Home." Dr. Skipwith led in singing, "Til Be Satisfied." Dr. E. B. Topp, Miss., presiding called for a partial report from Enrollment Committee. Dr. A. J. Stoke, Ala., made an important announcement in reference to checks. A partial report of 231 delegates, 51 churches and 6 associations was adopted and the committe continued. A committe was appointed to invite the ladies to come and hear the annual address of the President. Solo, Mrs. Johnson, Mo., encore, "They Are Waiting for Me." Solo, Rev. W. M. Nix, "Meet me There." "Clear the Line Before You Call." Collection for Mrs. L. Y. Johnson, $5.73. Chorus sang the jubilee. "Great Day."

Dr. C. H. Parrish, Ky., was presented who in well chosen words introduced the President, Dr. L. K. Williams, Illinols, to deliver his annual address. Amid applianse and salutes, Dr. Williams arose and in his own graceful inimitable manner proceeded after singing, "Amering Grace," to deliver a masterly address, brimful of helpful suggestions and conservative, constructive ideas for the race and denomination as follows:

My dearly Beloved in Christ:

We are assembled here to day in keeping with the off-repeated pledges made to you of the far-away West. Our promises to come to you were so often providentially broken that many of us had begun to believe the poet when he said:

> "East is east and west is west And never the twain shall meet, Till earth and sky stand presently At God's great judgment seat."

We have been charmed by the thoughts of a visit to picturesque California and the scenic west, and now we are here in a place "like no other, and distinctly itself." "It hangs upon the walls of the world like a finne of jeweled tapestry; a sky of turquoise of it, warm, with the glow of the sun by day and soft and tender with moon and stars by night." We came not here seeking territorial gas did the Mexican and Spanish explorers, but we are here because are commissioned "to go into all the world" and because we are heirs of the promise—"Every place that the sole of your foot self-tread upon that I have given unto you." We come not here as dld the Pathfinder Fremont, who, in deference to his country raised the stars and stripes—but we come to help raise the hanner of heaven, "Old Glory"—One Lord, one faith and one haptism. We have not been hired here by your romance, your incomparable natural and historic scenes—such as your petrified forcests, painted deserts, succulent lields, stapendous garges, irrigated valleys, superb chasms, striking conyons, colorial lands, commoditions harbors, grassy plateaus, clamonus streams, pellucid, mountain-walled lakes, snow-crowned mountains, foaming cataracts, dashing waterfalls, fascinating landscapes, langling islands, granite mountain peaks—Nature's sentinels, keeping sleepless 'tigil day and night.

We come not because it is a winterless Eden where one can look the sun in the eye and where August's mountain snews first with August's sunshine, where the sun habitually shines, and dates, grapes, oranges, and all fruits ripen in spite of the calendar and where flowers rist with no fears in December or January as in May. Not because it is the place where cedars, junipers, popples, plaes, palms, playons and strange plants grow and load the air with a tantalizing aroma, but we are here to make all this reminiscent of God, the Creator of all. We come in quest of, and to help reveal the beauty of His Holiness, and to help make Isalah's prophecy true. "For ye shall go out with joy, and he led forth with peace: the mountains and the hills shall break forth before you into singing, and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands."

History tells us that the discovery of gold here gave the world the "Gold-fever." The Argonauts came around the Horn, some across deserts and plains, leaving human carcasses on the way until their path was like unto Ezekiel's Valley of Dry Bones, all seeking the Golden Florce. Many died without obtaining it, not so with us-for ours is no vagne, indefinite search, but a stern fact, having a certain and and victory which all may win through costly sacrifices. In 1507 Balbon stood yander on these shimmering heights, beheld a broad expanse of water and set out to explore it. He did so, being conveyed by rude boats made by adventurous Negroes. He set up a cross in the name of Spain dedicating his discovery the Pacific, to his beloved native land. Ours is the cross of the uplifted Christ. We set it up and command all to rally to its call. Out here, they say, brown-robed St. Francision leaders of the early missions lighted their candles on alfars in "poppy-strewn valleys," upon green hilltops from San Diego to the valley of the Seven Moons. They are gone, their candles extinguished and only a few relics and the missions of their day are left. but we are here to help reveal to the world our Christ, who is in the midst of the golden candlesticks and who has declared that the gates of hell shall not prevail against his church. We are here to exhibit the force of Baptist principles and to help satisfy a world that is restless without them. We came a long distance to bring the Baptlat message here, where the dreamy twilight is not succeeded by scorching days or cold nights, and where saffron flecks bedeck a rose tinted sky, the eastle of the closing day.

Ont here, where it seems to us when we are at home in the East. that the god of light, the sun, dips his burning minions into the thre of the western sea, already made crimson by his ruddy presence, where after running his race, he retires, leaving lingering rays pointing back to the Orient, to welcome the silver moon, the queen of the night, as she comes up and begins her lustrous pilgrimage around a sleeping world, here we would help to spread the light of the gospel. Out here in the West, where the night comes on in secone majesty with spangles In her bosom and the fragrant zephyrs lall a tired, drowsy world to sleep we would diffuse the halmy gospel sweets. In the West, where the welrd requiem of the lone coyote breaks the sombre stillness and the mellow monotone of the majestic whippoorwill and the mountain cadences of heautifully plumed birds echo upon the world, here remust sing our song. Out here, where the song of the locust in the unbrageous tree-tops, and the shivering hoots of the horned owl come out in sweet consonance with the sone of the brooks, the music of the ocean and the plaintive coo of the last-mated dove. We would set things to moving with the music and harmony of heaven. Our here. America's Venice and Switzerland, where the days are halms, the nights clear and levely, where the dews distil and play with barren desorts, unloading their cargoes of heavenly benedictions and leave Nature dressed up and ripe for harvest, we must have the chance to proclaim the power of the Holy Spirit, and the beauty and certains of beaven.

And then, finally, Ob. Los Angeles, thou proud creation of a few harrying years, thou wondrous mistress upon the shores of the surset: thou has survived the tremors and shocks of death dealing earth quakes, then who art term by many conflicting religious isms. wild vagaries and speculative dogmas, with you we lower our salls and anchor in your harhors for a few last beeting moments, hoping and praying that our time will be profitably spent and prove to be a lasting benediction to all. It has cost us much to come to you and we hope our coming will be but the making of a missionary investment that will some day produce large, beneficial returns to the Kingdom of Christ.

To help facilitate these pleasing results, it is not out of place to say to you, my brothron of the Convention be cautious, discreet. rightcons and charitable in all you may do here. Nanoleon, to thrill his fighting legions, once said to them. "Forty conturies look down upor This to them was a mighty appeal. It incited patriotism and faithful services. It sent them forward inspired. I am saying now that we are encompassed by clouds of interested spectators and God himself; and He hears all we say and sees all we do. This should fill our hearts with the desire to do His will, to live nobly and to do our best now as at all times.

In coming up to this session of our Convention, we have no doubt passed through the most feverish, crucial year of the world's history throughout the year we have heard the plaintive, dving echoes of a war that left this world stride torn, prostrate and bleeding. The thrilling promise of a universal democracy and a world made safe for It, is yet as much an alluring dream as was Plato's Republic, or Sir Thomas Moore's Utopia. To-day the entire world is staggered the gathering storms and the possibilities of another bloody work There is a tremer of economic restlessness and uncertaint affecting every nation, and there is the ever-present, bitter struck between Capital and Labor. We have the existence of bate and chanin many vital human relationships, and the reign of selfishness ne litical riot, anarchy and suspicion. In many places, the most mark tendency is athirst tir pleasure and power, the flaunting of animari and a disrespect for law and order. It is a time when men lave to insistent material things more than they do the permanent spiritual values. The year has been one of racial, group and international anmathies, corruption in high places, and a lowered morale in our citizenship. Our own country is to-day deeply scarred from the many remomic, social, industrial and political disorders which we have witnessed and are to-day experiencing. Going further, in matters of religion there are signs of deep discouragement, loss of faith, disregard of man and God

MINUTES

Sometimes it appears that we are living in a hopeless age, having no rifts in its clouds or lines of light drawn on its dark horizons. It should not have been expected that our Convention would have passed through such a period without feeling its impact, but I thank God that the reverses of the year did not fully check our progress, but served rather as incentives to our more ambittous achievements and accomplishments. So we are here to give an account of our stewardship in the following order:

Our Missionary Endeavors-Home and Foreign,

President Tait said: "Christian missions are indispensable to the political and spiritual progress of the world. There can be no political development without the Christian religion." This statement shows the philosophy and economy of Christian missions from the viewpoint of a statesman, and is worthy of the best thought and consideration of this meeting. The history of this nation is very largely one of gospel missions. The Pilgrim and the Puritan Fathers and others settled America, and brought with them their religious convictions and scattered them broadcast whithersoever they went.

Oglethorpe, Baltimore, Penn, Roger Williams and others sowed down early many of the first states of the Union with missionary ideas, which to-day are the abiding secret and genius of the success of this country. Its ideas of personal liberty, industrial freedom and responsibility, its plen for and protection of the individual can be easily traced to the early missionary ideas which controlled the founders of this country. These are perllous days in the history of the world; days of greed and graft, days of social organizations and compacts-days of infidelity and cationalism, days of unbelief in churches and pulpits and if we are to check the swelling tides of worldliness and usher in the kingdom, it must be through our advocacy of the power and utility of gospel missions. Not through Education or evolation, not through science as such or social combinations, not reformations or revolutions, but through that regeneration wrought in men's breasts by the gospel of Christian missions. If the idle, vicious and ignorant are to be made active, intelligent, industrious citizens, they must be reached by our churches preaching the gospel. Churches are not built for ornaments but to preach Christ, not to give some man a job, as pastor, but to find the Christless masses and teach them how to five and how to die. God's churches, intrusted with this great missionary enterprise, should make a survey of their resources and carry out the work God has assigned them. While it is true that Baptists held many things in common with others, it is also true that they hold many views which are peculiar to themselves. And Baptists, therefore, are under the most hinding obligation to the world and to God to preach the gospel everywhere according to the great commission.

The following is his recommendation:

This Convention acknowledges in its Constitution, plan of organization and operation, Christian Missions as a divine task and one of its most important duties "engaging in missionary work in the United States of America and upon the continent of Africa and elsewhere." In pursuance of the aforesaid object, the National Baptist Convention—appointed and has maintained its

Home Mission Board

The work of this board is first to help evangelize, lead to Christ and edify every soul in North America.

Our Rural Population.

This vital group is in many places being neglected. Often because of their geographical locations, depressed economic conditions, poor educational facilities, and in some cases, because of their dire need of close, capable, religious leadership, and an adequate supply of progressive, full-time preachers.

Our Home Mission Board needs and must have a number of competent, God-called, well-supplied, promptly paid evangelists and missionaries on its staff. It should carry the gospet to the heart of these rural localities. Its workers could with the printed page, the burbing oral message, redeem these needy areas and make them the basis first of our successful missionary activities.

The center and the trend of the Negro population is changing from the South to the East, to the North and to the West. For the first time in America, cities have the majority of its population. Cities are the centers of power and influence. A rural people, abruptly inslucated into city life irritate some vital problems and increase the laportance and difficulties of city missions. Our Convention is universal in its aims, and must face heroically the problems of its migrating constituents in every city. New emphasis on city missions is a necessity. Trained missionaries, social service workers and preachers, the Convention can, by proper cooperative plans, help to support in every city in the sparsely settled West and in other places. To do this needy work well, the Home Mission Board of the National Baptist Convention should be better financed. This would enable it to cooperate with local state boards and conventions in aiding our rural churches in building neat church houses, and in maintaining the most competent ministry, and other second rank trained religious workers.

Evangelism

I am persuaded to believe that the first item in any correct mis sionary program is the preaching of the gospel—the awakening and the galvation of the unsaved. This being true, it appears to me that the evangelistic department of this Convention ought to be a distinct feature and most vital work of our Hause Mission Board. It might a continued as a committee or department, being a part of, an amendable to, our Hams Mission Board.

A glance at the minutes of the 1917 session of the Convention wishow that President Merris infemded that the Evangelical Departmen of the Convention should be related to our Home Mission Board 63 have indicated above.

"Fourth, that the Convention authorize the organization of an Evangelical Committee, which will have charge of the evangelical work among the Negro Daptists in the United States, and that the committee, when chosen, work under the direction of the Home Mission Board of the National English Convention and that the Treasurer committee, when chosen, work under the direction of the Home Mission Board of the National Baptist Convention, and that the Treasurer of the Home Board receive from Evangelical Committee money raised by it for evangelistic purposes, and pay out the same to the evangelist upon orders drawn by the chairman of the committee countersigned by the Corresponding Secretary of the Home Board."

With this made clear, let us go forward, working hereafter in our Exangelistic Department in harmony with this recommendation.

Now, to help carry our work to greater heights, I believe every worker under our Home Mission Board should be agents of every interest of the Convention. They should represent every Board and seek especially to promote the distribution of our literature and the circulation of the Voice.

Cooperation and Comity.

To do well our missionary work we need and must have—a wise. workable plan of cooperation between this Convention and standardized Baptist organizations of the world. We need this cooperation because the Bible enjoins it, and because it is the very genius of Christianity. This is no age of boasted denominational isolation, but the age of cooperation. We need the influence which cooperation will produce and which can be used in the adjustment of this country's complex interracial problems. One Negro Baptist institution in Chicago, with close cooperation with white Baptists during the race riots, now a bitter memory, did much to check those riots and to get justice for Negro victims. It helped to bring about in court proceedints the anomalous thing-A Grand Jury Strike. We need cooperation because the white race is in debt to us. We educated and enriched through our enslavement in America, seven generations of them. We need it because they acknowledge this debt as Christians, and know the value of missionary investments with our people. We need this cooperation North and South because it carries with it the deep and earnest sympathies of those cooperating. Among white Baplists there are two great Conventions-the Northern and the Southern Daptists. These have in many respects, different traditions and customs as widely different in many things as their geographical dissimilarities. Negroes in these respective territories have their problems. In the South the constituents of the National Baptist Convention should know well and favourably their white neighbors. They should know and he able to summon the aid of their white acquaintances for the crisis through which the race and our religious work is now passing and must in the future pass. This Convention must likewise encourage the Negro in other sections of this country to "let down his bucket where he is."

We, therefore, need for reason's already given, a closer cooperation hetween Northern Raptists and our National Baptist Convention. I contend, however, that it is not wise, nor even required that we sacrife our forwention's autonomy, or divide ourselves as a Convention or cooperation with any organization. Everywhere North and South, the Negro in religion as in other things has his own peculiar problems.—Geography does not change these—they are more than skin deep, but to the bone. We need for the solution of our social interracial and religious problems, a race and Convention solidarity that will make us invulnerable and invincible in our rightful efforts. While Baptists, North and South, divided over us, and now we must be the uniting and mediating link between them. They need us in many things as much or more than we need them. We must most thoroughly nationalize our Convention. It is therefore well that we stand for a cooperation that C-O-O-P-E-R-A-T-E-S, that will help and will not affect the autonomy and the solidarity of the Convention, the unity of the race, and the correct doctrinal beliefs which the Convention's constituents hold.

Comity.

It is also helpful. I believe, for the Convention to favor peace, comity, and a good and workable understanding with all religious hodies of the world.

The Convention's Foreign Mission Endeavors.

The commission that enjoins Missionary work at home, commands that we go to the uttermost parts of the world. It is charity heglening at home, but spreading itself abroad as well. Because of racial antipathies and political barriers, our Foreign Mistionary efforts have been largely confined to certain portions of Africa. In many of these places the restrictions referred to above have greatly deterred our work. Now the massive numbers and the good influence of this Convention must be marshalled and used to secure for our Foreign Mis sion Board the right of self-determination in its missionary efforts in foreign fields. The Student Volunteer Movement in one of its meet ings spoke out in no uncertain terms against the perils and the pe litical harriers some nations are throwing about our endeavors to save Africa. The good offices and favors of the U. S. Government must be invoked to give us here just relief. I am also convinced that if our missionary efforts in Africa are to be made modern and efficient, we must be able to help promote its economic growth. Africa is no longer thought of as the "Dark Continent," but "the undeveloped treasure house of the world," and the unknown and greatly misunderstood continent.

All effective missionary work in Africa must teach, first, the natives the proper use and the value of Africa's rich resources. This can be facilitated heat through the establishment and maintenance of well equipped, well-manued literary, industrial and religious schools. It was once believed that a barbaric people could be transformed to a state of civilization only by the mediating process of human slavery Believers in Christian Missions and the potency of Christian Education offer now these as the righteous and most effective agencies in making such a transition. Our Foreign Mission Board through the arduous efforts of its Corresponding Secretary has at its disposal some funds which should be supplemented and used at once to build a commanding educational institution in Africa. Again, the history and philosophy of successful Foreign Missionary Work Illustrate the wisdom and the economy of medical missions. If we would stabilize on missionary work in Africa, we must find the sympathetic points of contacts with the natives. Their belief in "voodoolsm" "witcheraft." etc., is a fine background and good environment for medical missions. The Foreign Mission Board therefore needs more competent physicians, trained nurses, and some well-equipped hospitals in Africa. There, no soft pedal must be put on the preaching of the gospel, conviction of sin, repentance and regeneration. Africa will, as all the world, ever need this. Therefore we must enable this Board to increase its gospel preaching force on foreign fields. But the success of the work of the preachers of a spiritual gospel in Africa would be greatly enhanced and made more than a passing message or a Christion sentiment, if the aforesaid missionary institutions were established and properly maintained in connection therewith. Our Foreign Mission Foord is the oldest and in many respects the most outstanding phase of our work. It has been blessed for years with the unselfish. wise services of a competent corps of members, directed by a Corresponding Secretary, the most far seeing prophet of foreign missions among us, who gave the hest years of his ministry to this work. The present secretary and Board are building well upon the foundation laid in the past. They are building up a financial system that will soon guarantee the Board the financial aid it needs to prosecute properly the work. All of our churches should adopt systematic plans of giving to this work and thus help to bring on the Kingdom of God in Africa and all the world.

Christian Education.

No cubicet to-day is more interesting and fundamental than that of education. All will now assent to the truth of that trite maxim, "Education is power." But it is either a power for good or had, for weal or woe according to its kind and use. If it is the right kind of education properly used, it is a power for good, and vice versa. Chrisfanily is essentially a teaching religion, and Christian education is superior to all education and its purposes, and supplies the motives accessory to the proper use of it. Education is a most vital phase of our denominational work. Democratic and self-determining bodies must of necessity believe in and support the democratic notion of education. The Baptist denomination for progress and safety can rely wholly on two characteristics in its members—genuine conversion and then collightcoment, or education. The Bible emphasizes the need of these two prerequisites, for they are the safeguards against worldliness erceping into and corrupting the church or unspiritual wisdom or plans ignorance being enthroned, directing and destroying the church

Our demonination needs essentially to start off with a saved membershin and if it is to keep up its momentum, it needs a taught, trained, consecrated membershin. Baptists believe in majority rule and that rule is either right or wrong as voters are right at heart and head. Cantists have no overhead, external, earthly authority. Ours is from within the expressed conviction of individuals. Individual self-determination, the right and competency of conscience in religious matters is a truth with its counterpart in a rightly developed emissionee. The foregoing being true it is vitally essential that Espitists educate and with the proper education. Our predecessors and the organizers of this Convention recognized that the church was the policy of the truth." the importance of "teaching to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded," and in pursuance thereof they incorporated in the operation of this Convention our Sunday School Publishing Board, B.Y.P.U. Board and our Educational Board as its main direct Christian Education Agencies.

The Education Board.

This Board can do much for our denomination. Its full force and influence ought always be ready and subject to the needs of the strug gling denominational schools solely and independently maintained by the states and organizations in sympathy with, or which sunori loyally the combined interests of this Convention. Without these schools, the aid and influence of some of which met us on the very threshold of our emancipation, we would not be blessed with but present heritage and opportunities.

No truth loving fair person would deny this and no grateful one could say less. But for the last few years we have been making progress not fully appreciated in our efforts to build up a National Baptist Theological Seminary. I am pleased to report to you that this project is in a sense more of a pleasing realization. The State of Tennessee where the school is to be located has helped to furnish the site forty acres of land upon which we owe now only $5000 and which must be paid from the Convention's proceeds here. Again the Tennessee Legislature in its this year's session enacted special legislation whereby we can establish, maintain and manage this school in harmony with the genius and true spirit of Baptists and the mandates of this Convention. Another helpful step, Dr. Hailey, whose fertile brain, ripe experience and warm heart helped to give hirth to this institution and who since has been giving it his unselfish part time services, has now consented, with our Educational Board bearing its share of the expense incldent thereto, to give this school his full time unqualified services. And, may I add, the Southern Baptist Convention in its 1923 session voted to give us not only the two hundred thousand dollars they appropriated formerly, to establish the Sominary, but voted to supplement that amount with a fifty thousand dollar annual maintenance fund for such a time as this Convention is not fully able to alone provide for the upkeep of the

My brethren, if this Convention would prove itself wise and wortly. we must make to this enterprise such financial contributions as are commensurate with our ability and the needs of the school. It will, upon its erection need endowment and a fund for the education of promising young candidates for the ministry. It will fill a distinct place in promoting proper righteous interracial relations and will be a definite contribution to the progress of the Baptist denomination and the Kingdom of God. If some passing impulse should suggest the thought that the plans adopted for the operation of this school contained some potential elements inimical to Baptist principles, a more sober reflection and judgment should lead to the more pleasing con viction, to the contrary. Under the legal plans adopted it is not possible for any persons or organizations, except our National Baptist Convention, to dominate the teaching and thought of this Seminary And going further, if they would, they could not, and going further still, they couldn't if they would. What I mean is this, the force of correct Bantist principles wouldn't permit us to allow any powers whatscever, other than ourselves, to shape and control our own thinking and those self-same principles would prohibit true Baptists nom even making the opposite suggestion.

Good Bantists such as the Southern Baptist Convention would not seek to give, I know, what they themselves would not accept. Believing also in the integrity and the altruistic motives of those coperating with us in the establishment of this school, we therefore conclude that the exercise of untrammeled conscience and personal thinking, ancient and fundamental rights of Bantists shall be as much a lasting heritage and possession of this school as they are those of any other truly Bantist Seminary. This does not and should not mean that we shall be impervious to the helpful experience of our Baptist friends not gnrolled as members of this Convention.

The B. Y. P. U. Board.

The work of training our young people and other church members in the rights, duties and privileges of church membership has been largely delegated to B.Y.P.U.'s of our churches which our National B.Y.P.U. Board represents. Every successful pastor knows that of all the auxiliaries of a Baptist church, a healthy, well-functioning B.Y.P.U. is the hardest to maintain. But the experimental and uncertain period in the existence of our B.Y.P.U. work has already been passed. No modern successful church would think of existing without striving to preserve the energy of its young people; imparting and placing within their reach religious knowledge, helping them to discover their religious resources, themselves, their obligations and responsshillities, and also energizing them with those spiritual dynamics without which they are never effectual Christian workers. The progress made in this difficult work is and must ever be attributed to the vision, wise program, tireless patience, great enthusiasm of our National B.Y.P.U. Board. Its guiding genius is without question our senior secretary in point of hard indefatigable service, if not the senior one in age. Being experiencially advanced over the other secretaries he has unselfishly dedicated it all and himself, likewise, to the interest of all of our Boards, and at all times to the combined interests of the Convention. This Board led the way in carrying out the Convention's mandate of Board incorporations with the Couvention's ownership and management features or provisions unequivecally set out in their charters. We must give the work of our young people a larger place in our churches and other denominational organizations. We can in a very effective manner help to do this by aiding in all the ways we can throughout the year the work of our B.Y.P.U. Board.

The Church Extension Board.

The conditions and perils of this Board were brought to the attention of the Executive Board in its January meeting. There it was discovered that the Church Extension Board had made and was continuing to make debts, which it could not hope to pay and which threatened the Convention's life and Integrity. The Executive Board, seeing the dangers ahead, requested the Extension Hoard in no indefinite or vague terms to suspend its work until this meeting of the Convention. The Executive Board, thereupon, immediately began to make efforts to satisfy the Extension Board's creditors and retire its galling debts. We wish to report to you that this Board owed January, 1923, $..... but by making cash payments wise and fair adjustments, we have reduced that amount to $..... We have done more, we have helped to restore the confidence which some churches had lost in their pastors who led them to make with the Church Extension Board unfitled contracts for the construction of church houses. More, we have helped to win back to the support of the Convention some of its erstwhile, though for a season luke warm, most loyal supporters. We have helped to maintain the Convention's honor and credit, and postponed or cancelled some annoying and threatening lawsuits. I am certain that the work of building Church Extension Board is a legitimate work for this Convention to engage in, but I believe that these are duties which may be discharged mainly by our Home Mission and Sanday School Publishing Boards. The work of building churches is the work of the Home Mission Board, and that of making and furnishing church supplies might be safely assigned to our Publishing Board.

The Benefit Board.

in the annual meeting of the Secretaries of the Boards of this Convention, the secretary of the Benefit Board convinced all present of his technical knowledge of the opportunities and timeliness of this Board, and of his thorough knowledge of the legal requirements under which it should be operated. There is a place and work for this Board. And if our Convention would plan to use and monopolize the dormant energy which this Board is destined to use, the Convention would thereby increase its own usefulness and satisfy the age's demand for a more practical religion. The members of our churches should find our denomination interested in all the legitimate demands of their bodies and their souls. There is no need of our condemning the rapid encroachment of secular institutions, which vie with the church in matters which should concern the church, when we as Christians make no efforts to satisfy through the church the crying earthly needs of our members. The tendency of modera Christianity, or old Christianity as interpreted in this age, is toward the practical, the social and humanitarian aspects of the gospel. It has taken the devotees of Christianity a long time to learn the lesson that man is a component being having body and soul, that these bear a close companionship and relation, and that whatever affects either, in a ceratin way and to a degree, affects the other. That the body is the house of the soul that Christianity essays to save first-that Christianity is destined to save physical life as well as the spiritual. that it is not solely an after equipment, a future book, but a present gift and possession as well, and that if we would do the best for man spiritually we must not forget his body, which is the medium of the soul. In some of the past periods of the church, religion was thought to be, as propounded by Schiermacher, simply a feeling of dependence opon God, and beginning and ending there, and the most consistent believers were those who built Godward, never considering man, with whom they lived. Kant thought and taught that religion was morally in actious, and accordingly, a brilliant array of moral codes and requirements sprang into existence, too many to be numbered, much less obeyed. Hagel and Socrates believed that religion was knowledge alone and developed an abundant class of rationalists and profound scholars; in the Christian church there were those that swayed It with the theory that Christianity was a creed, and the church spent its genius in weaving out creeds, fighting theological battles and prosecuting church wars, but now the best, the most virile and aggressive type of Christianity is not expressed in its scholarship, not alone in its Codward aspects, not in propounding brilliant coremonies, not in the building up of creeds, not so much in the church's material wealth as in that aspect in which the church looks down to the earth where it exists, witnessing and relieving the suffering conditions of man's body as well as those of his soul. Our churches and religious organizations, to track Jesus, must not forget or be indifferent toward the physical needs of the bodies which house the souls which the gospel aims to save ultimately. The above being true, to help provide a satisfying support for our membership when "it rains and the winds are never weary" is a rightcous duty. In the light of the Board's opportunities, our duty, and what the Convention's attorney has said respecting this Board's legal status and right to do business. let us place with it some of our business.

I believe that this Board should be empowered to do something more tangible for the retired, worn-out pasturs, who gave their chivalrous mandared to build up our denomination. They planted where we today reap, and we prove ourselves unworthy of that great line of illustrious predecessors if we live in ceiled houses while they are exposed and suffer for the want of life's necessities. I do, therefore, verily believe that this Convention should establish a Baptist Minister's Home, and that the task of organizing and establishing this home thental be assigned to the Benefit Board.

The Sunday School Publishing Board.

About a Publishing Board in the National Baptist Convention there clusters more fascinating, romantic and tragical history than about all the other Boards combined. Such a Board was the slogan and uditary call to our scattered denominational units during its first efforts at National organization and coherency. It is not easy to think of a National Eaptist Convention Publishing Board without the revival of a tragic and bitter memory, reminiscent of the sorest experiruce of our Convention's existence. It recalls a painful past where sur confidence and inexperience were capitalized. But thank God that day is passed except for its memory and the hard earned, most profitable lossons it left us. The present Publishing Board of our Convention is now organized and operated under recently passed special legal enactments which anchor it unequivocally in matters of ownership and management in the National Baptist Convention. This Convention knows the plan and work of this Board. It has a monopoly of the publishing, printing and the creation of literature for our denomination. It is, therefore, our more industrial and commercial Found It is missionary and educational, but it has also in a marked way the revenue producing feature. This being true, this Board will be tranght with untold possibilities. It pleases us to state now that the Beard is creating and distributing promptly, a grade of litctains that tume should be ashamed of, and for which nobody will bate to apologize, or make an explanation. This race must produce its own sacred literature just as it has been able to have and be led by its own preachers. A distinctive race religious literature is as essential as a distinctive race clergy. Only the shortsighted ones among us can look with diffidence on the efforts of this Board, if there is a margin for improvement in this Board's work:

> "I would not sit in the scorner's tent Nor hurl the cynic's ban, But let me live by the side of the road And be a friend to man."

The New Publishing Plant.

This year our Publishing Board has worked with, and aided much: the Committee this Convention appointed to superintend the construction of the new home for our Publishing Plant. The building of this plant is an urgent necessity and the Convention's most alluring objective. The Publishing Board needs larger and more convenient unarters. Here, its revenue would be easily and rapidly increased, Its influence and opportunities for good service would be amazingly multiplied. And going further, building this plant would be the completion of an unfinished task that would do more than any other one thing could do to vindicate the justness of our position-"Convention Ownership and Control," and cement and win back to the support of correct Baptist principles and this Convention, many loyal Baptists who would vie with any right loving l'aptists in their efforts to do no violence to well-established Baptist polity and principles. The Publishing Board and the Bullding Committee will make a pleasing report here on the building of the Publishing House. Because this project is also both an educational and missionary agency we should struggle hard to bring it to a speedy and successful completion. It will help to make permanent our evangelical and missionary endeavors. Missionary work and evangelism would evaporate, be a stimutating sentiment only, if not attended with and followed by proper intellectual development. An abiding Christianity is first an appeal to the intellect. "What think ye of Christ?" "He that believeth." "Faith cometh by hearing." The crying need of our churches today is edification, religious education. The printed page is a potential educational factor. In proclaiming divine truth it is next only in significance. eloquence and power to the human voice and the oral message. It helps to give depth to Christian character.

The Women's Auxiliary Convention.

In all the world the greatest single power for good is a reflued, truly converted, spirit-filled woman. Certainly Goethe was attempting to portray and declare her exalted influence when he said:

"The woman soul leadeth us. Upward and on."

Men of genius and plety never grow tired in attributing to plots women their inspiration, greatness and achievements. Poets and painters, soldiers and statesmen, saints and sages delight to crows the brow of noble womanhood with wreaths of undying devotion and praise. Woman influenced or helped to influence man in his fall and

In every religion she has been accorded an exalted position. Artemis. Diana, Zens, Athena, Hestla and Vesta were important Grecian and Roman goddesses. Some of these were represented by sacred fire, showing that they were the priests of the flames of plety kindled in the hearts of man. Judalsm honored and relied on, for its abiding success, an obedient, God-fearing womanhood. She met Christianity on its very threshold, ushered it into time, from whence she was saluted-"Blessed art thou." And may I here state that in woman, Christianity has always had a warm, fearless patron. Her devoutness, credulous heart, musical thoughts and her tender sentimenta constiluic a line sub-soil for religion. From the study of history, one can at once discover that the progress of Christianly is inseparable from the life, faith, picty and purity of women. The annals of early Christianity show the estimate Christ and the Apostles placed on the influence and labors of women. Further, the Baptist denomination. because of the influence of religiously consecrated women, must properly evaluate and use them in executing the program of God's Ringdom. The women of the Women's Auxiliary Convention have inhabed the spirit of their most worthy prototypes and have followed, if they have not ted, the fortunes of this Convention and our Denomination. Their presence here today, their unselfish labors in every church by the side of hard-worked, often discouraged and misuadershool pastors, shows their loyalty and willingness to dedicate their lives to Christ. Boast, if you will about your numbers, past achievements and our present power and possessions, but if you would be fair when you catalogue the names of the Convention's most unselfish promoters, you will write first in bold letters the names of many faithful women whose faith and unselfish services rightly class them as being more useful than Joan of Arc or any of the ancient heroines.

Speaking now definitely concerning our Women's Auxiliary Convention. I would say if it is to be to this Convention what it should be-AN AU(XILIARY-such as a local Women's Missionary Society or Circle is to its church, this Convention must express a deeper and larger interest in the program and needs of the Women's Auxiliary Convention. The Women's Auxiliary Convention organically establishes the basis of its proper relations to this Convention, and this relation this Convention acknowledges, but without discharging, I lear, the just responsibilities which inhere in its relationship to the Women's Auxiliary Convention. The Convention, if fair, owes the Women's Auxiliary Convention its friendly aid in helping it to solve its problems and meet its financial obligations. A Budget and a Campaign for this Convention's obligations should include the financial obligations of the Women's Anxillary Convention, the presence of its Executive officers in the making of financial plans and budgets, and the harmony and aid of both Conventions' workers in their efforts to cover the same field to raise the money required for the combined sympathetic interests of both Conventions. Reasoning upon the same basis which I feel is both logically and Baptistically correct the Women's Convention must where it has problems settle them in the same fair ways and under the correct methods employed by all similar Bantist organizations. It should not be the desire of any wise, fair patriotic member of our denomination to tear down and disrupt for any reasons any particular phase of our work. This denomination would cover with well deserved condemnation any partisan who through pride or projudice would impede the growth of any one of our struggling enterprises. But may we keep in mind also that all of our work is supported mainly by voluntary contributions and that contributions for any denominational enterprise are largely increased or diminished as every real or seeming problem in connection with such enterprise is made transparent or solved in a satisfactory manner. Only a wise, just, fearless patriotism can save permanently all of the interests of the entire denomination.

The Secretaries of Our Boards.

The nature of the organization of this Convention assigning Boards primarily the task of realizing the Convention's objectives, gives the Convention's Boards and secretaries the most important and strategic positions of our Denomination. It clothes the Boards with a deal of power and commits to them arduous tasks which the ordinary man cannot perform.

Thus, it will ever be, the services of the best, wisest, most latelligent, transparently honest men will be needed to direct the work of these Boards. Men who will not be offended when they are now and then reminded that they have been called to be stewards of the denomination's heritage, remembering also that stewards must give faithful services and satisfactory accountings. I believe our Secretaries should be men who have already succeeded in their previous positions: that they should give their full time to the work of the Boards; that they should be well enough conversant with proper business methods so as to spend the Denomination's money economically for the success of the Denomination. I believe also that they should be the best paid men in the Denomination, and to do well the difficult tasks assigned them they will need and certainly deserve your sympathy and encouragement. I am pleased to report to you that our Secretaries have worked hard and heroically this year. They have been my experienced, sympathetic counsellors and my most encouraging, constant companions. Their labors have not been circumscribed by the boundaries of their respective Boards, but by the combined, varied interests of the Convention. The two main objectives of the Convention for this year-the building of the Seminary and the Publishing House-have had the unqualified support of every Board and Secretary. This is as it should be for a Secretary who could not make and keep a wise prespective of the whole, the Conventions, to see that it is greater than a Board, would be too blind a partisan to direct successfully the work of any particular Board of the Convention.

The National Baptist Voice.

I contend yet for the force of that aphorism: "The pen is mighlighthan the sword." This should inspire us to maintain the Voice, the Denomination's untrammeded Weekly Love Letter. We should all to present most loyal editor by giving him some additional competitive present most loyal editor by giving him some additional competitive well-paid contributors on live Homiletical. Doctrinal. Ecclestas and current Theological questions. One editor, however, competant ambitious, connot do it all. Again, the Voice must be more with eliculated or the intelligent progress of our work will be slow. On pastors should seek to have all of their members read the Comments.

tien's Organ. The Board at Nashville, in January, appointed a Comnittee to suggest a plan for a closer, more profitable management of this paper. We hope to have here the benefit of their wisdom so that the ensuing year will witness the increased efficiency of the Voice.

The Baptist World Alliance,

This great assembly had its first meeting in London, 1905; its second in Philadelphia, 1911, and its third in Stockholm, in July of this year. It is an assembly of the world's Baptists, representing about sixly nations and countries and a constituency of more than eleven millions. The purpose of the Alliance is to manifest the essential oneness of Baptists of all countries, races and colors over the world and to promote among them the spirit of fellowship, service and cooperation, recognizing the independence of all churches and other Baptist organizations. It is a mammoth meeting, void of formal external rule and an ecclesiastical head. It is a meeting where unity is voluntary, vital, and the consequence of an agreement on fundamental principles. This, with Baptists, gives the only true and effective type of brotherhood, and whites and blacks, the north and the south, the east and the west, the red man and the brown man, one and all came together forgetting the color of their skin, and other race peculiarities, being known as children of one great family interested In their Father's business.

The meeting at Stockholm met at an anspicious time and place. Just now the world needs the cheering notes of Baptist principles and the consolation of the Baptist message; such as the Stockholm meeting counciated. Your President was sorely torn between remaining here for the call of duties on the home base and duties the Stockholm meeting imposed upon us. I was irresistibly led to the conclusion that I could do more good by abandoning the trip to Stockholm. I remembered our inexperience in this office, and that the Conventional year was reduced to nine months instead of the usual twelve months, and that my service given at home was my only prudential alternative. I can say to you, however, I worked hard to secure a satisfactory exhibit of our denomination, to see that we were well represented as messengers and as participants on the Alliance Program. Our brethren were there and the pleasing news is universal that they acquitted themselves creditably and honorably. Dr. C. H. Parrish served as our executive and Dr. E. Arlington Wilson as our scribe as per our appointment. They, with the other measengers attending the Alliance, will make some very inspiring reports here.

Proper Interracial Relations the Acid Test of Civilization and Christlanity.

The most serious question before the American people today is not that of commerce, transportation, agriculture, finance, education, labor, capital or even the World's Court, but it is the question of America finding the proper relations between its most dominant human groups, blacks and whites. It caunot in truth be said that the wise men of America do not know what to do with the subject of proper interractal relations. They have done everything else in the past and to fail here is a reflection on their past history and boasted claims of greatness. The great trouble here is not a lack of knowledge, but a lack of courage. A few brave, wise men ended the existence of human slavery and America's next worst plague, the licensed salom and now, if they would, they could adjust peaceably, the ever tritiant subject of interracial relations. This is no question for demagages and designing politicians. It is not a thing to be delegated to social workers and man-made institutions, but a thing that is a vital feature of Christianity. It is a difficult, mooted task but Christianity offers an unfailing remedy. Christianity uproots prejudice, it sets men right with God and right with their fellowmen. It forms a brother hood, because it makes possible first a satisfying, divine Fatherhood, And it is not possible to have God as one's Father without possessing a passionate love of man. Without this, a red, brown, white or black man's religion is vold. The Negro has never, in America, found or been permitted to assume his rightful place. The "cupidity of commerce" brought him here and enslaved him. Since his freedom hy some he has been thought of as a pitiful ward, and by others as the subject of a former enslavement who should for this be sympathized with and aided. But such traditional and sentimental reasons are inadequate and unsatisfactory basis of correct racial relations.

The interracial program that fails to appraise the Negro as a man, with lofty heart-throbbing ambitions, a liberty-loving man, one that desires the right to be, the right to have and the right to do, as all other human beings; a man who craves for and loves justice; a man who knows he has rights, what those rights are and knows also when he is deprived of his rights, is a program, not born of justice and righteousness and will prove to be insufficient and temporary in its existence and results. Today the Negro is not seeking pity, charlir and gifts, but equal justice. He is asking for no black man's place in America, no black man's special legislation, but he is contending for a man's chance, for equal opportunities, and God helping him, he helleves he is going to get them. He is not seeking to get away from his own race, but he is determined that the unjust barriers that American prejudice has encompassed blin with shall be broken down It is not our race we should spurn or leave, but intelligent Negrots are getting away from those unfair and cruel provisions, proscrip tions that some would associate with their color. We want to live in certain areas of cities, not because others may be living there, but because these areas have sanitary and well-kept streets, while the areas conceded to Negroes are never well-improved and maintaine with public funds though they may help pay taxes. Sometimes those sections of cities tacitly allotted Negroes are the political paws of some corrupt persons, where the vice of all races is commercialized Negroes have labored to make America and believe that they are entitled to the rights and privileges which others, no more loyal time they, enjoy without restrictions. The Negro was with Columbus wie he first set his foot on American soil. He accompanied other arrives of America on their perilous journeys. He helped to drive back subjugate the original inhabitants of this country. He met and e tered the dangers incident to holding this territory for our He bore the heat of America's acorching summer, the blasting of its cold winter, changing its dense forests into luxuriant heliproduction. Her rich fields have responded to the magic blow brawn and muscles. His bones lie bleached and scattered bigdway from Jamestown to the regions of the North an

Poles. He has been patriotic, a "one-souled" American, to the manner born. He has produced no traitors, but in times of war has opened his hosom to shimmering sabers and death-dealing cannon. He has solight on every battlefield and though this nation has not always given to nor protected him in the exercise of his rights, he stands ready to light any foe that would dare challenge or imperit our country's honor and security. He wants Old Glory to float high in the air and its azure, the emblem of heaven and constancy, to include him as a subject to be protected. He wants its stars, the emblems of equality, to grant him equal rights and equal opportunities and he uants no stone for bread, and no lyncher's rope or any other form of cruelty and injustice when he seeks his liberty. "He is a man and nothing human is foreign to him." He is God's creation, God's child and the friend and brother of all. Upon this basis must all proper race relations be built. Dr. Gambrell said: "I ask nothing for myself nor my children after me that I would dery to the Negro race." Suppose all men were as fair as are the sentiments expressed by that great Commoner. If they were, the turmoils of the hour would certainly be ended. In this connection may I state it as the expressed feelings of the most conservative ones among us that the Tuskegee Hospital episode is a shocking, and painful reversal of a long-established custom and interracial policy, which reversal has unsettled more Negroes than any other known occurrence. Tuskegee, where the Tuskegee Institute is located has been the cynosure of an uncounted number, working with unabated optimism for race peace and justice. Now if the temple itself is invaded and desecrated, what is there left to hope for? Whither shall its devotees go for inspiration? If the green tree is smitten, what of the dry? If the source is bitter what of the entire stream? Will the history and labors of Booker T. Washington be blotted out and discounted in the frenzy and maelstrom of blind and hitter selfish passions? Unless God intervenes and the whites be fair with the race in this instance it appears now that the hands on the dial of progress and the promotion of racial sympathy and cooperation will be ruthlessly turned

When I think of the dreadful, and anxious days through which we are passing, I cannot refrain from counselling you to stand for the support of law and order and to be not moved by the wild delusions of ungoidly interests and the influence of blind, designing men. Let no one deceive you with subtle words to contend for license in lieu of liberty. Just now the full weight of the influence of certain dema-Rogues and lawless factors are being brought to bear against the Eighteenth Amendment. They are appealing to the ignorance, prejudice and greed of certain citizens, hoping thereby to nullify and commercialize the nullification of one of the beneficent legal enactments ever written into our national Constitution. Take this warning for what it is worth, the American nation has written only nineteen amendments to its Constitution in nearly a century and a half, and not one of these has ever been repeated. If selfish men are ever able to nullify and abrogate the Eighteenth Amendment, those selfsame men will thereby set a precedent that will lead to the repeal of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments, acts that involve immediately our civil rights and destiny. We nust yet convince some that they cannot use us and our suffrage to thwart or vitiate the reign of law. This is the only wise and just position for you to take and herein lies your safety and only sure defense; for where lawless ness reigns, we have a cruel application of the policy of the survival of the fittest; the exploitation and the suppression of the weak.

The Migration of Negroes From the South to the North.

The migration of Negroes from the South to the North is a striking phenomenon of race friction and no movement since the Emancipation of the Negro has had so many potential eventualties as this one, yet concerning which some otherwise loquacious leaders have teen tempted to maintain an unbroken silence. Because of its importance, and because a virile, active Christianity has always selved and appropriated live economic conditions, making them contribute to religious reforms, I should be considered timid and derelict, II this did not refer to this question.

Why This Migration?

The World War helped the Negro, for it has made him conscious of his inherent powers and rich opportunities, and feels keenly the present world's unrest. Questioning these migrants you will find that this movement is a strike against an unsatisfactory order of things. He tells his own story. He wants better schools, equal civil rights, and justice in the courts. He wants higher wages and better living conditions; he wants better transportation accommodations and a just distribution of public funds to take care of dependent members of his race; he wants the abolishment of the convict lease system. and the end of a class of overseers, the passing of certain cropping, tenantry systems and non-settlement practices now in vogue in many localities. He wants freedom from fears of mobs and lynchers and from all group rule, visible or invisible; he desires safety and the guarantee of better police protection; he wants interracial misunderstanding and prejudice wiped out, and restored confidence in his white neighbor: he wants economic freedom, undistrubed industrial opportunities and in many cases better religious environments.

Dr. Dillard, of Virginia, the manager of the Jeanes and Slater Finds for Negro education in the South, said: "The desire of any people or class of people to improve their conditions of living is a natural and healthy desire and their effort to gain such improvement is a commendable effort. The migration of Negroes from one part of the country to another, like all racial and popular inferations in history expresses such desire and effort. Whether the movement results in the desired advancement is another matter. In any case the desire and effort, however originated, deserve commendation, and condemnation." This quotation contains both a commendation and caution. It commends migrations and the desire of any class of people to improve their living conditions but offers a warning when it hints that migration may not always bring the desired relief. His opinion seems to be that a people migrating for relief is more to be desired than a settled, ever-dissatisfied people.

Some Effects of This Movement.

It will help the South because it will democratize and dignity all gainful labor. It will lead to intensive farming, increasing the yiel of fields which have produced large harvests, much in spite of the present class of labor and farming systems. It will help to substitute machinery and a higher grade of labor for the manual labor now being used almost exclusively. It will lead the South to turn to more manufacturing. Now some Southern states producing the greatest amount of certain raw commodities have not a single manufacturing plant to finish such. States now having a larger Negro population than whites and which entertatin fears of Negro domination, employ force, nolitical makeshifts and sundry illegal devices to offset Negro rule, and preserve white supremacy, will later find their Negro population reduced to a minority by this migration and they can in truth be real democracies and not political contradictions. This will raise them above their present perils of Ku Klux Klan or group rule which has been incited much by racial antipathy and which today is the greatest pienace to popular authority. Already it has caused many states to study de novo for the first time, the Negro, his condition, his needs and his desires.

Now they are willing to make a program WITH and not one FOR us. From many farms already the overseer has given an indefinite variation. In some sections better transportations, better educational advantages and better housing conditions have been secured. This migration will discover a new labor element, whose status will not be affected by the sentiments of slavery as the present Negro labor element is. This will help to build up unquestionably just industrial relations and add to the honest, economic growth of the South.

Its Effect on the Negro.

Since slavery the Negro has been the beneficiary of certain traditions and sentiments in the South not calculated to inspire individual initiative and self-reliance. In his relation in the North, these elements will not enter to fix his industrial status. Here, he is appraised as a labor factor by the measure applied to all laborers. This will help to make him a more dependable, efficient, thrifty, industrial element. The Negro migrant will be given a larger share of his civil rights and justice, and will become a more intelligent, patriotic citizen. He will give unusual impetus to the rapid development of his own constructive business marts and trades in the North. There will be attempts made to use Negroes to vitiate the strength of uniquized labor. This perhaps will be flames that will produce another race fend, or "labor massacre," such as the East St. Louis riot. But Negro labor in the North will lead finally to the breaking down of the labor limitations that union labor projects between itself and Negro labor. The migrant is also brought closer to what has erstwhile heen long distance white friends and his presence in great numbers will lost an ancient sentiment which the North has hitherto borne for Negroes. This migration is making the subject of proper interracial relations a universally practical question and will hasten its correct, final adjustment. Religiously, the migrants are adding fire and a holy enthusiasm to our church work in the great centers of the North; and here more in religious work is being done now than at any time in the past. This migration will help keep Northern factories open and facilitate Americanism, for it will be an Americanorn, English-speaking people coming in. They will help to build up America's wealth, for all they make will be spent here and they will also help to bridge the chasm between labor and capital, making strikes less possible.

This movement will give a temporary economic setback to the South. It will take the Negro from a locality in which he appears to be indigenous. It will be the abrupt instruction of a rural population into the more complex urban life, a transition which is not easy and which is not without its perils. Sometimes the liberty of the migrant's new home is so suddenly thrust upon him, that he may, in his lost perience, misuse it and hinder the race's chances. The concession and environments of cities increase surprisingly the death rate of the Negro. The whirlpools of sin often are fatal to the simple and the unwary country youth. The evils of cities often completely incapacitate so many who while they lived in the country were useful Chris tians. This migration is drying up our rural population, which we must have, for the country has even been the great source of our race life and great men. It is discretegrating in a day, many of our best churches and associations and must be serious in its consequences on our Denomination. Many, to migrate, are giving away practically their lifetime earnings. Some must of choice and of necessity always live in the rural parts and these must not be deserted or forgotten. They are God's people. Let us impress on those sections where our people are dissatisfied the only remedy and the only unfailing cure. Dr Dillard said again: "The genuine progress of a country depends upon the spread of good conditions of living and good chances of healthy improvement among all the people of the country, not only among these of any class or race, or profession, or occupation, but among all, including especially those who have hitherto had the least chance through power, education, or inheritance.

I am persuaded to believe that if you, because of the lack of wadom or courage for any reasons, refuse to make this migration, which is a providential occurrence, contribute to the economic stability of this country and the promotion of racial peace, justice and good wit, if you do not now lead the right way, you will be neglecting a visibility for which neglect a hitherto patient, faithful constituency will justily condemn and desert you.

The Convention's Finance.

Some recent statistics show that while our National Baptis Covention has a membership of 3,400,000, the combined membership of Colored Methodist churches is 1,382,764, and they gave as $4.30 per capita while we gave only $1.51. This is not a pleas 5 perison. Of course statistics are not complete because Baptia which a liberal independent form of government that we cann sather as easily, accurately and completely our statistics as those tions which have a uniform, overhead government. But it is not a pleas of the statistic of th tion of the church in Kingdom work, we could more easily raise the means we need. We must contend in this Convention for a larger church representation and for the expression of the will of the churches. We must encourage our churches to emphasize the importance of Christian missions. Some one has said, "Christian missions are the breath of a New Testament church." "Lift up your eyes and look on the fields" must be now our slogan and missionary incentive. We must not lightly estimate the value of religious consecration and lessons in Christian stewardship.

Dr. Brink said: "The money that belongs by every right to God but is kept Back from him by his people is probably the greatest hindrance to vital spirituality that is in the world today." I do verily believe that the Convention should adopt here an adequate budget, and have the Secretaries of our Boards with additional workers push and superintend the collection of the amount required. In this way we would promote the influence and usefulness of the Boards and economize and reduce overhead expenses.

This year we found ourselves in need of more ready money than we have been collecting in the past. This emergency led us to feature for this session of the Convention and the year 1923, the collection of $100,000. We had our brethren in several regional conferences and the Board of Directors to approve the "Drive," ere we published or began to promote it. Dr. L. G. Jordan, with a Promotion Board, has pushed vigorously the campaign.

And to you belong the honor and credit for whatever success that may attend the "Drive." And on the other hand if there is not a proper measure of success following this "Drive" you, one and all, will be held responsible for that. Your President and Board may submit the best plans and reasons for their success, but you, my brethren, are the leaders of God's churches. You are the key men, and if you will not do your duty, nothing but failure is inevitable and God will charge it to your neglect. I hope you have come prepared to aid in this "Drive," for this is the acid test of your devotion to this Convention and the Kingdom of Christ.

Our Blessed Dead.

It is with profound sadness that I come to the place in this message where I must chronicle and call the roll of some of our best-known, well-beloved workers who went home to their reward since we closed our meeting at St. Louis last year. In scanning the list as reported to me I would record with high and unfeigned appreciation of their useful service and with deep sorrow for their earthly absence and loss, the death of the following:

This is a long and heart touching list. It contains the names of two of our National officers-the sweet-spirited Dr. Parks and the heroic Dr. A. R. Robinson. There are others there no less known and useful and remembered by us because of their labors of love and loyally to the Kingdom's interest as promoted by this Convention. In their respective places, under adverse, agonizing circumstances they fought the good fight, fluished the course and got a furloagh from earth and its tolls to be, I feel with Dr. Morris, all of our sainted dead and the righteous God who saved them, whom they served and desired so much to see. "Sweet spirits, glorious spirits, transported spirits, blessed spirits," who took the charlot and the equipage of Elijah and went home on quick time. In the blessed Bible there are beatitudes for the giver, for the pardoned, for those who hunger and mourn, for the pure and heart, and for many others But the book closed with a beatitude for the blessed dead. It is a beatitude that penetrates the gloom of their death chambers. "Write blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." Here is a reversal of unnided human experience and the blotting out of the verdict of uninspired reason. For it hangs about a death scene an impeneurable mist, a taunting conjecture and a provoking uncertainty. But laspire tion in connection with our blessed dead dispels all of this, it wraps around their graves the peans of rejoicing and rapturous victors that Paul so touchingly voiced. It conquers and then mocks death, despoils and laughs at the grave, "O death where is thy sting; O grave where is thy victory." Our blessed dead have conquered and gone home to rest. Being weary with the journey, tired of warfare, burdens and disappointments they gladly exchanged the cross for a crown, fait for sight and hope for a blessed, satisfying realization. They real from their labors.

Since this is true, let us not mourn as those who have no hope and future. Let us not weep over the departure of our friends—tet us bid them good bye, just for a season, knowing they are asleep and absent from us a short night only, and gone on a journey just shead of us. Soon we shad join them, but not now, and for the time heing we shall say to one and all of them—"Good night, but not farowell."

> "Sleep on, heloved, sleep, and take (by rest; Lay down (by head upon thy Saviour's hreast; We love thee well; but Jesus loves thee best— Good night! Good night! Good night!

> Calm is thy slumber as an infant's sleep;
> But thou shaft wake no more to toil and weep;
> Thine is a perfect rest, secure and deep—
> Good night!

Until the shadows from this earth are east; Futil he gathers in His sheaves at last; Until the twilight gloom is overpast——Good might!

Until the Easter glory lights the skies; Until the dead in Jesus shall rise, And He shall come, but not in lowly guise— Good pight!

Until made beautiful by Love Divine,
Thou, in the likeness of thy Lord shalt shine,
And He shall bring that golden grown of thine—
Good night!

Only 'good night,' beloved—not 'farewell.' A little while and all His saints shall dwell to hallowed union, indivisible—

Good night!

Until we meet again before His throne. Clothed in the sputiess robe He gives His own. Until we know even as we are known -Good night!"

Conclusion:

Thank God, we, inexperienced in the art of electing a new President of the Convention, did after all, get through at St. Louis leaving causist, I hope, but the deafer of all to promote in all legitimate ways the work of the Convention. The mantle of leadership, upon your vote, was transferred to me in fine spirit and choice words by Dr. Parks as his last official act. From him for you, I accepted the office being thoroughly convinced of the Divine element in my election, redizing at that time mine was no prosaic or easy task. I knew that I had to try to fill a place occupied for 28 years by one of Nature's notheren; a pleasing presiding officer, a man of immaculate character and the most forceful and charming leader of men our race and demonination has ever produced.

Immediately after my inauguration, I set about to make a survey of the Convention, and before I had completed the task, I was forced to pray as did Solomon: "And now, O Lord my God, thou hast made thy servant king instead of David, my father; and I am but a little child: I know not how to go out or come in. And thy servant is in the midst of thy people which thou hast chosen, a great people, that cannot be numbered nor counted for multitude. Give, therefore, thy servant an understanding heart to judge thy people, and I may discern between good and had; for who is able to judge this day so great a member?"

This prayer and its sentiment influenced me to seek close and immediate acquidintance with the local leaders and workers in the states. I have been led to believe that personal talks and a series of regional conferences would help to more thoroughly democratice the Convention's work and its Interests. Working under this impulse I have made many visits, traveled extensively and labored hard throughout the year.

My brethren, I have not done much, not even all my own heart has desired to do, but I am sure of one thing! I have done my bealn my closing. I would say this Convention must not stop until the Commission of Jesus Christ is made a reality in the earth. There cught to be a holy discontent lingering in our hearts until the time when the Convention shall more perfectly approach the ideals set by the Author of New Testament missions. No accomplishments, no attainments less than these should stop our strivings. He has marked and surveyed our every sten. I, therefore, exhort you to follow him. When Constantine, the Emperor, laid off Constantinople, he called together his engineers and began tracing the walls and fortifications of that capitol city with the point of his sward. His outlines were so daring and adventurous that his engineers inquired with astonishment, "How far shall we carry the lines?" Constantine answered, "Until he stops who goes before you."

Jesus Christ is your and my leader. He has made for us a great program. He has marked off by His cross our course and duty. When the way is not an easy one and when we grow tired and are tempted to give up, we cry. "How much further are we to go?" And I answer for him. Go "until He stops who goes before you."

In our Benevolent, Education, Homerand Foreign Mission Work in contending for His principles, you must not stop, because the plumed Knight of Heaven, the Captain of your Salvation, Jesus Christ, goes en ahead of you. And now, may I for myself, assure you that I am willing to follow at any cost the Interests of our Convention and God's Kingdom and until He stops who goes before me, for I am His and He is mine.

"It is not I who have written
It is not I who have sung.
I'm the chord that Another has smitten
The chime that Another has rung.
I give but the things I am given,
I share but the things that I see:
I draw, but my pencil is driven
By a force that is master of me."

Recommendations.

After much careful thinking, I submit the following recommendations: First: That a Committee on revision of the Convention's Constitution be appointed here; that said Committee report to the Board of Directors, whereupon the Board will publish in the National Baptist Voice, sixty days before our next annual meeting its action concerning the Committee's report, and submit finally the same to the Convention in its 1924 session.

Second: That the following recommendation made in 1917 by Or. Morris and approved by the Convention be re-affirmed by the Convention and the Board of Directors, be and are hereby empowered to execute this order:

"That the Home Mission Board of the National Raptist Convenlion he authorized to extend the cooperative missionary work to the North and West, provided arrangements can be made for such cooperation with the Northern Raptist Convention."

Third: That the mandates given by the Convention at Indianapolis, 1920, to the effect that all the Boards of this Convention should amend their charters in such a way as to anchor unquestionably said Boards in the Convention, and to stipulate in said charters in o indefinite manner, Convention ownership and control, be hereby again approved and ordered executed forthwith; for there are uncounted perifs in needless delays.

Fourth: That the Benefit Board be hereby authorized to reorganize and operate as a Convention enterprise, a Home for the aged, needy ministers of the Convention and Denomination.

Fifth: That the new Publishing House be designated and known as the E. C. Morris Memorial Building. This honor we certainly owe to our much beloved lamented leader.

Sixth: That we adjourn here to meet in Special Board Meeting, Nashythe, December, 1923, when we shall complete the $100,000 Drive and lay the corner stone of the Publishing House now in course of erection.

Seventh: That the office of historiographer in keeping with the proper constitutional requirements be created, and that some competent person be appointed to give full time to the gathering and compilation of vital denominational statistics and historic facts. That the compensation of said historiographer he set by the Board of Directors

Eighth: That the work hithero done by or assigned to the Church Extension Board be done by the Sunday School and Home Mission Boards in the manner indicated in my annual message.

Ninth: That the Board of Directors be hereby authorized and emhowered to close up all matters of the Church Extension Board, and make the proper division of its work between the two Boards already hauped in this connection.

Touch: That since a new addition will be made to the work of the time Mission Board, and since it will be required bereafter to build thurch houses and expected to make property and real estate deals. I therefore, doesn't wise and recommend that that Board be chartered; and that the Board of Directors be authorized to take out said chartler.

Floventh: That this Convention appoint seven (7) persons, and prepared the Northern Baptist Convention and the Southern Baptist Convention to appoint seven (7) each, all of whom shall constitute a commission to study the common problems of all American Baptists, and seek to promote comity and good will, and the progress of a great denomination, one in hopes and destiny.

Twolfth: That we empower and give the Foreign Mission Board the financial aid required to erect in Africa immediately one outstanding hospital and educational institution such as I have referred to in this address.

Thirteenth: That we clothe the Seminary Commission with the full power required to organize and complete rapidly the National Bantist Theological Seminary.

Fourteenth: That the Board of Directors be required to publish the minutes within sixty (60) days of adjournment of the Convention and that they be wisely distributed among the officers and representatives of the Convention, and without cost.

A masterly, all-embracing address. A motion prevailed that the matchless address from this gifted and peerless Christian statesmen. L. K. Williams, be adorted as the spirit of this Convention. Dr. R. M. Caver, Arkansas, moved the suspension of the rules and the election of Dr. Williams. Dr. P. Jas. Bryant, Georgia, spoke to the motion and Dr. Williams was elected by acclamation. Flowers were presented in choice words by a special delegation. The Secretary, R. H. Hudson presented his annual report. The report was domorchousive and react, showing all the doings and transactions of the Secretary and the floard during the conventional year. See report for details.

REPORT OF SECRETARY.

Los Angeles, California, Scot. 6, 1923.

Mr. President, Officers and Members composing the Forty-third Annual Session of the National Baptist Convention, U. S. A.:

Greetings:

I have the honor to present herewith my annual report as sected by of this body. With the closing of the forty-second session, St. Louis, Missouri, there went into history one of the most strenuous, nerve wrecking yet businesslike sessions in the history of this great body. At that meeting words of praise and honor and enlogies were said in memory of the late Rev. Elias C. Morris, who had faithfully served his brethren for more than a quarter of a century. Dr. W. G. Parks, his successor, presided and joined with others in paying honor to our departed leader and chieftian.

Dr. Parks then seemed to be in the best of health and spirit and seemed to have had many years to life credit, but before we had did the wire flash the soil news to all parts of the country that Dr. Parks was no more. For twelve or more years as an honored officer of the Convention, he had an excellent apportunity and used it to make friends of the work, showing at all times his loyalty to his superior and sympand good will to his associates. We have and shall miss for some time come the loyal, happy hearted, congenial and fellow worker. In

G. Parks.

Board Meetings.

With the well trained, level headed, forsighted, affable construtionist, Dr. L. K. Williams, at the head of this hody of Christian wellers it was clearly seen and demonstrated at our first Board Me I that the right man had been selected by the great Baptist host t the three Million Negro Baptists of this country. Those who appeared somewhat indifferent and were ready to follow, though afar off, were convinced at the first meeting, January 24, 25, that Dr. L. K. Williams had the vision, the training and expertence to properly explain his idea, the ability not only to put them into operation but to direct and successfully reach his objective.

In this meeting, after the devotions, upon recommendation of President Williams, memorial services were held in memory of the late Dr. W. G. Parks. Resolutions were presented by Dr. J. Francis Robinson, by Dr. C. H. Parrish, representing the Executive Board and by the secretary from the Federal Council of Churches.

The secretaries of the several boards having had their mid-winter meeting prior to this of the Executive Board, submitted a statement showing their condition which was approved. The endorsement of the Board was asked and same was given to the Seminary Commission in its efforts to secure within the city limits of Nashville a tract of 5 acres and buildings the original cost of which was more than $700,000.

In the report of the Woman's Auxiliary, Mrs. Broughton reported the receipts to have been $1,376,93, with disbursements of $1,851.87. In the matter of property rights of the Convention in the Training School, Washington, D. C., the Board decided to ask a conference of one lawyer by the Incorporators, Mrs. Layten, Miss Burroughs, Dr. Jordan and one lawyer by our Convention to ascertain the rights of the Convention in said Training School, the Board and Incorporators agreeing to abide by the decision of their representatives as a basis from which to work. It is understood that the Board wants no lawsuit.

President Williams was thanked and complimented for his efforts in getting a conference with the officials of the Home Mission Society with a view of cooperation. A very strong letter from Rev. Chas. A. Hrooks, of the Society, was read in which willingness for cooperation was expressed. A inceting for February 6, when members of the Home Board, the Executive Board and the Convention will neet with the Home Mission Society officials was endorsed. The action taken at this conference is to be reported to the Home Hoard and from said Board to the Executive Board before it is final.

After the outlining of the work of the Morris Memorial by the President, the placing of the Evangelistic work under the Home Board for a workable basis, the report on the Voice by Editor Crenshaw and the calling attention to the meeting in July of the Baptist World's Alliance by President Williams, who was named as leader of the delegation, the work of the Church Extension Board was thoroughly discussed. Dr. McCutcheon being called on to report, showed that the Board was $7,077.38 in debt. Dr. Perkins, ex-secretary of the Church Extension Board, had a claim in this of $1,396.48 against the Convention, who after much discussion, tendered the amount to the Convention, some being received with thanks. Because of the heavy indebtedness of this Board, which involves the property of all other Boards, it was voted to request the Board to suspend further operation until this meeting of the Convention. A committee was named to visit the churches holding claims against the Board with a view of adjusting them.

The Board endorsed the idea of the President recommending a committe to seek to absolve the Convention's Equity in the Boggs Board. After the report of the Monument Commission, a report of Ways and Means by Dr. S. E. Griggs and the adoption of the resolution Requirection, the Board stood adjourned.

During the recess hour of the Conference called in Memphis, Ten. April 3rd, when handreds of workers from all parts of the countresponded to the special call of President Williams, the Executive Board met to consider several matters pertaining to the $100,000 Campaign, which had been endorsed by the Conference. After the outlining of the program which the president had presented to the Conference and manimously adopted, he impressed the importance of selecting the right man to direct this campaign. Dr. L. G. Jordan was endorsed for the position at salary of $2400, and Mr. John L. Webb to head and represent the laymen. The attorney, President and Secretary of the Convention were appointed a committe to confer with an prepare limit of expenditure for each Board of the Convention.

At the session of the Board held in Hot Springs, Arkansas, Jun 20, besides the making of the program for this meeting the following terms of business were transacted: On the request of Dr. Q. L. Hailey, in presenting the new conditions arising in the Seminary proposition, a committee was appointed to consider same and materecommendations to the Board. The recommendation was in the form of a resolution and is as follows:

"By motion of Rev. E. M. Lawrence, your Special Committee hereby recommends to the Executive Board of the National Baptist Convention now in session in the Haven Methodist Church, that the Seminary Commission be given authority to reopen the seminary question as to location and that the same be reported to the National Baptist Convention.

By motion of Dr. P. Jas. Bryant because of the many dules and responsibilities imposed upon Dr. O. L. Hailey In the Seminary matter that the Executive Committee recommended to the Commission the restoration of Dr. Hailey to full time and pay to work in the field of the National Bautist Convention.

J. A. BOOKER, Chairman, CHAS, ROBINSON, Secretary, Special Committee.

Drs. A. D. Williams and A. L. Boone reported on their trip as a commission to Los Angeles, Calif. They had visited the Covenies city, things were being in readiness for our coming and assumer was given that an auditorium or hall sufficiently large for the meetic would be provided, that no gruft nor profiteering would be practiced and promised and the secretary ordered to hotify the Los Angeles committee of same and of the Convention's it tention to meet there September 5th. Dr. R. N. Holt, Chairman Lott Committee, Rev. F. W. Cooper, of Riverside and Mr. S. P. Johnsen were the brethren present from Los Angeles.

Dr. A. M. Townsend reporting for the Publishing Board and Buling Committee stated that the contract for the new home has been and that the $200.000 authorized by the Convention would be an sufficient sum to erect the kind of home desired. On request of Publishing Board and Huilding Committee, with a recommendation min President Williams, the Executive Board went on record favering the request and authorized Attorney Robinson to prepare satishle resolutions to be presented to your honorable body granting the floating of additional bonds to the amount of $250,000 or whatever is necessary to complete the New Publishing House at Nashville.

With authority given the Morris Memorial Commission to extend their efforts through the second Sunday in July, the all Memorial Punds he handled by said commission and the endorsing of the fifth Sunday in July as General Rally Day for the Promotion Commission, the meeting stood adjourned.

While the Building Committee and the Publishing Board throughtheir secretary, Dr. A. M. Townsend, will report in detail on the New Publishing House now in course of erection, yet it is proper as your direct representative to report a few general facts to your bosonable body. The President and Secretary of this Convention have been called several times to Nashville to represent the Convention in a warding contracts, signing papers, bonds, etc.

I hold in my possession, as your Secretary, the contract between the Windham Brothers Construction Company, Birmingham, Alabana, and the National Baptist Convention, U. S. A., for the erection complete of a four-story, basement and roof-garden, steel frame, brick and stone building to be erected on the Northeast corner of Fourth Avenue and Cedar Street, Nashville, Tennessee, at a cost of $410,000. The following payments are stipulated: $50,000 on demand; $50,000 on o before November 1, 1923. $25,000 on or before June 1, 1924 and $25,000 on or before September 15, 1924. Bonds to the amount of $200,000 have been signed and seal of the Convention affixed, which will be used in part payment of this mammoth building. The contract between the architect, Moses McKissack, and the Convention is also held by your Secretary for you.

Comments,

"They can't do it. They are fooling the people. It is impossible," and such like expressions have been going the rounds among our enemies since we first spoke of this new home. The work has really begun and whether these sayings are to be true or false is up to this great denomination. Already some of them have proven to be false, Let us show that all will be equally untrue. Under the lead of Dr. Williams, as I'resident, and Dr. Townsend, Secretary of the S. S. Publishing Board, the Baptists of the country will build this house and soon will be assembled for its dedication, for we will follow where they lead.

Thanking the President, officers and members of the Convention for the hearty support given this office during the year, I respectfully submit this as my report.

R. B. HUDSON, Secretary.

A motion to adopt the report brought forth some discussion. A motion to defer the report's adoption until Monday was adopted. Adjournment and the election of other officers made continuing order.

Evening Sessian,

Devotions were conducted by the chorus singing several choice selections. Treasurer Stokes submitted his report. Report adopted.

Madam Maggie Walker was presented and discussed some of the economical needs of the Race. Rev. J. Francis Robinson, Mass. was Introduced. He addressed the Convention upon "Some De nominational Dangers." The chorus rendered two very timely madal selections. Prayer was offered by Dr. E. J. Echols, N. Y. The Scripture lesson was read from the 13th chapter of Hebrew D. Dr. J. R. Jamerson, Ark. Chorus sang, "Great Day," Dr. M. W. D.

Norman, D. C., was presented to deliver the annual Introductory Sermon. The preacher selected the 5th chapter, 8th verse of St. Peter and Philippians 4:8. Soberness, Vigitance and Loving Noblemess Satan, the old adversary was depicted as the chief active and personal leader of the forces of sin in their onelaught against the forces of righteousness, led on by Jesus Christ. The rise and fall of kingdoms and empires was vividly pictured as they yielded, to frivollty and a warning was sounded against it among us. The designs and purposes of temptation and the result of them upon human hearts were clearly shown by pictures, and striking illustrations. The manner of conducting the conflict was shown. Prayer, faith, personal plety, and dandless courage will win.

Subject: "The Agency in Temptation and How Combatted."

Text: "Be sober, be vigilant, because your adversary, the devil, as a rouring lion, walketh about seeking whom he may devour" 1 Peter 5: 8.

"Whilsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and it there be any praise, think on these things." Philip. 4: 8.

After years of hardship and trials peculiar to pioneer work, as well as faithful Christian service, Peter, whose rugged character and indomitable will caused him to have been called "rock" by his Lord, gave as the result of his experiences for the benefit of the church in all ages, the words which I have chosen, in association with the passage from the writings of Paul, as a text for this paramount occasion.

And all of us from our own experiences as Christians have realized its truthfulness. Indeed Peter's assertion that there is an adversary who over seeks to enanare, to allure and to overcome the deliver in Christian principles has even been and is now, even in this age of higher critics and daring liberalists, the verdict of those who try to serve the Lord.

There are those, however, who regard the doctrine of a personal Satan as a superstition, but Peter saw behind the forces, antagonistic to the people of God a master power giving impetuate all evil forces and thinking of him as the one great enemy, probounces him, your adversary, the devil.

To interpret the Scriptures so as to render Satan a personification of evil, is to interpret, if the same method is followed, the passages which teach the mission, purpose, and personality of Christ, so as to convert him into an ideal character.

The devil is plainly referred to in the Bible as a person.

The Scriptural representations of the progressive rage of the great adversary, from his first assault on human virtue in Genesis to his final overthrow in Reveilation, joined with certain testimony of Christ, forbid any other conclusion than that there is a personal being of great power who prosecutes an organized opposition to the Divine Government. We are taught to pray, "Deliver us from the evil one." Christ says: "When anyone heareth the word of the Kingdom, and understandeth it not, then cometh the wicked one and casteth away that which was sown in his heart."

The Scriptures certainly represent him as an apostate angel, the great, tireless, skillful enemy of God and man, the first cause of sin in the world.

The quickener of temptation in human mind, the god of this world, who does not only strive to blind those who believe not but to destroy the faith, purity, peace, good name of character and otten the souls of the best men.

If there are evil passions and inclinations, which have not been completely subdued, the devil, who is always on the go, speking whom he may devour, is most certain to take advantage of them. Hence, it is necessary for the best men and women, even those who have grown strong by resisting temptation after temptation, to be ever watchful and sober.

We must watch as well as pray. Like the brave and faithful soldier, be ready whenever the occasion demands to battle against the foe. Watch every avenue, for you do not know which way he may come; or the method of the attack.

1. Let us nutice the character of the universary as a seducerdo not presume to know very much of the history of Satan although the Bible gives sufficient ground for concluding that he is the apostate spirit; the chief of fallen angels, who was cast out of Heaven for his sine and rebellious spirit; and now in some way engages himself in inducing others to sin. He is, indeed, the leader of those angels, who did not retain their first state of purity and were cast down to hell; delivered into chains of darkness to be re served unto judgment.

"And the angels which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation, he hath reserved in everlasting chains under darkness unto the judgment of the great day." Jude 1: 6.

The word devil by which he is sometimes designated, signifies a slanderer, which has reference especially to his conduct on earth, whatever his character was before he became the enemy of God and man.

His aim is to defeat the will of God. He slanders God to mon: "Ye shall not surely die, for God doth know that in the day that ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be open and ye shall be as God, knowing good and evil."

He slanders also men to God—"Doth Job fear God for naught! Hast not Thou made a hedge about him, and about his house and about all that he hath on every side? Thou hast blessed the work of his hands and his substance is increased in the land; but put forth Thire hands now, and touch all that he bath, and he will curst Thee to Thy face."

John refers to him as the wicked one which implies that his whole character is not only an embodiment of turpitude and base wickedness; but the leader of all depravity and viteness in others. He is not only decidedly corrupt himself, but strives to befoul others, especially those who have accepted Christ as the Redeemer of the world. Paul in his first epistle to the Thessalonians, calls him, "The Tempter," which name resulted not only from seducing our first parents but probably from his insidious artifices in Heaven, and certainly infamous work among the children of men. It is quite natural, that, filled and inflated with rage and revenge toward 600 for having been expelled from Heaven, with malice and haired toward men as the predestinative object of divine favor and salvation, and fomenting personal empity and hostility against the Lord Jessi Christ in his great work for atonement and redemption, he is not trying by his allurements to keep men in that position to which he reduced them, and from which it is the purpose of Christ to free

Hs therefore strives to make us subject to his will. He is anxious to rival God, by drawing unto himself those who have acknowledged Christ, who came to destroy the works of the devil and restore lost man to the favor of God.

The greatest warfare in the world is between Christ, the Leader of the righteous, the Captain of our salvation, the wonderful Counselor, and Satan, the prince of the powers of the air. Every Christian is a soldier in this conflict and needs to take on the whole armor of God, that he may stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ hath, made us free; and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage.

The sole intention of our adversary is to reduce us to shame and eternal ruin. His design is to devour and destroy. To that end he is unyielding and resistless in his mallcious endeavors, for he always, day and night, goes about studying and contriving whom he may ensuare to their eternal ruin. And if we are not sober and vigilant, not daily trusting in, and depending upon, God for protection and strength, we may not be able to withstand the flery darts of Satan. We should govern the inner and outer man by rules of temperance, modesty and humility. Do not ever feel secure and allow yourself to become careless or indifferent, but rather suspicious of conetant danger from this doubtless enemy and under such apprehension be always waichful and diligent to defeat his intentious and save your souls.

2. Notice in the second place.—How he tempts us to sin. That he has access to the human mind is doubtless clear, else how could he tempt at all? He does not appear in person to influence to atracity and crime, but in some way he enters the human mind and in many instances sin is the result. I have no doubt that his power is very great and his dexterity and craftiness are equal to his power. The thought that we must combat such an enemy—an enemy whose repeated successes have emboldened, long and varied experiences made wise in the destruction of men—an enemy whose treacherous movements intended to corrupt the human race, to related the development of Christianity, hidden from human observation is sufficiently alarming to make us watchful and prayerful.

There seems to be a tendency, however, on the part of many Christians to practice entirely too much frivolity, to display an air of carcless indifference or unwarranted sincerity. Is not this also true of us as a race? Are we not rather careless? Rather indifferent, despite difficulties on every hand, the unsettled conditions of the world and great problems awaiting solution? If there ever was a time for serious and prayerful consideration is it not now? Have the great leaders of the world the proper vision? Are they rendering unto God the things that are God's as well as unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's? Do you know that races like individuals so up and down?

Once the proud Mongolian drave the white man in shacing to his drifty toil; once the Saracens, aspiring to world dominion, led white maidens from the capital of Europe to his harem; once from with colonies on every shore of the Mediterranean, occupied the highest pinnacle of power; once old Rome, resting on her seven hills, the acknowledged mistress of the world, with her great highest shadowledged mistress of the world by the tramp of her saidiery. Do you presume that these nations in their highest gler ever fancied or imagined an overthrow? Where are they today? Let the books on the musty shelves of your libraries answer, Yes, proud and mighty cities of the past have been huried beneath the accumulated dust of the ages; their marble palaces have become the haunts of the scorpion and bat, and upon their ruips other nations regardless of their sacred dust, have built cities and wrought achievements worthy of their day and generation.

These proud nations became indifferent and careless, trusting in the might of men and ignoring the power of God—fiddling while Rome was on fire; or feasting while mysterious fingers were writing their doom on the wall of the king's palace.

I wonder if we realize the seriousness and scope of our obligations to Him. Are we utilizing our talents to the fullest extent! We must redeem our time. Our stay here is too short. We tan not afford to spend our time in trivial matters to the exclusion of higher duties which help in the crusades against ruin. Every day must count a full day's work for the Master. Practical religion must mix with all we do, else our lives will be either worthless or harmful. Bear in mind, my brethren, that Satan also desires to have you, that he may sift you as wheat, and you can not contend against him unless you pray, labor, and watch. You must keep on the whole armor of God; for we wrestle against principalities and powers, against rulers of darkness of this world, against spiritus weakness in high places; such appelations as wiles, devices, subtleties. applied to Satan by the apostic signifies that he knows our constitution, besetting sins and weaknesses, and that he must stillfully adapt himself to the conditions; that is to say, that he presents to men those temptations which have the greatest power over them, hence in many cases, especially when Christians are not prayerful and alert, he induces them to sin.

If he has any favorite sin, they are those which make our character more like his. For instance, falsehood, pride, jealous ambition, passions, envy, confusion and disappointment.

The devil has a special concern in this netarious act. He is called a liar from the beginning and the father of iles. In this very particular. Ananias was his victim. This sin has destroyed may Great confusion, resulting in serious troubles, have occurred, be cause of this vice. Deception is fraced to it; it is usually the sin employed to cover other sins. It may be end is frequently committed by implication. Falsehoods are often told to create laughter and church members are loo often experts in this business. To ladulge in such is more or less degrading.

National as well as individual falsification, whether in word or action, receives a just and often speedy punishment. Falsehood is like a fire in stubble; turns all light stuff around it into its own substance, for the moment—one crackling, blazing moment—then dies; and all its contents are scattered in the wind, with onlace or evidence of their existence, as viewless as the wind with scattered them.

We must strive then to keep our minds on that which tends to develop religious character.

"He not deceived," says Paul, "evil communication corrupts good "Words that seem harmions because they float lightly like thistledown, may bear in themselves a seed of evil, which may take root and bring forth evil fruit."

Let our conversation be on a high plaln, and our thoughts be trained to wander over pure fields.

Paul said to the church at Philippi;

"Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any virtue, if there be any praise, think on these things.

Yea, think on these things, namely: truth, honesty, justice, purity, charity, in tine, all things worthy of prulse. In other words, practice these things and thus honor God. Indeed, my friends, esteem them highly, recommend them heartily and practice them fervently, lu doing so we do not only benefit ourselves but others, which of course, should be the highest aim of life. Not how much we get out of life, but how much service we render mankind.

Our Master, the Christ of God, come not to be ministered unto, but to minister.

(a) Again, from what Paul said to Timothy, pride must be especially Satan's sin. This sin for which he was condemned, and which he uses to destroy others. Let us not be guilty of undue self-elation, which arises from the thought of dignity of position, or estimation in which one is held for any reason. In this condition our judgment is seen beclouded and failing to see the true relation of things we fall under the very condemnation pronounced upon the Devil.

Keep your feet on the ground. Settle down to rock, Clinch the nail on the other side. Do not mistake the naise of the procession, it may about face, ere you expect it. Those who applauded the entry of thrist into Jerusalem were londest in demanding His execution. Never play to the gallery or trim sail to catch a passing breeze. Reware of excessive pride. It thrust prond Nebuchadnezzar out of the society of men; proud Saul, Israel's first king, out of his kingdom; proud Adam out of the beautiful Eden; proud Haman out of the Pershan Court, and proud Lucifer, out of Heaven.

Satan is subtle. He will make a man proud that is not proud. Should the world smile upon you and appland your every step of advance, it fame uncoveted and unsought rushes upon you, it fartune spontaneously thrusts itself into your grasp, then out of a heart (all of thanksgiving and humility, give God the honer.

(h) Again, ambition, with its attendants, jealousy, cruel as the grave, is his temptation. There are many who are almost crazy on account of such ambitions. We should be ambitious, but it is that ambition which leads to prejudice, envy, and jealousy, which the fibble condemns as a sin which the devit delights to have committed. Let us be bumble, honest, earnest and faithful and prayerful strive to become so Christ-like, that we shall rejoice at, and pray for the success of others. May God help us to rise up above petty differences, backhiling, and groundless criticisms, daily murmurings, and unite our efforts and energies as Christian men and women, and especially as ministers of the gospel of Jesus Christ for the betterment of human society, and the salvation of the world. Paul in his letter to the Ephesians says:

"Above all, take the shield of faith wherewith is shall be she to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked." The apostle has reference to the stifful conditions entering into the minds of even the best Christians, inflaming lusts, pride, revenge or other enlines eminating from the great tempter.

That these horrid suggestions, unbidden and unwelcome some times start in the mind, is a painful experience of every Christian. While we can not prevent wicked thoughts from knocking at our door, craving admittance, we can prevent their reception. "You can not prevent birds from flying over your head, but you can prevent them from building nests in your hair."

3. Notice in the next place.—The value of temptations. Although the adversary employs temptations to allure, to cusnare and to destroy Christians, his design is overruled by the Aimighty, and these temptations prove a blessing to them.

Of course, hypocrites full away and many sinners are kept in blindness and iniquity under the effect of satunic inveiglement, but the character of the true believers thereby made strong. So the result of temptation depends upon the condition of the person upon whom it is brought to bear. As the same sunbeams melt the war barden the clay, so the similar circumstances often make a good nam better and a bad man worse.

The trials and hardships which we so frequently meet along the pilgrimage from earth to glory, serve to strengthen those qualities which make us like Christ and thus build us up in holy faith.

It is said that when a bar of from is worth $5.00, the same from made into horseshoes is worth $10.50; in needles, $355; in blades for pen knives. $3.285; and in watch springs, $250,000; heated and hammered, braten and rouled, the finer qualities are brought out of the metal, and now uses and greater values belong to it. Templations have similar effect upon us. They make us more and more like lesss

"Only melted gold is iniated; only moistened clay is molded; only softened wax receives the dye; only broken and contrite hears can take and keep the fruit of heaven."

Therefore, if that is thy condition, wait beneath the pressure of the Holy Spirit, He shall leave the image of Jesus upon thes, and change thee into His likeness from Glory to Glory."

I grant, that sometimes the believer is betrayed and induced to stn; even this, however, has subsequent edvantage. It teaches he mility, and utter dependence upon God. It makes him realize how frail he is, and enables him to about on vain confidence.

As the human hody, versed at fatigues and langers, becomes nervel until it is capable of most vigorous exertion; so faith, hope, patient, and love are fortified against the invasions of Satan under sever and protracted trial.

God gives us talent, but to be employed. "He will have no buried jewels of grace in the hearts of His people. He will have them worn for ornaments that they may shine on the way to Heare and brighten more and more as they go along, in proportion as they draw near their destination."

Furthermore, hardships and difficulties drive Christians to God, when otherwise they might grow unconcerned and indolent.

How often would our hearts have continued obdurate and callous, had not some new pang sent them bleeding to their Heavenly Fathers feet!

Therefore it is well that we are under a discipline which keeps us near Him who alone is able to save.

"Through bitter medicine comes health. From plowing deep, abounding grain; from white hot crucibles, gold wealth; from threatening skies, the grateful rain."

Trials resulting from temptations, as a rule, operate in favor of these upon whom they are brought to bear. Persons who are driven to the wall because of trials, show the difference between the true and antitie.

We should treat sorrows of life as messengers from Heaven. They are after all, friends, not encodes. The devil intends them to our heart, but God, although we may suffer temporarily, overrules the evil intended and light come to us out of darkness.

Of course, when we are undergoing severe trials, we sometimes feel that we can not stand them, but we do, and finally we see the benefits from them.

One day the floods washed away the home and mill, the property of a poor man. Indeed he had nothing left. But as he stood on the scene of his loss, after the waters subsided, heart-broken and discouraged, he saw something shiring on the bank which tho waters had washed bare, "looks like gold," said he. It was a gold mine. The floods which had taken away his small possessions made him rich. A house and a mill washed away,—a gold mine revealed. Trials take away loved possessions, but reveals the treasures of the love of flod. Threatening and lowering clouds in the sky, but pass and leave the rich treasure of rain.

4. Notice finally.—How to conduct this conflict with the adversary. White I entertain the opinion that our adversary is a person, I do not hold that we are to engage into a direct and an immediate conflict with bim.

Resisting Satan is opposing our own evil thoughts, feelings, propensities and inclinations. Control self. Do not allow self to control von. Keep your soul on top.

We can not with any degree of certainty, distinguish between the workings of Satan and the operations of our own depraylty, in movements of our mind or heart against the will and commandments of 60d, but it is by resisting these movements that we withstand the wiles of the devil.

To maintain successful resistance, certain equipment must be had and skillfully used; "For when Greek meets Greek then comes the tip of war."

We are contending against a mighty and formidable foe; but he is seither invincible nor almighty. And if we trust Christ, work faithfully for the extension of His Kingdom, live worthy lives, we shall finally overcome in the warfare and receive a crown of glory.

No labor, no reward, no cross, no crown. The devil employs agencies to prevent our attainment of it. We must resist him whenever he presents himself or the crown goes to another.

In order to resist him, we must.

(a) Pray without ceasing, or in other words, recognize God in all you undertake. Never reckon without God. Men who have tempted to accomplish great things without God have failed. Prayer a spiritual commerce, which enables you to enjoy the spirit of fittal submission. Do not ever forget that God controls the evolution events and that prayer occupies an essential place in the economy of graces.

It is more than an excellent spirit of discipline for it moves the arms of the Creator, virtually admitting the Christian to share in the government of worlds.

Coolings says: "The very noblest possible exercise of the buman mind is prayer." In your pursuits, in your Christian work keep in touch with God, by this spirit of commerce. God and one are the majority.

The best and the noblest action," says Plate, "which a virtuous man can perform and that which most promotes his success in life, is to five by vows and prayers, in continual intercourse with the gods, nay, all who would act with due consideration, ought before beginning an undertaking, whether great or small, to invoke God."

"Prayer is helplessness casting itself upon power. It is in firmly leaning on strength, and misery wooing bliss."

"It is unholiness embracing purity, hatred desiring love, it is corruption panting for immortality, and earthborns claiming kindled in the skies. It is the flight of the soul to the bosom of God, and the spirit soaring upward, and claiming nativity beyond the stars it is the restless dove on drooping wings, turned to his loved reposit is the soaring eagle mounting upward in its flight, and with steady gaze pursuing the track 'til lost to all below. It is the roving was derer, looking towards his abiding place, where are all his treasures and gold. It is the prisoner pleading for release. It is the marine on a dangerous sea, upon the recling topmast descrying the broad and quitet haven of repose. It is the soul oppressed by earthy soarings, escaping to a broader and purer plain, and bathing its plumes in the otherent and eternal."—Mrs. E. R. Wells.

(b) Every person destring to be a blessing in his day and generation, should adopt a life of consistency, whether he be paster or layman. Be true, be faithful until death. Perform your day as citizens worthy of the gospel of Christ. You profess to believe in God, act worthilly that profession. Be niways reverent, be slways devout. Be always thankful and grateful. You profess to believe in Christ, walk worthily of true disciplineship. Be docile, be studious, be loyal. You profess to believe in future retribution. Regulate for present conduct in accordance with this faith subordinating the world to the soul and consecrating the soul to the service of the Lord. Christ in that unique and matchless Sermon on the Mount.

"Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in Heaven."

The shining of the light consists in good works. No estention of good works, no brag and bluster, but a meek, active and consecrated Christian life.

Such conduct will show that Christianity is true; Christian piety fensible; Christly life exceedingly desirable.

Think of the harm we may do by inconsistencies; what good, by simply being what we profess to be. The most eloquent sermon in behalf of the gospel of the world, that I have heard, is a uniform active plety. The best version of a written truth that has ever been made is a consistent religious example.

We should so regulate and chauffeur our desires that our lives shall be exemplary and those about us not in fellowship with Christ, will be prepared to receive the gospel. Gospel preaching must be supported by excellent living: straightforward, above board, atrictly pright action, come what may, nothing else becomes the children of God. Social and commercial morality is all right, but Christian morality, which is governed by right principle at any cost, courts and wings. Do right, because right is right. Solomon says: "Right-gouspess evalueth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people."

That is, righteousness consists in procession of a reverent spirit and an estimable character and daily principles of uprightness, justice and kindness. In this is a nation's or an individual's strength. Daily practices, physical well being, material prosperity, moral advancement, standing for honesty among nations, insure the abiding favor of God.

The most inferior and humblest persons, whose lives tend to establish rightcousness, are, however, parrow their scope, true patriots. Pastors, of all men, should be worthy as well as useful. They say that the world has an eagle eye, sharp to discover vagaries and inconsistencies in the defaulty and the unworthy. It is an eagle eye but the eagle winks before the sun; and the burning iris of its eye shrinks hefore the unsuitled purity of noon.

Thet your light so shine before men that others, awed and charmed by consistency of your Godly life may come to enquire and to say, they have been with Jesus. Oh, my brother, if this be true of any person, it certainly should be true of the man who is the mouthpiece of God to his fellows. The minister is Heaven's special representative to the sin cursed world. Yea, minister plenipotentiary—snvoy extraordinary with sealed orders from the blessed throne of God. The glittering stars "in the right hand of Him, who clothed with a garment down to the foot, and girt about the paps, with a golden girdle and whose eyes were as a flame of fire and his voice the sound of many waters," who was been in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks.

(c) Again, patience will greatly aid in the conflict and exactions of life. Work and wait. Make haste slowly. The battle is to him who holds out to the end. Grow slowly but surely. Patience is essential in our search for truth, in our battles against wrong. In defense of the Master's cause. It is not a segment merely of Christian character, but a spirit which pervades every fibre of it.

James says: "Let patience have her perfect work, that you may he perfect and entire wanting mothing." Keep at it; at it all the time: at it everywhere. The pastor who keeps at it, at it all the time and at it everywhere, knows no dead line.

Heroes are forged on anvils hot with pain; and splendid courage comes but with the test, some nature ripeus, and some virtue blooms, only in blood wet soil. Some souls prove great only in moments dark with death or doom.

After all patience is simply hold on; helding fast; helding out it is the ballast to the soul that ever keeps it from rolling and tumbling in the severest storms.

(d) Faith is absolutely essential in life. Men who have made worthy contributions along any line, to the best interest of the world have been blessed with a strong faith in God as well as in thenselves and the cause in which they were engaged. The bonor roll in the Kingdom of God contains the names of men and women who believed in Him and acted because of this faith. Moses, endured as speing Him, who is invisible; Isaac blessed his sons because of his faith in the Master. Jacob in old age, leaning on his staff, not only blessed his sons but prophesfed their future; Joseph, the greatest prime minister of olden times, or the foremost secretary of commerce in any times, ordered his people to take his bones with them when they fourneyed to the Land of Promise. Joshua led the army around the wall of Jericho, because of faith in God, who commanded bim: Gideon with 300 faithful ones, men ready to do or die, conquered an immense army of trained soldiers, commanded by factful officers. Martin Luther sternly defied the Pope of Rome; while Philip Melanothen stood like a stone wall in the defense of the Reformation and with a smile Polycarp met death. Worthy men, to whom gencrations are indebted for needed reforms and a solitary institution have been possessed of strong faith. Faith is the hand which takes hold of God, the eye which sees His mercy, love, truth, rightcoursess and justice. The ear which hears His command; the tongue which sings and acclaims the honors of His name.

It is the strength and consolation of all who bring things to pass. It is like the magnetic needle, often trembling, yet ever true, swayed amidst the tempest's wildest toosings, by the invisible mysterious speel which never fails to direct it aright. Experiences of a life time make the physician wise and successful in the bour pestilences and epidemics. We should be assiduous, therefore, in laying up treasures of faith against the day when persuasions of the world will try ns. There are plenty of trials, yet for faith to hear. The torch is not so frequent, but the spirit of the evil one is changeless. He who would be a blessing in his day and generation, must be ready to suffer many things, to endure, to battle evil, to contend for the right. Live on the same footing of the world you escape a deal of toil and strain, but strive to achieve that which Christ sets before you, then you realize the need of a brave and patient heart. Truly there is still need of strong faith.

"Oh, for a faith that will not shrink. Though pressed by every foe, That will not tremble on the brink Of any earthly woe:

That will not murmur nor complain Beneath the chastening rod. But, in the hour of grief or pain, Will lean upon its God;

A faith that shines more bright and clear When tempests rage without:

That, when in danger, knows no fear in darkness feels no doubt.

Lord give us such a falth as this, And then, whate'er may come, We'll taste, e'en here, the ballowed bliss Of an eternal home.

There are kingdoms, nations and peoples ignorant of the teachings of the Christ—the plain terms of the Gospel.—To subdue not by brutal force, not by proposed league of nations; but by those who believe the truth and persist in pressing it on others.

The faith of a simple, humble Christian has far greater things within its reach than anything to be attained by the unaided intellect at its best. The minister, not the statesman, is to make the greatest contribution to universal democracy. Universal demorrary is another name for the Kingdom of Christ. The spirit of His kingdom must touch every corner of the world-this spirit and spirit alone, shall bring about an era of peace, when the wolf and the lamb shall feed together, and the lion shall eat straw like the bullock, and the dust shall be the surpent's meat." The Gospel of Jesus Christ will bring about this result. Oh, what tremendous responsihilly is upon the minister in particular and the people of God in general in these trying times, a strong and obstinate faith in God. Seek such (aith as not only lays hold of the Master but holds Him and will not let him go. That has the grasp of a drowning man, such a faith greater than Joshua when laying his hand on the sun he held it lack from going forward. A faith like Jacob, who strange as it seems, held God from going away as endowed with superhuman energy; he wrestled the night through with an angel and the stronger of the two prevailed, replying to the prayer, let me go, the day is breaking: I will not let thee go unless thou bless me.

It was this element, so needful to the minister of the Gospel of Jasus Christ in these trying times, that sustained Columbus as he went from court to court, seeking sympathy and aid and cheered him at midnight on the tempestuous sea while his entire crew, hopeless and excited, demanded his return. Miller made the brave admiral in the darkness and most trying hour in his voyage, say: "Sail on, sail on, and on."

"They sailed, they sailed, then spake the mate; This mad sea shows his teeth tonight. He lies in wait, he curls his lips With lifted teeth as if to bite.

"Brave Admiral, say but one good word; What shall we do when hope is gone; The words leaped like a leaping sword— Sail on! Sail on and on.

"Then pale and wan he kept his deck,
And peered through, Ah, that night,
Of all dark nights, and then a speck,
A light, a light!

"It grew to be times burst of dawn.

He gained a world, he gave that world
Its grandest lesson.
Sail on. Sail on. and on!"

Brothers and sisters, do not allow discrimination, malignant aspersions, thorus in the flesh, mishaps, heights or depths, things present or things to come, wars or rumors of wars, or anything else to weaken your faith in God or in Christianity.

Be stendfast and unmoveable—Contend for the faith once delivered unto the saints—Soon the federation of the world shall become a reality

Yes, it will soon be a reality with you and me and all of us. Our men are failing around us and our time is not long when the Chief Shenherd shall appear and we shall receive a crown of glory that faileth not away. Let us, my brethren and sisters, look up to Issue in our work of mercy and love—Whom to know aright is life eternal—and our faith shall be as a shining light that shineth more and more unto the perfect day, and we shall not be numbered with those whose hattles of life are fought and lost; but with that glorious band, shining as the stars forever, look forth as the morning, clear as the sun, fair as the moon and terrible as an army with banners.

"Be sober, be vigilant, because your adversary, the devil, as a roaring iton, walketh about seeking whom he may devour." 1 Peter "Whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are nure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these thinga." Philippians 4.8.

The great preacher closed in a brilliant peroration, admonishing us to sail on till victory is won. Prayer by Dr. A. Wilbanks. D. C. "I Couldn't Hear Nobody Pray" was feelingly sung by the chorus. Boyle Workman. President City Council, acting Mayor of Los Angeles. extended a cordial welcome on behalf of Los Angeles. A descriptive history of Los Angeles and California was given and an invitation extended to settlers to the fifth city.

Prof. Nix sang touchingly, "Waiting for Me." Adjournment. Benediction, Dr. W. M. Taylor, Louisiana.

SECOND DAY-Morning Session

1. The Revelation of Man's Human Nature and Need.

2. The Revelation of Man's Moral Nature and Need.

The Revelation of Man's Intellectual Nature and Need.

The Revelation of Man's Spiritual Nature and Need.

"The tiplifted Christ, the Revelation of Man's Nature and Needs," is the subject with which I have been asked to deal.

The crucified, buried and resurrected Christ is the most vitally important fact of human history.

It is against this fact that the infuriated hosts of infidelity and rationalism burl themselves to their Waterloo of Ignominious defeat on the one hand; yet on the other hand it stands as a Gibraltar of chistian evidences.

The uplifted Christ reveals in the plot of my discourse four cardinal relations of man's existence: (1) The Revelation of Man's Human Natume and Need; (2) The Revelation of Man's Moral Nature and Need: (3) The Revelation of Man's Intellectual Nature and Need; (4) The Revelation of Man's Spiritual Nature and Need.

1-The Revelation of Man's Human Nature and Its Need.

The uplifted Christ reveals man's humanity in its nature and condition that makes him inferior to God, the Creator, yet superior to all of the other creatures on earth.

Man has a carnal nature which is a resident force that ignorant evalutionists do not distinguish from his human nature.

Man had been through the centuries oppressed by the tuition of hiddely which gave him a false notion of God, and a false notion of the nature of his own existence.

Rationalism and infidelity were through these same centuries the "impressed forces" bending him to a worshipful indulgence of the carnal will, desire and appetite. Thus the carnal nature was enthroused and the human nature was tied to the brutal proclivities in the vain attempt to dismiss or becount the sense of moral responsibility. The carnal man has through all the centuries tried to make himself a brute, and the depraved human nature in conformity to the carnal instinct, sank lower and lower in the scale of noral rectitude, and weaker and weaker in the ower of obedience.

It is plain to see that man needed a greater man to restore him. A man who, like Adam in his perfect state, was free from the baneful influences of a corrupted human nature through the lusts of the carnal self. The uplifted Christ was this Man who took upon Himself the human nature that was subject to temptation, like as we are, yet without sin: thus proving through his life, works, suffering death and resurrection that the life of man and that the glory of humanity transcend the bounds of the grave to the realms of conscious eternity. In this we see how the uplifted Christ reveals the flory of human nature and imparts to it the needed faith, hope and love which were ordained to be from the beginning, its crowning

The uplified Christ has exalted human nature above the plane of mere carnal existence. The uplified Christ shows that human nature is not something that evolved from some low specie, but that it was created in the moral image and intellectual likeness of God. or Jesus was very God, and very man. He called himself the con of man." But the term "man" is with direct reference to human the called himself the control of the called himself the control of the called himself the control of the called himself the control of the called himself the cal manity, the entire range of the human race. The uplifted Christ associated Himself as God to man's humanity, in order that all men might know that they are the sons of God. The false notions of so-called "sclence" would have man as an intelligent being evolved from a monkey. But the uplifted Christ explodes this theory. Who can imagine Christ, "the Son of Man," as having evolved? Thus we see how the uplifted Christ reveals man's human nature and need.

2-The Revelation of Man's Moral Nature and its Need.

The uplifted Christ reveals man's moral nature, and this is a distinct boundary line between man and beast. No infidel or rational ist would dare to deny the existence of a moral government, and a moral government is tantamount to the existence of a moral agent. Moral agency involves responsibility, because it is governed by the law of conscious duty. Man, therefore, is not only governed by the law of natural ethics, for there is a higher virtue than moral virtue. Man has a moral virtue without the ald of revelation. But the moral virtue does not belong to the spiritual or theological plane on which ablde faith, hope and love. The various animals seem to obey certain laws. Some of them seem to have a government to the extent of making choice of leaders, carrying on mutual construction, and manifesting some sense of discipline as is manifested by the bee and the ant. Here is where the natural instinct works with the lower forms of creation to aid them in the propagation of their species and favor the continuity of their existence, yet we can not regard these powers as the exercise of moral agents.

Man's moral nature needs a revelation of higher duties than those which are confined to the realm of sense. His highest joy, his supreme happiness can only come through the elevation of his spiritual nature, and the exercise of his spiritual duties to his God and his fellow man. Human philosophy and human duty have never satisfied the longings of human knowledge, nor quenched the thirst of the soul for the divinely spiritual pleasures which are eternal.

In turning to Paul on Mars Hill, we find him addressing the Athenian philosophers as being "too superstitions." for he saw that they were over-stocked with religion, that their natural ethics and moral virtue had brought them to invent multitudes of religious systems and to worship at the shrines of fifty thousand gods, delying various objects of nature. Yet the learning of classic Greece was morally depraved and lost. And here points them very vividly to the fallacy and uncertainty of their knowledge in calling their attention to the inscription they had written on another altar. "To the Unknown God—whom ye ignorantly worship." The uplifted Christ shows that man's moral nature needs divine revelation and that his service as a moral agent is seriously impaired when he is not subject to the leadership of the Holy Spirit.

3-The Revelation of Man's Intellectual Nature and Its Need.

The uplifted Christ reveals man's intellectual nature as it should be. Man's intellectual nature is not confined to the realm of human sense. His intellect is better exercised in the act of obedience with laws of nature and nature's God. The real organ of knowledge is obedience. Christ revealed man's intellectual nature as having in principles fixed in obedience. As man, Christ was obedient.

knowledge was supreme, because his obedience was supreme. True wisdom is from above, and man's usind must be inspired from above before he can be truly wise. "He that is from above, is above all," said John the Baptist, concerning Jesus. Man's endowment of natural intellect which is understood to be his accular senses is simply a servant to the higher spiritual gifts. The upliffed Christ reveals man's intellectual nature as being in direct correspondence with the superior intelligencies, namely the Father, our Creator; the Son, our Redeemer; and the Holy Spirit, our Sanctifler and Regenerator. By this we see that the greatest need of man's intellectual nature in order for man to be truly wise is to be in continuous relation with the divine correspondences.

Intelligence in man is that which sees itself at once as object and subject. In the human sense, it is cultivated understanding, acquired knowledge and information stored up in the mind. But in the higher sense, the really Christian sense, it is the faculty of obedience, doing the things it understands, making the proper exerrise of the knowledge it has, obeying the proper instruction it has received, and acting on the right information that has been stored up. It does not matter what human nature knows about what is right, it cannot be wise except it obeys, to do the thing it knows to be right. It does not matter also how much understanding the intellectual nature may have of what is right, it is not wise if it does not do the things it understands. Though the intellectual nature may be stored with an ample supply of good instruction, it is not wise unless it obeys to do the things it has been instructed. Obedience then, really is the organ of knowledge, and the uplifted Christ revealed the intellectual nature of man as the prime need of obedience. And he summed it all up in this marvelous expression in his sermon of the Mount: "Therefore, whosoever heareth these sayings of mine and doeth them, I will liken to a wise man which built his house upon a rock. * * * And everyone that heareth these sayings of mine and doeth them not, shall be likened to a foolish man. which built his house upon the sand." Thus Christ revealed man's intellectual nature as in peed of obedience as the source of true

4-The Revelation of Man's Spiritual Nature and its Need.

Man is a three-story building. The first story is the body, the second the mind, the third the spirit. He is the masterpiece of God's handiwork. He is the only animal with an immortal soul. The uplifted Christ reveals man's spiritual nature in the most exatted relation of life. Man's spiritual nature is revealed as having a supermundane citizenship. His home is not only here, but he has another in the hereafter. He has a human existence with which to move on the human plane, and he has a spiritual life which must be lived on the eternal spiritual plane. Man is the highest expression of God's creation. He is the mightiest force in all the universe. Angels are citizens only of heaven, but man as a spiritual being, coupled with the human nature, and moral nature, and the intellectual nature, holds citizenship in two worlds, the earth as to time, and heaven or hell as to eternity, in view of his own choice. Man's inner consciousness is a wonderful revetation, and an impeachable evidence of the exercise of his spiritual nature. This revealed spiritual bature man needs spiritual nourishment, refreshment, instruction, inspiration and correspondence.

To sum up the matter, man is man, not monkey; man is the san of God, not gordia. "The missing link" has always been missing Man is at first band from the hand of God. He is not the son of an extinct ape-man. His human nature, moral nature, intellectual matter and spiritual nature are by far higher endowments than were possessed by the hypothecated pithecanthropus erecutes, the extinct monkey that modern evolutionists give as man's forebear.

As human beings look upon the uplifted Christ, the light from His glorious cross illumines their entire nature; in fact, looking at Jesus, men become to look like Him, think like Him, and act like Him, "Beholding as in a mirror the glory of the Lord, as are changed into the same Image."

Music, "Witness," a jubilec, was enthusia: tically rendered by the Chorus. Dr. E. B. Topp, Mississippi, presented Dr. S. S. Odum, to present the Corresponding Secretary, Dr. W. F. Lovelace, Arkansas, to deliver the annual report of the Home Mission Board. The Chairman magnified in well chosen words the importance of the Home Mission Board. Dr. Lovelace presented the doings of his board in carrying out a comprehensive program and pictured an optimistic future for his board.

TWENTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE HOME MISSION BOARD OF THE NATIONAL BAPTIST CONVENTION.

Brother President, Officers and Members of the National Baptist Convention:

t come before you at this time to present to you my third annul report of the Home Mission Board, which is at the same time the twenty-eighth report of this Board.

Allow me first of all to say that this report represents only eleven months' work, because as per order of the St. Louis convention, our iscal year ends now June 31st, just one month earder than herelefore.

Our Board through its Secretary has left no stone unturned to bring about great results.

1-The Attitude of the Brethren and Churches Towards Missions

We have much to praise God for and very little about which to grumble.

The attitude generally towards our work is better than three years ago when we started out as your Secretary.

The people have become reasonably well acquainted with us not we have learned to know these brethren and to admire them for everywhere that we go they roccive us with open arms and delight to do us honor for our Board's sake. Where they have had much, most of them have given much, and when they had little, they divided even that, and made up the deliciency with kindness to your Secretary and pledges to be sent, which of course, they sometimes forget to send. Not a woman nor a child has snubbed us as we entered their domain. We can truly say that the right of way is cut. the dump is thrown up, the track is laid and the outlook is encouraging.

2-The Field and Its Condition.

We remember last year in St. Louis when we were called upon to report how that one of our brethren objected to us making a report of conditions but only to give the cold figures in dollars and cents, notwithstanding that brother had never given us a cent since we took charge of the work, but seemed to want a report on other folk's money.

We have always thought that this Convention should not only know the defiars and cents but should know the condition of our field at large.

Lift up your eyes. The field is ripe and ready for harvest. Our field covers the United States, North and Scuth, allow us to say, as we said last year. The White Baptists of the North may have a North, and the white Baptists of the South may have a South, but with Negro Baptists there should be no North and there should be no South for we are one.

Some of our brethren in the North secin inclined to blame your Secretary because they do not get some of the missionary money from the Southern white Board, but brethren, you accepted this condition long before we came on the scene. You knew that it was designated money to be used South of the Mason and the Dixon line; then why blarse us for carrying into effect that which by your your commanded us to do?

Our fields are destitute, both North and South, alike. Direct communication from Texas, Arkansas, Lowisiana, Missisappi, South Carolina, Georgia, Montana, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, California, Kentucky, Culorado, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Oklahoma and many other states we know of by observation have conditions that need the attention of our Board.

The minds of our people are turning rapidly toward our Board and the work would go beyond all expectation if we could get about 500 of our churches to enter in a systematic cooperation in giving so that something tangible could be shown the people, for the majority, like Israel, is still walking by sight and not by faith.

Our Needs.

Our first and greatest need is a trained and efficient ministry. Our people are destroyed for lack of knowledge, hence we need such a ministry that would impart knowledge: we need such a ministry that would not substitute voice nor mourning nor hashing for sospel, but such as would preach the gospel without compensation. Even though five should leap from the internal regions or fifty thousand cannon. Preach it as the Baptists believe it and not to please other folks.

We need such a ministry as will take time and teach the people what their duties are in kingdom building, for most of our people never learn any more about religious work than simple church house building. The great object of the church is to evangelize the world.

Secondly,

We need a removal of sectional prejudice and jealousy. As long as one section or state is afraid that the other will get more benefit in missionary operation than they do, our progress will be slow.

It should not be a question with us which state or section gets the most. Some places may need a thousand dollars, while other need none.

It was to the lost sheep Christ sent his men. It is the sick who need a physician, not the well.

It was the poor for whom Dorcas made garments, not the rich. So let us inquire where are the places that need us most? Whether it be here or there, let's go to them.

Thirdly.

To bring into operation all that we have indicated, we need cooperation. Cooperation is one of the prime laws of creation and of the existence of created things. All things were puade on a cooperative plan from the tiny and that frets and scampers on mother earth to the human being, the highest type of animals.

The cloudy heavens and the great green earth cooperate to gether to give sustenance to every being. The sun and moon cooperate to give light to the world both day and night.

Salvation itself is on the cooperative plan, one part divine and the other human; that is, God furnishes the Spirit or the Dynamic force, which gives new birth, while man must turnish the will power.

When it comes to the world the whole Bible has given us a lesson of group work. The Christ did not work alone but gathered a group of men about him to cooperate with him in bringing others into the kingdom. When he sent them two and two.

We use this pattern when we organize a church or a convention that we may have group work, or cooperation.

What if churches sould cooperate? What if we could get one thousand of our churches to cooperate on a small scale for Home Missions just for one year? The results would astonish the world

If one church could get a hundred members to pay one cent each for every Sunday in the year, that one church would raise for missions fifty-two dollars.

At the same rate one thousand churches in one year would raise fifty-two thousand dollars a year. One-fourth of this money could be used by the state raising it for State missions while the other three-fourths could be used by our Board in other needy places.

We trust that when you read our summary of work done from August, 1922, to June 30, 1923, you will have such an intelligence about the workings of our Board that many more of you pastors will see to it that your people send us a contribution each mouth. Our debts this year amount to a little more than seven hundred dollars.

The total indebtedness on our Board up to June 30, amounted to 25,523.46. When we took charge of the office there was something more than six hundred dollars indebtedness hanging aiready, but we have paid a part of that off.

Our operating expense this year has been comparatively small, especially when you consider that we did not have a pass over any of the roads at all. For all of these things that seem to us to indicate our success, we thank the brotherhood for their cooperation and praise God for his guidance and protection.

He submitted recommendations to be adopted by the Convention. The motion to refer these resolutions to a committee composed of one from each state was approved. A motion to reelect Prof. Austin. chorister for the Convention, was adopted unanimously. Announcements were made in reference to credentials for National Evangelists, canceling all old ones. The rally hour having arrived, the President introduced Dr. E. W. D. Isaac to speak of the rally program. Dr. L. G. Jordan, Secretary Promotion Drive, spoke,

To the President, Officers and Members of the National Baptist Convention:

Brethren:

It is known to each of you that on April 3, 1923, the Board of langers of our beloved Convention in Memphis. Tennessee, at the term endation of our farsighted President, projected a One Hundred Thousand Bollar Drive. The President recommended that the new state of the project, but only $500 was horself. I was requisitioned from the Foreign Mission Board to take are of in Drive, and am glad to report to you, no five-months in the first project of the project in Drive and an glad to report to you, no five-months in the first project in Drive and an glad to report to you. The last of any large affair by us was ever so successful. The last Price affair by us was ever so successful.

room, loaned us desk, and credited us for printing. The entre racial press has given us sympathetic cooperation. We have mailed not less than 50,000 tracts and circular letters to pastors and layned indeed, we have reached the most distant of our churches with the needs of the parent body, in building our Publishing House, and strengthening our Boards. Two outstanding laymen pledged us two thousand and one thousand dollars each for the Drive. Thousands and thousands of our Baptists have shown their willingness to help in this splendld undertaking.

Our Denominational Weakness Is Really Our Strength.

The fact that a unit or church of our denomination can organize and do such solendid work tells us that we are able collectively to do anything reasonable for the whole denomination. The Abrasiaia Church of New York, and the Nazareth Church in Philadelphia, refsed $7,000 each in a day. The 16th Street Church in Birmingham, Ala. raised $13,000 in a day. And now the word comes that the Second Bantist Church of this Convention city, raised $22,000 in one day. Our plan-to have each church appoint a National Baptist Committee to canvass each member for a National Baptist Dollar, to be collected through the church treasurer or as the pastor may direct and to be reported to this body-would have more than given as $100,000. For the want of money to organize the campaign, we got only a few National Baptist Committees. But I am sure, as sure as I am about anything, that a National Baptist Committee in every church, soliciting a National Baptist Dollar from every member is each church is workable, and the results would be marvelous. We should report that amount at the dedication of our Publishing House.

We Are Able.

Indeed, to say there are not 400,000 Baptists farsighted and intelligent enough to see the wisdom of this, and that it should be paid is unthinkable. We collected $966.89 from the following sources:

We received pledges, tentative and otherwise, for more than $20,000. Hundreds of pastors promised to report at this meeting, and we are expecting to hear from them ere we close.

We should adjourn from here to meet in Nashville, September 4. 1824, and dedicate our $1400,000 Publishing House, raising every cent of it on DEDICATION DAY. Baptists from the ends of the earth would attend such an epoch-making meeting.

Respectfully submitted,

Brown, Tennessee, Editorial Secretary, was presented and delivered a very stimulating, helpful, suggestive and practical address on "Financing the Kingdom" or "Stewardship of Life Means Time; Its Duty and Privileges." Three essential qualifications in the steward are faithfulness, ability and accountability. Methods of revelation of stewardship. Precept, example and inference as follows:

STEWARDSHIP, IT'S DUTY AND PRIVILEGES.

All life is a stewardship when viewed from the correct angle. All human energy in whatever form it is manifested—whether physical, mental, moral or spirituat—is a sacred trust from God. The earth with its immeasurable and illimitable resources is put under the control of man for the development and use of his powers for God who is its Creator and Preserver. Gen. 1:28.

Time also enters into the account of our stewardship; for human life is in time and is measured in terms of money; when we use the phrase, "Time is money," we are subscribing to the doctrine that "time" is a salient factor in the results of human activity. Accountability is a solemn fact in the exercise of human activity; we must give an account "for every vain and idle thought and every word we say." The poet has thus paraphrased the philosopher's thoughts in this homely, but sacred phrase. The day of God's calling us to account as his stewards may be delayed, but it is coming as sure as God is God and right is right. For

"Though the mills of God grind slowly.

Vet they grind exceeding small;
Though with patience He stands waiting;
With exactness grinds He ail."

Some have claimed that "stewardship" is not the correct word to represent the relationship between God and man, and that the correct word is "partnership," but the contention is misleading for it is only a half truth. The fact is, that in this case the steward is made the partner; and his very partnership involves also a stewardship, while it allogether excludes the possibility of absolute ownership. This is easily seen, when it is considered that God, the Chief Partner, is absent personally from the scenes of transaction, and hence must commit his interests into the hands of his present partner who, acting thus, is a steward, for "A steward is one who has charge of the management of the affairs and business of another." Stewardship, according to the Bible use of the term, is an honorable position, involving much honor and trust from the person who makes the person his "steward." To be a steward of the interests of the Chief Partner in his absence is high honor enough.

It is enough for the servant that he be as his lord, said our Lord and Master. But in the exceeding lavishness of his love, the Father, having made us "sons of God," has offered us the privilege of partnership. Having created us in his own image (Gen. 1: 25), he made us partners, "partakers of the divine nature" (2 Peter 1:4). Thus reated and honored, man was, by this very fact, left free to exercise his own original choice in matters pertaining to his conduct and life. He could be, not a steward only, as every man must be, but a partner as well, if he would. The Christian has opened to him by his relationship with Jesus Christ, the unspeakable opportunity of becoming partners with God in all of his plans on earth, and even as they reach heaven. "Truly our portnership is with the Father. and with his Son, Jesus Christ" (1 John 1:3). For such a trust as this men must be trained and the training for it is through the office of stewardship. The partnership in the Firm of Heaven consists of the Fother, the Son, the Holy Spirit, and Christian men and women, and the community in which we live. The tools by means of which God tests men as to their character and skill are "things," everything that comes into man's hands or that touches him in his relation to God and his fellowmen.

The most potential factor in the training of men to become partners with God is money. It is selected perhaps because it occupies so important a place in the affairs of human life, that it makes up the sum total of life; money is the condensed, summarized expression of human activities and efforts. The money that a man earns is so much of himself, reduced to material form and expression. It represents his life's output; it is his own self, manifesting itself in material form, langible for convenience, and that the world might get a tangible measurement and expression of the man's ability and character. Money thus is a medium of exchange, and passes current among the world, giving the owner a right of way and an advantage when it comes to making universal demands for those things which have become the desire of manking and Christian men and women.

Even before laws were formulated, money was in circulation. "As a measure of value, it serves to measure things. The elements which enter to give value to things are, in the main: the raw material; the fife which is expended in physical energy, thought judgment; the skill required to fashion the material into shape for use; the time it takes to make and put the thing where it may be used; the demand which goes to determine the quantity and quality and hence the price. All these are elements in determining the value, and when these elements have come into combination and produced the thing, the price-mark must be put upon it. Money then, becomes the measure of the thing."

Money a Measure of Men.

Money not only measures the things exchanged, but in a very real sense it affords a measure, likewise, of those who exchange them Money measures men. It is a measure of his time, and be is paid by the hour, or the day, or the week, or the month. It is the measure of his skill or talent, and the amount he receives depends upon the kind of work he does within the time spent on it. The measure of this output in time and skill is money.

MINUTES

Money Makes the Man.

But we go further than to say that money measures the man but that money makes the man. As the man is making the money the money is also making the man. While the aliveramith is mating the delicate parts of the watch, those same delicate parts are making him, teaching him patience, skill and judgment, so the money acts and reacts upon the man who makes it. He who makes his money gambling is degenerated and loses out in the construction of character. But most of all does, money make the man in the distribution and the giving of it.

Some experienced observer has said that "Acquisition makes the money; distribution makes the man. Distribution without acquisition dissipates the money; acquisition without distribution dissipates the man."

"Work," as Henry Drummond said on the death of his friend John Ewing, of Melbourne, "is given man, not only, nor so much perhaps, because the world needs it, but because the workman needs it. Men make work, but work makes men. An office, a factory, is not only a place for making things and money, but it is a place for making men. The character moulding power of money was recognized by Paul when he came to fill out the details of his pen pertraits of the leaders required of the church (1 Tim. 3: 1-13). He was to be "no lover of money," while the deacons were to be "not greedy of filthy lucre." They both were to exercise their oversight of the flock of God not "for filthy lucre." but of a ready mind (1 Pet 5:2).

Money Talks or Reveals Men.

Yes, money talks, and while it is true that it is not on speaking terms with every one, and, to many it only says "good-bye," yet it speaks a various language which reveals the true inwardness of men. "Money is coined personality," and represents just what a man is worth and is in the market of the world. Illustration: The laboring man who toils with a pick for $2.00 per day; the clerk of $20 per week: business man with $1.000 per week balance sheel: Edison who sells a week's invention for $50.000. Each reveals the value of the man in the social measurement of the world's exchange.

Money Not All of Stewardship.

As potential as money is, there is no doubt that there are other things that enter into the stewardship that far outweigh money; the unselfish service of every man for his family; the prayers which he sends up daily for the cause of liberty and righteousness; the witness that he bears to the gospel are things that far outweigh material things, or anything that can be represented in terms of money. Regarded in this way, every bit of man's personality, thus and faith hecome free from the claims of "Caesar," and becomes truly "the almighty dollar."

Officers of the National Baptist Convention.

Our Duty As Stewards Under God.

It is not till we see ourselves, as redeemed believers, interested in the cause of the Master, which he has teft in our hands, that we shall rise up and do the things that he demands and that remain legging.

All of the works of our seven Boards, which represent in a peculiar way, the stewardship aspect of the kingdom, will bloom when pastors, members and all are able to see and recognize that "ye are not your own, but ye are bought with a price, even the precious blood of Jesus Christ." There is not a dollar that the Christ of God has on earth that is available, but those which are in the pockets and hands of his people; all the rest of the wealth is mortgaged and in the hands of those who are enemies to Jesus.

1. The cattle upon a thousand hills are his, but only those that are owned by his people can be milk, sell, or eat.

The silver and the gold are his, but only that portion of the silver and the gold that is held by Christians can he count upon for his work.

3. My Father is rich in houses and lands; but every single house and every farm of Christ is occupied by his brethren as tenants, and if they fail to give him his rent then they teave Jesus a pauper without a home or money with which to do his work.

This doctrine of stewardship contains the practical settlement of all of the financial questions of the churches of Jesus Christ to-day.

If the ministry grasped clearly the relation of this doctrine to the members, and if they would teach it faithfully, there would never be any problems of finance to confront the churches. The kingdom aspect of the gospel would soon be solved and abundance and extreme plenty would be found to solve the doctrine of Jesus. Christ's gospel is one with peace in its eye; it is to extract and appropriate and utilize every valuable force and factor in the "kingdoms of this world" and organize them into a new, spiritual, constructive force which is to cooperate in the erection of the "Kingdom of our Lord and his Christ."

All of these factors and forces are expressed and contained in that combination and means of civilization which man call "money"; and it is the lack of money or means which is delaying the coming of the Kingdom, and it is largely because the members of the churches do not know their actual duty to this aspect of the Kingdom; they are not taught it. Wherever the believer is faithfully taught the doctrine of stewardship, the means are always forthcoming to build substantially all of the factors and agencies devoted to the Kingdom of Jesus Christ.

Passing through Salt Lake City recently, returning from the great western National Baptist Convention, a living demonstration of this fact was found in the Mormons who teach the doctrine of stewardship to the extent that every member dedicates, consecrates and faithfully sets apart the tenth of his earnings to the support of the church of Christ. The result is that although they number only a balf million in the entire world, they have no dearth of means for the work in which they believe. Their massive buildings, extensive system of missionary operation, and every department of their activities are supported to the limit of their hopes.

Sig.-4

This would be true also of the Baptist missionary objectives if we were only faithful in the teaching of this valuable and practical doctrine of stewardship. It is time for us to awake out of our sleep for the duy is at hand when the Lord draweth nigh and will demand an accounting of us for the wealth and forces that he has entrusted into our hands.

The President presented Dr. P. J. Bryant, Chairman B. Y. P. U. Board, who in turn introduced Dr. E. W. D. Isaac, Corresponding Secretary B. Y. P. U. Board to submit the annual report of the Board. A very high tribute was paid the Secretary by the Chairman, Dr. Bryant, and Dr. A. J. Stokes. The Secretary, Dr. Isaac, rendered the best report under the circumstances of all the past years, showing careful business economy and a keen personal interest in the affairs of the Convention as a whole and the B. Y. P. U. Board in particular. He is the unfailing and never faltering one.

TWENTY-FOURTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE NATIONAL BAP TIST YOUNG PEOPLE'S UNION BOARD OF THE NATIONAL BAPTIST CONVENTION.

To the Officers and Members of the National Daptist Convention: In submitting this our annual report we think it appropriate as well as reminiscent to remind you that when you committed this phase of the denominational work to our hands very few of our constituents had any faith in the success of the movement. The nature of the young people's movement was both misunderstood and misrepresented. Many of our pastors regarded the Union as an organization composed of intelligent young people whose chief delight was to test the knowledge of the minister; to offer him captious criticism: to question his authority; to exchange influence with him in the administration of the affairs of the church. Many old people regarded the movement as an effort to separate the young people from their parents and aged relatives and to establish an "imperium in imperio." Many of the young people regarded it as an opportunity to demonstrate their knowledge of language, literature and music and make substantial additions to an already congenial atmosphere. With such misuterpretations and consequent misgivings the task was difficult and the outlook discouraging. Your Board believed that these handicaps could be removed, and, consequently, proceeded with the firm resolution to remove them. It is gratifying beyond expression to note the stead progress that has accompanied our efforts to give this movement proper place in the active, operative life of the denomination.

Spiritual Development.

Your Board still recognizes and appreciates the fact that the church and the gospel can make progress only in proportion to the manner in which the spiritual life is developed. Evidences a plentiful and convincing that the old world is pretty sick and in need of a medicine that will be uniform in its effects upon the habitants thereof. We have listened attentively and eagerly to numbered antidotes, many of them purely social and economic the cure of a sick world and its diseased inhabitants. Like the late President Harding, we are among those who believe that the old medicine-faith in God and loyalty to the eternal verities-is still the only cure. Writing to the Union of American Hebrew congregations. which met last March in New York, the President paid tribute to the strength and persistence of the Jewish faith, and the continuing newer and influence of the Jewish people, when he said: "I can not but feel that these things are in large measure due to the Hebrew conception of the personal God and of the individual accountability of men and women. There is evident almost everywhere in the world the need for a restoration of the soul of religious devotion; for individual consecration of that ideal of religion which recognizes it as able to give supperhing that neither patriotism nor civic virtue can ever afford. The human race, or certainly great and potential sections of it, has been getting away from its religious moorings. It needs a revival of the conception of the personal relationship of God to man and of man to God; a restoration of faith in the fundamentals that are elemal. The world needs the assurance of faith in the Almighty. and the tranquility which comes of that faith."

Promoting Bible Study.

As we make progress in the development of this work we realize more fully the need of systematic, prayerful study of the grand old book-the tible. Interest in Hible study has increased marvelously slace we began the work of the National Bible Conference and Christion Workers' Institute. Thousands of people are enrolled in our Bible Study classes who have not heretofore become interested in Bible Study. Since the last meeting of the Convention we have entered into a compact with our own Sunday School Board by which we are enabled to hold two of these conferences each month. We employ trained and competent teachers; and, as a rule, get splendid results. Our Bible Readers' Circle continues to increase and proportionately the demand increases for Bibles and simpler and more effective metheds of Bible Study. Because of this growing interest in Bible study we have appointed a Bible Secretary, who is required to select and formulate courses of study and superintend the distribution of Bibles and Testaments. It is his duty also to conduct the examinations and issue the certificates to the candidates for graduation from the Systematic Bible Readers' Course. Our work in this department has been encouraged and strengthened by cooperation on the part of 111 American Bible Society of New York. This Society supplies Bibles at cost, and in many cases at considerably less than cost, and the expenses of producing the Ribles are not quite half covered by the receipts from sales. This Society has a budget of $1,160,177 for the year 1923, and, according to a statement made by its Secretary, it could spend $5,000,000 if it could get the money from the subscribers, and still not meet the world's demand for new Bibles. The endowment of the Society yields only $36,000 a year, and the rest of the money must come from persons and churches interested in seeing he master work of the world in the hands of every human being on e globe. This Society has just placed the largest single order for bles known in the history of the book-an order for 3,000,000 copies of six separate books of the Scriptures-Mark, Luke, John,

Acts and Proverbs. Each book will be printed in a finy volume to be sold in this country and South America for one cent each. These books are to be delivered to the Society at the rate of 50,000 copies per day or 10,000 per hour. This rapid production of Bibles is a long step from the first Gutenberg Bible, which occupied five years in the printing. We trust sincerely that B. Y. P. U. organizations throughout the country will make liberal contributions at stated times to this Society and aid thereby in meeting this increasing demand for the libble.

Our efforts to promote Bible study are justified by the significant fact that there is a dearth of Scripiure knowledge among our people that is both alarming and prophetic of an approaching era of decline in matters of religion. We have witnessed at last the fulfillment of the prediction made by the prophet Amos when he said, "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord God, that I will send a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor a thirst of water, but of hearing the words of the Lord." Ignorance of the word of God is an astounding fact for which there is no justification. Not long ago a body of students of the University of North Dakota were asked to give eight quotations from the Bible. We are told that only eight and one half per cent of them passed an average of seventy-five per cent, the average for the whole body being less than forty per cent. "The Watchman-Examiner," a Baptist paper of high repute, analyzed this situation and made the following startling report: "Seven per cent of these students could not name a book of the Old Testament, and less than fifty per cent could give ten books of the Old Testament. In naming the books of the Old Testament some mentioned Paul, Timothy, Titus, 1 and 2 Romans, Philistines and Xerxes. The answers in regard to the New Testament were still more unsatisfactory. Twelve -eight and one-half per cent-were unable to mention a single book: only forty-six-thirty-three and one-third per cent-mentioned ten as requested. Five put Samuel in the New Testament, three the Psalms, three Ruth, and two Eather, one mentioned 1 and 2 Judges. Seventeen mentioned St. Paul, three suggested Simon, two Jacob. There was the mention of Thelsesians, Philipi, Thomas, Lazarus and Samson, Agonistes. And so it is. When the most cultured of our young people are requested to demonstrate their knowledge of the Scriptures, they are "weighed in the balances and found wanting." A more diligent distribution of the Bible is one of the imperative duties that we cannot neglect any longer. Experience has taught 15 that it pays to place the Bible within easy reach of the people; that it will then do its own work in many cases, if an interpreter cannot be found. The Gideons reached the conclusion that traveling men, who were constantly away from home, were deprived of the privilege of reading the Bible in a regular and profitable manner. They also decided that they might improve this situation by putting a copy of the Testament in the rooms of the hotels throughout the country. This they did, wherever the proprietors would permit. Splandid results have followed. In several cases the traveling men carried the Testaments away with them, read them carefully and became converted. Some of them have returned the Testaments, or their equivalent in money, to the hotel management, thanking them for placing the book within their reach and giving notice that they are happily converted and enlisted for service in the Kingdom. Your sound makes the insistent plea that there he the closest cooperation in the distribution of the Scriptures on the part of every agency that is serving this denomination. We call special attention also to the Biblical Lesson which appears each month in the "B. Y. P. U. Quarterly," with the request that it be considered in the most palustaking manner. The prince of teachers commended this book—the Bible—to the admiration and esteem of all his followers when He said, "The words that I sneak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life."

Importance of Doctrinal Culture.

We recognize the serious and hazardous features of our work when it comes to the indoctrination of our young people. Tradition has made educational and cultural processes extremely difficult. Religious claus and cults are multiplying rapidly whose only defense is the parrot-like quotation of numberless Scripture passages and the interpretation of these passages in the light of the fads which they exploit. It is easily observable that with the increase of intelligence is the increasing trend toward heterdoxy. It seems that the White Baptists of the North are facing a rapidly approaching doctrinal storm. Among them are ministers who deny the virgin birth of Christ and consequently all the essential attributes of Jesus. They have forced the Regulars to a compromise of this nature: "It is within the right of all Baptists to give expression to their own views." The Disciples Church is disturbed in the same manner. In Chicago the Congregationalists are lined up squarely on doctrinal issues and only great care on the part of their leaders has prevented an open rupture. The "Christian Century," an undenominational newspaper, remarks that hesides the wrench in the Baptist denomination, the Constegationalist and Presbyterian communions are considerably perturbed, and the Disciples even more bitterly forn than they, while Methodists and Episcopalians are, up to this date, keeping the controversy in the hounds of fairly good order. In order that one may get a glimpse into the perversions of doctrine arising out of this so-called liberal spirit a sample of the new doctrine is given. A reputable New York Baptist minister has recently made the following declaration: "Christ is coming with the eye of one who is aroused and indignant, in whose being beats the pulse of hot anger. He comes forth as one who no longer seeks either friendship or love. His garments are dipped in blood, in the blood of others. He descends that he may shed the blood of men. He will enunciate his claim by terror and by might. He will write it in the blood of his foes. He comes like the treader of the winepress and the grapes are the hodies of men.

le and trample in his fury till the blood of men shall nil the earth. He will tread and trample them beneath his accusing feet till their unspuring blood shall make them crimson. He comes a his glory and as the Saviour meek and lowly, not through the suftrace of willing hearts and the plaudits of a welcoming world, but as an authorate, a despot, through the gushing blood of a trampled woll. And those who follow this emergent, wrathful King of heaven from sented as armies. They come forth as a hody of fighters.

They come to assist the Warrior to war on the earth. In this way the Kingdom is to come, not by the preaching of the gospel and the all-persuasive power of the spirit of God."

If the pulpit assumes such an attitude toward the fundamental doctrines of the Bible we will soon be face to face with a radicalism that denies everything that is fundamental to Christianity. The nead of this doctrinal training is emphasized also by the fact that many young people are entering college as Christians and graduating as atheists or agnostice. Some of our sons and daughter's come home with a sheep skin showing proficiency in the arts and sciences and little, or none at all, in religion. This is an unhappy divorce between education and religion, due in some measure to the fact that too frequently there are to be found, particularly in the departments of philosophy and of natural science, men and women openly and positively scornful of the church and of the reality of religion. This is a condition that leaders in our churches should study in a serious and devout manner. When a boy or girl goes from his home church to spend from four to seven years at educational institutions, and comes back disturbed in his faith or uncertain in his beliefs, out of touch with his church, it is a wise thing for the church to consider the measure of its responsibility for that unhappy state of things. The church should have foreseen the problem that boy was to face. It should have seen that the Christian religion was presented to him in terms compatible with the truth as it would come to him in school and college. There is no clash between science and religion. The heavens still declare the glory of God, and the firmament still showeth his handlwork. The Christian religion is capable of being stated in such a way that it can live in hearty and self-respecting fellowship with modern science. And the church is not beginning to meet its grave responsibility for the oversight of the souls of its youth until it is going to the extreme limit of possibility in presenting the truth of Christ in that intelligent, practical, life-giving manner that makes it accord rather than clash with the truths of modern science. If more diligent effort should be made to get cultured, trained people to train the young, our troubles in this particular respect would lessen rapidly. However hazardous may be the task it behooves us to teach young people of our denomination, at the earliest age possible. the doctrines, customs and polity of our great denomination. Our weekly lessons are planned with that thought constantly in mind-The "B. Y. P. U. Quarterly" contains a Doctrinal Lesson each second Sunday, which is illustrated and verified by the Scriptures. We believe that by such a systematic study of the doctrines we shall be able to increase intelligence among our young Baptists and to confirm their faith in the principles to which their ancestors have given their lives.

The Missionary Feature.

We are truly glad to note that there is a marked advance in the study of Christian missions from a Scriptural point of view and a corresponding increase of missionary activities among our your people. We find that many of the young people are taking the missionatudy courses; and, consequently, engaging more heartly in missionary endeavor. Contributions for missionary work are increasing also in a very pleasing and comfortable ratio. A slight glance at the reports of the missionaries, both home and foreign, reveals the sigafficant fact that B. Y. P. U. societies are among the regular and healthy contributors to all phases of missionary work. Because of their regularity the missionaries and other representatives of the denomination regard the young people societies as most valuable assets in the missionary systems, and call upon them with a remarkable degree of uniformity and assurance. Our denomination preserves itself as it does effective missionary work. In this particular respect we should he as wise as the children of darkness who make missionary propaganda for evil purposes. We are told that proletarian Sunday schools in England are growing dangerously in numbers and influence and creating much alarm among English churchmen because the schools have a definite policy of turning children of tender years from the religion, morals and hypocrisy of the master-class and sowing in their minds the seeds of the revolutionary conception of life. The songs taught in the proletarian Sunday schools are said to be songs of revolt; their apprit a spirit of intense, bitter, extreme class hatred. They have a full-fledged set of catechtisms in which England is denonneed and Russia praised as the one bright spot on earth. Religion is scorned, patriotism derided, and the national flag insulted, as a part of the ritual each Sunday morning. Everything is made attractive with games, acting, and stories of revolution and of revolutionary beroes. The children are taught to be missionaries of revolt at home. is school and on the playgrounds. If in this way any religious agency can be turned into an effective instrument in the hands of teachers of revolution; if it can be used so effectively for the service of class latred, surely it can be made more faithful in behalf of the gospel of bre with which alone these dangerous influences can be met. in the consideration of this subject we must not overlook the compensatory element in missionary endeavor. The faithful missionary casts bread upon the waters to be gathered after many days. The Christianization of India is one among many striking Illustrations of this truth. The missionaries are gaining many converts; but happily they are doing more than gaining converts. They are exercising a radiant influence which they themselves are unable to estimate, even if records were kept of their every kindly deed. They have joined to the ranks of Christianity 36,000 souls a year or one hundred a day. They are creating a soul under the ribs of death-bringing something alive, active, constructive, into the bodies of the old dead religious of India. A venerable missionary says, "To-day India is as the man with the withered hand in the temple. It is stretching out the hand and it is being healed. Many of the old, barbaric superstitions have already gone forever from the land they cursed for ages. The barbarism which has so long typified Indian superstition to other parts of the earth, has been forever relegated to the past. Let us observe also the African natives that have been educated in the schools of this country and take note of the splendid work that many of them are doing in their fatherland. Evidences of the gratifying results of missionary effort are so numerous that your Board feels justified in thesisting that the denomination give it the largest measure of cooperation in its efforts to develop this phase of its work. We are stiving all we can to give the Baptist young people the proper conception of the missionary scheme and to enlist them in active missignary work through our various denominational organizations. We labor earnestly to impress them with the thought that "Christ alone can save this world, but Christ can't save the world, alone." These two propositions contain the philosophy of Christian missions and the growth in our missionary concept is measured by the clearness with which we perceive their practical import. Those who have concentrated attention upon the difficulties involved, and considered the problem of the world's evangelization but superficially, propounced its accomplishment impossible. Those who have studied the problem more thoroughly are persuaded that the varied, laberent, articulated and obstinate conditions entrenched in the present order of things makes its solution improbable unless flod brings to bear upon it the subtle, persistent, inclusive resources of divine power, directed by divine wisdom and inspired by divine love. That Christ has finited himself in the solution of this problem to the cooperation of humon agents accounts for the slowness of the process, but makes our cooperation imperative. There is no case on record where God has converted a human soul without the precedent cooperation of some other human soul. In the conversion of Saul of Tarsus, He commissioned and persuaded Amanias to cooperate with Him as the required human agent. In the conversion of the eunuch Philip was the required human agent. Instances multiply, which prove conclusively that the conversion of souls is not by might but by the spirit of Got, who always seeks a willing and unobstructed human channel through which to communicate his grace. God makes the miracle of infinite grace depend upon the ministry of human weakness, that he and man may be laborers together, and consequently joint heirs in the outcome of the world's salvation.

The Social Aspect.

We are still witnessing the good results that attend our efforts to improve the social status among young people. The manner in which Christianity addresses itself to the problems of social life is appropriately styled "Applied Christianity." Approaching this subject from the standpoint of the youth we must deal seriously with the problem of amusement and recreation. It is as essential to teach young people how to play as it is to teach old people how to pray. In these dreadful, perilous times of war, when the thoughtful people have been compelled to study the problem of peace making, it has been discovered that play is a great peacemaker. Europe is learning box to play, which, in the opinion of a celebrated war worker, justices the hope that the coming generation will be able to reestablish peace and order. Mr. George E. Goss, who was an athletic director of the American Y. M. C. A. in France, says, "Everywhere and in all social classes there is evidence of an awakening to the value of play as a factor in national and international friendship." He says further. "this tremendous revival in sport may be clearly traced to the playgrounds of America. France responded almost at once to that love for athletics, which was a part of the equipment for every American soldier overseas and the other Allied Armies quickly caught the contagion of sport for sport's sake. When the Armistice sent the troops back to their homes the spirit of play filtered into village. town and city, and grew to such proportions as to seize the attention of governments, leading to the passage of new laws to regulate and encourage physical training as a part of national systems of education. Today Europe is doited with playgrounds and athletic fields. Former chiles and countless new ones are thriving and gaining in membership. Last summer there were thousands of boys in Y.M.C.A. camps at the seashore and in the camps in which purposes and friendships were comented and new ideas fostered. The Y. M. C. A. physical direclots have been called in on many occasions to give counsel to government committees in drafting physical education laws. National and international athletic meetings have been conducted which have succeeded in startling measure in overcoming racial hatreds and prejudices. "In the light of these discoveries as to the value of amusement and sport it becomes the bounden duty of religious teachers and leaders to study diligently the psychology of recreative sport and how to utilize that knowledge in the development of the young people for the higher and nobler uses of their bodies, which the Scriptures designate as temples of the living God. Books, magazines and other literature containing helpful suggestions for the regulation of the amusement and recreation processes should be purclused with the greatest care and used in the most diligent and effective manner. Your Board makes a specialty of such books, magazines and other literature and stands ready to serve all who wish to engage in the study of the social aspects of the Christian religion. Under the social head comes also the consideration of the church and its relation to human society. At this point we contend that the church must exercise greater religious influence in worldly affairs. The world is using modern methods, while in too many cases the church is still resorting to ox cart methods of progress and wondering why it moves so slowly. The great power of young people's organizations seems to be waning before the encroachments of the colored supplements, the movies and the billboards-all of these largely directing the thoughts of the young people of to-day. Roger W Babson, the emineut business statistician, says: "If the church is truly serious in Its desire to accomplish results, its members will endeavor to acquire control of the newspaners, movies and billboards of their community." Religious control, by which is meant control by religious men, should be extended, he suggests, to include radio, the retail business in which 5,000,000 are daily engaged in forming and training the desires of our children; banking and certain manufacturing industries. Under the last head is listed the manufacturing of women's garments, on the theory that if "fashions are the inevitable," they ought to be determined by the better element of the community, instead of the worst, especially when the change can be so easily accomplished. Leaders in church are making the and confession that the church is losing its grip on the masses. They wonder why lodges, mutual benefit associations, insurance companies and other organizations are growing so rapidly while the church is lagging behind. One reason is that the church is using outgrown methods to reach the people while lodges and mutual benefit associations are using modern methods. The church must hear the great artheat of sorrow and respond to the cry of the unfortunate. While "pentagee and faith are fundamentals in the doctrine of salvation be fact remains that true religion must express itself in service.

Service expresses a great central truth of our religion and belongs with worship. It must also attest the reality and genuiness of worship. It can not be right to pray for what we are not trying to accomplish in the use of our lives and opportunities.

Young People's Congress.

This particular organization has been very helpful to us in the development of the educational work of this Board. It has enphasized the need of trained workers and furnished splendid apportunity to illustrate from that point of view. It brings together annually large groups of Christian workers who are interested in a study of the problem of dealing with young people. These groups represent the teaching force in our young people's organizations. The Congress secures the service of a number of trained teachers who are thoroughly competent for the work assigned them. The recent session of the Congress was attended by a large number of religious teachers and Christian workers from all sections of the country. This session was the largest in point of numbers and interest that has ever been held anywhere in the country. The President of the Congress is in full sympathy with the policy of the Convention and shows a disposition to conform at all times to the regulations and usages of that body. He realizes fully the scope and significance of the work which the Congress is obligated to do. and endeavors faithfully to perform his duty in that particular te spect. If this organization continues to grow in point of numbers and service as it has grown since the date of its organization, it will be one of the largest, most Inspiring and most helpful agencies of the denomination.

A Dangerous Reaction.

When we reached the place where we could turn over to the Covention a valuable piece of property free from debt, we felt certain that our constituents would feel more inclined to rally to the support of this movement. The reaction, however, was somewhat disappointing. Many of our people came to the conclusion that as the Board was reported out of debt, and making splendid progress with its work, it was no longer in need of money for the prosecution of its work; overlooking the fact that increased opportunities bring increased responsibilities. We recognize the duty of enlarging our work and extending it into sections which it has not yet reached. Much money is needed for the accomplishment of this task. We trust, therefore, that our heed of financial help, and respond to our appeals as they have done hereofore.

Field Work.

The field work has been done by the same persons mentioned in our report last year. Hev. Wm. L. Craft is still serving as Field Secretary and doing a most excellent work. His health is still problematical, in consequence of which we recognize the necessity of sending hist each winter to get the benefit of the lighter climate in the Western section of the country. We are still hoping and praying for his permanent recovery so that he can pursue his work with the zeal, vigor and aggressiveness which characterized his efforts before the approach of this unfortunate period of declining health [His labors on the field are supplemented by those of Revs. D. H. Hamilton, J. N. Washington and L. N. Cheek, each of whom readers most timely and helpful service.

Our Cooperative System.

Our plans of cooperation with the State B. Y. P. U. Boards are more fully understood and more thoroughly appreciated than in former years. Unfortunately several of the state boards are unable to render any substantial help to the organizers appointed and the greater portion of the burden of maintenance rests necessarily upon our Board. Despite this fact there are several B. Y. P. U. Conventions that never appropriate a dollar for the work of this board unless the liberal sends a representative whose expenses are, in most cases, more than the amount appropriated. During the last fiscal year we accomplished the following splendid results by means of this convertion:

Number of miles traveled by railroad	84,220
Number of days labored	3,162
Number of miles traveled otherwise	650
Number of B.Y.P.U. societies visited	701
Number of lectures concerning B.Y.P.U. work	701
Number of Senior Unions organized	229
Number of Junior Unions organized	91
Number of City Unions organized	43
Number of District Unions organized	38
Number of Study Classes organized	84
Number of tracts and leaflets distributed	82,280
Number of sermons preached	159
Number of prayer meetings attended	159
Number of B.Y.P.U. encampments visited	28
Amount of money collected	$8,652,52

Property Holdings.

The status of the properly has been given in the Board's reports from time to time. Nothing new can be said on that subject. The Board transferred the property to the Convention in accordance with a resolution adopted by the Convention in Indianapolis, Ind., September. 1920, and the deed is now a matter of record to be found book number 600, page 216, of the records of Davidson County, remesses. It is advisable to state that since its property has been deeded to the Convention the bank does not regard it as an asset at the loard. For that reason the bank officials require that the invention authorize the Board by resolution to borrow what money increds for the operation of its business during the year. Such a besolution is herewith submitted for the favorable consideration of the Convention. Your Board feels the weight of the obligations that rest upon it; it recognizes its duty and responsibility as your frustel servant; it appreciates in the fullest sense the honor thus conferred upon it, and pledges itself abow to the faithful and honest discharge of the duties enjoined by this trust.

The report was referred. A motion extending thanks to West Virguia State Convention for its contribution prevailed. Benediction.

Evening Session.

Devotional singing conducted by Rev. Skipwith. "I Am Living on the Mountain," "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say," were sung as praise hymns and prayer was made by Rev. M. C. Durham, Tennessee. The chorus rendered two beautiful selections. Dr. J. C. Austin, Pennsylvania, presented a special resolution touching the annual address of the President and its distribution. A motion to suspend the rules prevailed, and the resolution was immediately approved.

Resolution.

To the Presiding Officer of America's Loyalty Baptists of Color-Officers and Constituency of the World's Greatest Assemblage of Negro People:

I wish to offer a special resolution touching our President's first annual message. This being the greatest document ever read in our midst from the point of charming heauty in rhetoric, logical reasoning, and definite conclusions, forceful utterances and convincing facts, we owe it to the waiting world to broadcast this message over the universal tongue of the press, so that friend and foe may read and know.

The purpose of our coming to Los Angeles will not be realized unless we get into the hands of these citizens the program of the Baptists as set forth in the President's message. The Baptists here, that is, some of them, are ashamed of themselves because they have been misinformed as to their work and worth. Some of the once loyal Baptists have denounced the faith and gone after strange doctrines and idol gods. Some have been told that the Baptists slow, ignorant and non-progressive. The President's message take inventory before the eyes of the public and proves our liabilities to be no greater than that of other denominations, while our assets in outstrip all others combined.

In this immortal document we better understand the amount of our holdings, we are founded on truth, the knowledge of which makes men free; we are governed by a code of ethics as pure as the crystal waters in which angels bathe their shining faces; no man nor set of men compiled our guide book—it was thought out in the eternal council chamber of God, written by His secretary, the Holy Spirit, and brought to the clurch by the Son of God and the Christ of man

This message proved to us that we are not a feeble crowd but are blessed with financial resources, presided over by Negro bankers both men and women, of whom we can but be proud. The Baptists have more rich and well-to-do members than any other Negro group. We have an educated ministry to-day which the world must receive which will take its place with the clergy of the earth and hold its own doctrine and the field of scientific truth.

Our President's message revealed the fact that we have not only the leaders for the Baptists, but the Moses for the Race. His vision sweeps him far across the line of denominationalism as loader, and his prophecy concerns the nations of the whole earth. This message reveals the fact that we have a leader fearless, though humble and meck. He is rich in experience, ripe in scholarship, though never boasting. He is more than a mere man, he is an anointed, ordained, indued and commissioned son of God, whose orders read: "Unite your Baptist family, stir the spirit of your race until consciousness of purpose and pride of being become the spinal brace of manifold." In his message we saw the hope of collecting the principal debt of the Soulli to our fathers and the compound interest so long neglected. This message, if heard or read, will bring to this leader the loyal support of 3,500,000 Baptists who await definite marching orders.

If it is read by the white man he will have the truest interpretation of our thoughts, of our desires and our determinations. We have had a great feast, but like the lepers of Samarla, we do not well to enjoy this alone. This day is a day of good things and we hold our peace. Come that we may go and tell the king's house. In the light of this truth, be it resolved that this annual message of President L. K. Williams be sent to the world through the Associated Press of America and that this Convention finance the same, whatever the cost.

Solo, Mrs. A. S. E. Winston, Kansas, "Clear the Line." Encore, "Swing Low."

Rev. L. B. Brown, California, presented Mr. Roland Paul, Vice President of the Guaranteed Mortgage Securities Company, to speak upon "Thrift." Dr. S. N. Vass, Secretary Religious Education, spoke briefly upon "Religious Education," as follows:

There is urgent need for the teaching pastor who cannot only inspire but instruct his people. Until more attention is given to teaching by our pastors we shall fail to obey the great commission. This work is too fundamental and indispensable for our pastors to leave it to any auxiliary of the church. Our Lord was the Master Teacher, and one reason why John saw that Carist must increase while he himself must decrease, was the solid basis upon which our Lord builded, the educational process, not merely inspiring but teaching by arousing the soul activity of bis hearers.

Of all people Baptists should feel under a special obligation to teach the Bible. The chief reason why there are so many sects and schisms is because of a lack of understanding of God's Word. The best method of calling the people back to Jesus and holding them true to his teachings is to place the greatest possible emphasis upon religious education, instructing the people in the teachings of the Bible, and how to study the Bible, as well as training our young people to love and engage in the work of every department of the church

Our Publishing Board is alive to the needs of the Kingdom, and bas created a department of Religious Education, and placed a man of long and tried experience at the head of it, and has also published a texthook for the use of the pupils of this department entitled, "How to Study and Teach the Bible," 634 pages, price $1.50 and the course of study is taught by correspondence, free of all charge, except the price of the book. This course of study is not only for Sundayschool teachers but leaders and workers in every auxiliary of the church should take the course and receive the diploma of the Sunday School Publishing Board. We would especially urge members of our churches to get this book and take this course of study in order to help evangelize sinners. It takes an experienced person to do successful evangelistic work, and he should know all possible about the character and works of God, and also the working of the human mind so as to arouse interest in the salvation of the souls of the unconverted.

Both addresses were well received. The chorus sang sweetly "Just Think of His Goodness to You." Brother Wm. Lewis sang as a solo "I Will Draw All Men Unto Me." Rev. R. C. Barbour. Texas, was presented and preached an excellent sermon from the theme, "The Leadership of the Spirit." Text: Rev. 2: 7. The appearance of this young man upon the program bespeaks the future growth of the churches and the Convention. Dr. B. J. Perkins, Tenn., offered a fervent prayer. Solo, "The Land of Uncloudy Day," Dr. A. Wilbanks, D. C. Dr. J. M. Nabritt presented Captain R. Pearson Hobson, naval here of 1898 and ex-congressman of Alabama, who spoke upon the method of checking the evils of narcotics. An offering was taken while the chorus sang "Shine, Shine."

THIRD DAY.

September 7, 1923.

The National Baptist Convention convened at 9:30 a.m. and opened with devotional singing led by Rev. Skipwith. "Am I a Soldier of the Cross?" was sung and prayer was offered by Rev. L. F. Grier. Mississippi "What a Fellowship" was sung. Prayer by Dr. M. W. Johnson. West Virginia. Dr. J. C. Jackson. Connecticut, presiding, made opening remarks and the announcement of the death of Dr. J. H. VanLue, Kansas, was made. John 3:16 was repeated in concert. Dr. W. Augustus Jones, Penusylvania, was presented to address the Convention from the theme, "The Uplifted Christ-the Only Victory Over Sin." After brief introductory remarks Dr Jones delivered a very timely and excellent sermonic address to the edification of the vast audience. "Jesus Keep Me Near the Cross" was sung and mail and telegrams were announced.

The President introduced Dr. D. S. Shadd, Chairman of Benefit Board who introduced Secretary H. W. Holloway to make his annual report. The report showed a perfect grasp of insurance features and the perfect feasibility of the operation of the Board and the great possibilities of making it a paying proposition. The report was

Our Possibilities.

The possibilities of no other department of the Convention, perhaps, is greater than is the possibilities of this department, and the only thing needed to realize our ideals is the hearty cooperation and support of the Convention. It is possible for this department to be of more service to the work generally than it is for any other department. With the proper spirit of cooperation from the other departments of the Convention, and the unstituted support and so dorsement of the officials of the Convention, we will not only be able to create the pension fund for the aged ministers of our denomination, but we will be able to assist in a substantial way in carrying forward the work of the denomination from many angles.

As pointed out in our report last year, we will not be able to create the fund by sollciting as was first tried, as it is hard to interest our people sufficiently to get them to contribute sufficient money to create the fund, but it must be created in a more substantial way. Persons who are not able to demand, command and attact the attention of people in the present, can't do much by referring to their past record.

Our people are too quick to forget the fellow who has done, but they are always ready in turn to the fellow who is doing now. They don't look with much favor on the fellow who used to be able to do much but is not able now. They say he used to be a good old wagon, but be has broken down, or some such sarcastic statement is made of him. So we are convinced that no headway will be made soliciting funds from the people to create the Aged Ministers Fund, and still it should be done, and if it is to he done, some other way must be found to do it.

We made some investigation from other organizations that operate this fund and found the following:

Ministers and Missionaries' Benefit Board of the Northern Baptist Convention. Rev. E. T. Tomlinson, Ph.D.,Litt.D., executive secretary, furnished me with the plan of operation of his board, which shows that the minister himself or some one in his behalf must courthule in a substantial manner to the creation of the fund during the line that the minister is able to function properly as such. Their rule is that ministers must pay in to the Roard 6 per cent of their salary annually from the age of thirty to the age of sixty-five, and then at the age of sixty-five they are retired at a pension of one-half the salary they received during his time of service. They also provide that if the minister should die before he reaches the relirement period that the amount accommulated shall be paid to his surviving relatives. They provide ald for others from special allotments made from the churches, and this is done in an approved manner.

This system will not work with us so well at this time. The misister bimself will not be willing to set aside six per cent of his amoust salary for this purpose in large enough numbers to create the fund, nor will the churches at this time agree, I think, to pay it for them, and in most cases the minister would rather the church pay him the amount, so we have yet to try to find a system that we can operate to create the fund from. We feel sure that we have the plan if we can get the cooperation of the churches and it will work.

The National Baptist Benefit Association, is the name under which this department first began operation. They began issuing certifirates to members of Baptist churches on the payment of $2.50, and then charged the member one dollar per quarter or four dollars per vent to keep the certificate in force. The face value of the ceriffeate was two hundred dollars, and was in full force for that amount immediately on issuance. This was the scheme then, and is the scheme now. It had some had features about it at that time, but with elimination of those bad features, and then with the support of the Convention as before stated, this will undoubtedly be the one that will create the Aged Ministers' Pension Fund, and at the same time create a fund from which relief can be given to Baptist members generally, and a surplus will be created from which a home for the aged ministers and other aged members of the denomination can he built and maintained, and a hospital can also be built and maintained for the proper care of the sick of our denomination. The following example if carefully studied will verify this statement.

We have modified the membership certificate, and Isaue two forms of certificates, but we give this example from Class B certificate which is issued to members of Baptist churches only, on the payment of $3.50. It takes $10.20 per year to keep it in force. On the day the certificate is issued on the payment of the $3.50 it is worth $25.00 to the surviving relatives of the deceased member, that is to say, if the member should die the noxt minute after he pays for and receives his certificate his surviving relatives would receive $25.00 in not more than ninety days from the time the death proof is received and approved at our headquarters. After the member shall have paid six months dues the certificate is worth $50.00; after twelve months dues shall have an paid the certificate is worth $75.00; after two years it is worth $25.00; after four full years, $350.00, and after five full years, $350.00, and after five full years the certificate is worth $50.00. its face value.

The member is allowed to draw $3.50 per week after he shall have paid in six moniths' dues or the total sum of $5.10, in addition to his mining fee of $3.50, and $7.00 per week after he shall have paid in welve months' dues or the total sum of $10.20 in addition to his joints fee of $3.50, on account of disability caused by accident or stekss, but the amount so drawn will be deducted from the value of the retificate at the death of the member.

It member lives in this department fifteen years and keeps is excularly and on time and does not draw sick or accident herefits he will be given $100.00 cash in hand, and his membership certificate will in he worth five hundred dollars to be paid to his surviving relatives at his death.

One hundred thousand members at $3.50 each, joining fee makes a total of $350,000.00, and one hundred thousand members at $10.20 yearly dues gives us $1,020,000.00, add these two items together and we have a grand total of $1,370,000.00. We would take 60 per cent of the total collection and set it aside to take care of death, sick and accident claims which amounts to $822,000.00. According to the latest census report of the Covernment twelve people die out of everthousand annually so we make an allowance for double the Government report and set aside sufficient to pay the claims of 2,400 instead of 1,200 the first year. The membership certificate provided for payment of fifty dollars for the first year on death claims; this would give us $120,000.00 to pay the first year for death claims. The membership certificate provides that a member may draw $3.50 per week for ten weeks out of the first year after six months' payment. So we set aside $35.00 each for ten thousand members for alchness or accident for the first year which amounts to $350,000.00 Now, all persons who join institutions don't keep up, so according to our experience about ten per cent will drop out if conditions are good, so we allow for ten thousand to drop out the first year. We have taken credit of the dues for the full hundred thousand, so if these people drop out and don't pay another cent we must charge it off, so we deduct $102,000.00 for lapses from the first year, then we set aside $60,000.00 out of the first year's business to take care of the business the second year as the amount of sick dues will be greater, and the amount of death claims will be greater, the set aside $50,000.00 for the Aged Ministers' Pension Fund and add all together and we have a total of $622,000.00. But the sixty per cent of the total amount received amounted to $822,000.00, so we have a balance of $200,000.00 to be used in erecting and maintaining a hospital and a home for the aged ministers and a home for the other aged members of the denomination.

But this is not all. Our total receipts from one hundred thousand members for the first year is $1,370,000.00, and we have only accounted for sixty per cent of this amount which is $322,000.00 is taken from the total receipts of $1.370,000.00 leaves us still $548.000.00 for operating expenses. The highest paid secretary in our Convention receives about thirty-five hundred dollars per year, but in this example we want to show that the officers may receive:

Cor. Secretary, per year$	5,000.0
Chairman, per year	1,200.00
	1,000.00
Clerical force	50,000.0m
Rent, janitor, lights, fuel, printing and other miscellaneous expenses	10,400.00
Field representative, 25 per cent of yearly dues	255,004.44
Total$

Which would leave us a balance of $50,800, and then we deduct from this amount $15,000,00 as a reserve for operating expense and we still have left $35,800,00 that our Board would have absolutely no need for except to give it to the Convention to aid in other 42

partments of its work. These are our possibilities and can be realized in twelve months if we can get the right kind of a machine to operating to put the program over.

Our Problems.

We thought of allotting this number of prospective members to interest our denomination sufficiently to realize the possibilities just summerated to you.

We thought of alloting this number of prospective members to the several states and then seek the cooperation of the best business nen in the denomination in the several states to put it over. It must be done in a businessitive manner. Sentiment will not put this proposition over. We can't get far enough advanced by sentiment unless that sentiment has been crystallized so as to reach all the folks it once

If it were possible for all of our Boards to join in one mammoth drive for just thirty days I think the desired results would be obtained and the Boards would not suffer loss of finance for the time turned from their own work for that length of time. But that is a question yet to be decided. It is a sure thing, that if the Secretaries of each of the Boards could let their forces in all narts of the country turn their attention to the work of this department for thirty days the percentage that we could afford to allow them for their help in this matter would more than doubly pay them for the time given. Failing in this, then we would endeavor to get the moral support of all the Convention forces. What we mean by moral support is that all departments put in one solid month in boosting this department, speaking words of encouragement about it. But before we begin on such a campaign we will of necessity have to do at least one hundred thousand dollars worth of advertising. In order to get one hundred thousand members we will have to reach at least a half million people who would be acceptable if they desired to take membership, so it will take at least sixty days to advertise such a campaign, and when thus advertised if we can make up the teams in the several states, to go to the folks, we will solve the one and only problem that we have, that is getting one lumdred thousand members in the Convention year. That we will need money to advertise with goes without saying, but that is not a problem, we see no trouble in getting the money to do the advertising with, if we can only get the whole-hearted support of the denomination. We do not feel like getting money to put over a proposition for the denomination when it is pulling back, when they are not speaking encouragingly about it. If we are assured, in a substantial way that the Convention will get behind this proposition we can get all the needed cash to do all we want to do in a success. We are hopeful that this will be accomplished in 1993 24

Our Handicap.

The greatest hindrance that we have encountered in the operanon of this business is the bad effect that has been given to the work by officers of the Convention. In the Convention that met in Newark, New Jersey, we had the largest number of members on roll that I had seen, and while I was not the executive secretary I had much to do with the business of the Board. We collected from five bundred members before going to that session, in the July quarter. The business was in the most healthly condition but when the Auditor reported that he found the hooks out of balance and being poorly kept and other discouraging things, we were not able to collect from one hundred in the October quarter. It is not necessary to discuss why the Auditor made such a report at that time or anything about that for the Auditor who made that report has gone to meet his Maker so there is no need of discussing it now But we might rightly observe that in the findings of the Board, it does seem that the first place to report any discrepancies is to the Board itself, and if it fails to take such measures to cure these fallares it seems that the matter should be reported to the President of the Convention, and then if proper precaution is not taken the matter should be reported to the Convention with the view of having the Board's affairs wound up and cease to do business. To report any errors of the Board to the people in mass is the same as to report any error that might be found in a bank's business. If such should be done it would cause a run on the bank and it would be either crippled in its operations, or, it might have to go out of business entirely. The same is true about the Board. This is the greatest handicap that we have had, but we feel that that had effect is about to be overcome, and that we are moving on slowly but surely to success again.

Our Safety Clause.

We have used every precaution that we know of to safeguard the best interest of the members of the department and the Coovention also. We understand that the Convention is responsible for the debts of all of its Boards, and we have tried to so arrange our affairs as not to become a needless liability on it. We used the utmost care in preparing the membership contract or certificate. It will he seen from the example that we gave of the business before, that if we succeed in increasing our membership according to that example, there will be absolutely no risk to run. But, unless some precautions are taken we do run a great risk with a small membership, so in order to be protected in the time when the membership is small we have had the certificate so worded as not to promise any stipulated amount when the membership is below five hundred, and to pay the half of the value of the certificate at death if above five hundred and below one thousand. We hope not to have to resort to this safety clause, but we had it put in in order that the other Boards, and the Convention proper he protected against the issuing of certificates until our membership reaches the number that will make it absolutely impossible to fail,

Another safety clause we are using is the discarding of the use of any and all of the hiterature and paraphernalia of the National Baptist Benefit Association, under whose names all of these old claims that have been reported to you from time to time was made. It we were still using its name and literature it would be possible for suit to be brought against the Convention to recover on those claims. We do not mean by this that we have discarded these claims but to the contrary, we mean to pay off every one of them; but we mean to pay them off from the surplus that will be accumulated from the payments of dues, etc., by the members now, but we mean to use the money to take care of the new business. The Benefit Board should not be hampered by the old bad business any more than should the Sunday School Publishing Company be held to supply digerature to schools that paid the old National Baptist Publishing Board. This department will make good if given the chance.

Our right to Operate.

The question was raised at the meeting held in Memphis last April as to whether we had the right to operate as we are doing. We had already had the opinion of the law firms of Sheffield & Coates, Fink & Dinning, and Moore and Moore, all of Helena, Arkansas, all of whom are white firms, but on having this question raised in the meeting at Memphis, we submitted the matter to the Convention's attempt, who gave his opinion on the subject which was the same as that we had from the white firms, and is to the effect that we run counter with no law of any state in operation, because we are a church organization, operating exclusively among members of our denomination, and the surplus that may be accumulated is not used for profit, but to help carry on our missionary and educational work. He recommended that we proceed as we had done heretoforc. A copy of his letter is herewith attached.

Shreveport, La., April 20, 1923.

Prof. H. W. Holloway, Sec'y Helena, Ark.

Dear Sir

In answer to your inquiry respecting the laws of the various States concerning the Benefit Board and its operation, and whether or not the Board would run counter with the Old Line Insurance Laws, or the Fraternal Insurance Laws known as the Mobile Rill, I wish to say, that I have made careful study of this question and I find that in as much as our Benefit Board is not operating an insurance benefit for profit nor does it issue A Policy of Insurance, but only A Certificate to its members which gives them aid in time of inability to work and a death benefit, and that said membership is confined strictly to the members of Baptist churches, I find no laws in any of the States that would be violated by the operation of the Board and would advise that you go ahead in your operation. I wish to state further, that your Roard being a charitable and benevolent institution connected with Baptist churches, there is no law that would prevent or restrict the Board in its operation, and as stated above, it is my opinion that your Board may operate in all the States without violating any of, either the old line insurance laws or the fraternal insurance law, and I recommend the same.

> Yours very truly, CHAS. M. ROBERTSON.

Attorney.

lliness caused my delay in writing you for which I hope you will pardon me.

(Exact Copy.)

Our Heladquarters.

Our headquarters is, according to the orders of the Convention located at Helena, Phillips County, in the State of Arkansas, and has been since the organization of the Board. It has been suggested from time to time that the headquarters be moved to some place that would give more life to the work and to some place where the denomination would rally to its support more than it has seemed to do in the State of Arkansas. In answer to these suggestions I wish to say, that If it is possible to get to a place where we can get better cooperation and better support to make the work go more rapidly, I, as Secretary, agree with them. But I wish it understood that I do not wish to have the Board moved in order to get financial help, for the Secretary is in position to demand and receive hetter financial assistance for the work where it is located than he would be at any other place, but if we received the hearty support of the Convention, the question of financial help would be answered in that our standing would be of such that it would demand what ever assistance that we might need, so, if there is a state that will pledge to give its unqualified support to this work, not by putting up money, to fit up headquarters, but by getting behind it with all of its power to increase the membership of the Board, we are agreeable to having the headquarters moved to such a State. But we would want that state to give the membership before we moved the headquarters. So, we make this proposition: The state that will show by its activity in our behalf, and the members given as that it is more interested in us than any other, in the coming conventional year, we will recommend to the Convention to order that the headquarters be moved to that state, whether it be Mississippi. Illinois, Kansas or whatever state.

Finally.

We have labored unceasingly to bring this department to you unlike unbered with unnecessary debts this time. We have not employed the help that we really need to do the work but have worked ourselves day and night in order that we may be able to get a footing and foundation on which we can stand and not lear failure

Whenever the work of our office became so congested as to demand the use of some one for a few days, we have employed them, and as soon as that work was finished we have paid them off and discontinued the service. Having worked thus, we are able to come to you with a clean slate with the exception of the debts that we found on the books when we took charge. We have no unpaid salaries, feels or printing bills, and the new claims that are shown in our report as not being due have since been paid off, and we do not owe authing on the year's business. If we can get the support that we deserve, we feel that in 1924 we will be able to show that the Benedi Roard can be made a success.

We are therefore earnestly intreating that the messengers here in this session start the ball to rolling with such force that it will be impossible to stop until we shall have reached the number that we are striving to get and put this department of your work in the shape that it should be put in.

Respectfully submitted,

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

E. M. Lawrence, A. M. Townsend, S. P. Harris, Wm. Haynes and E. T. Brown constitute the Executive Committee.

THE GENERAL BOARD MEETING.

In keeping with the plan adopted by us to meet in General Board session following the meeting of the National Baptist Convention to outline the policy and plans of the Board for the new year, the General Pribining Board met in the Headquarters of the Sunday School

Publishing Board, Nashville, Tennessee, on January 23, 1923. All phases of the work were gone over in detail and a program of work for the year, including the New Publishing House, outlined by Secretary Townsend was adopted by the Board. The meeting was characterized by the beautiful spirit of harmony and cooperative interest which was evident throughout. Every member present caught aneathe inspiration, and expressed his determination to do all in his power to assist in putting over the great program.

These meetings are of great benefit, for, away from the noise clamor and hurry of the Convention, the Board is able to deliberate and consider calmly and thoughtfully matters pertaining to its welfare and interest. And then an opportunity is afforded the Board members to see and familiarize themselves with the general condition of affairs, to note the progress that is being made, to get insignation and to lend encouragement to the officers and Board of Directors, who have been entrusted to prosecute the work, and withat to be made feel that us members of the Board they have some part in the "running" of affairs.

HARMONY PREVAILS.

It gives a pleasure to report that there has been harmony this year among the officers, the members of the Board of Directors, the members of the Executive Committee, and the entire working fore. We congratulate ourselves that we have been able to hold a splendid class of workinen, and without mutiny. Our employees have her placed on an economical, yet a satisfactory wage scale, and as a result we are getting splendid service, and splendid work done. The smbition and interest of every person connected with the Publishing Board seems to be mutual and for the common good.

I wish here to express my hearty appreciation of the splendid cooperation and respect given me in every effort put forth for progress and efficiency, first, by our President, Dr. L. K. Williams, who has demonstrated that he has faith in the integrity, honesty, loyalty, and businesslike qualifications of the men placed in charge of the work of our Publishing Board, as well as in the possibilities of its bright future; and by all the officers of the Convention; and by all the members of the Board, by the Editorial Staff, by the Field workers, and by the entire working force in all the departments. Such cooperation and confidence have indeed been very helpful and encouraging to me. With such a loyal force, with the cooperative backing of the rank and file, with the official endorsement and help of the administration, and with God in the lead, "it doth not yet appear" what achievements the future has in store for es.

Great enthusiasm centered around Children's Day this year. It was the bunching of a five year campaign to raise among the Sunday schools $150,000 for the Publishing House Building Fund, this amount being about one-third of the estimated cost of the building. The children of the Sunday schools are proud of this opportunity to do their part toward the "putting up" of the New Building, as is endenced by the many generous and liberal responses to this campaign appeal, especially by our smaller schools.

The Campaign is a voluntary one, and the plan is as follows:
The Sunday schools are divided into three classes, viz.: Class A, Class
B and Class C. Each Sunday school is permitted to join whatever class it desires.

(1) Those joining Class A are to give $100, paying $20 a year for

(2) Those joining Class B are to give $50, paying $10 a year for five years.

(3) Those joining Class C are to give $25, paying $5 a year for five years.

Every Sunday school, matters not where, nor how small, can join one of these classes. The Campaign will continue until every Sunday school will have had an opportunity to join the campaign. It is surprising what children can do and will do, if just given a chance. The names of the Sunday schools that have already joined the campaign and the report of the Children's Day contributions already sent in this year, are given as an appendix to this report (see report).

GENERAL ORGANIZATION OF WORKING FORCES.

THE S. S. LESSON COMMITTEE.

The following were elected as members of the Sunday School Lesson Committee of the National Baptist Convention, U. S. A.: A. M. Townsend, J. T. Brown, S. N. Vass, W. S. Ellington, C. H. Parrish, E. T. Brown and L. K. Williams.

The Sunday School Lesson Committee is the Curriculum Committee, and its duties and function are to study the Sunday school problem for our denomination, and it is responsible for the classification and systematization of our Sunday school periodicals.

THE INTERNATIONAL S. S. COUNCIL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION.

In quadrerinial session in Kansas City, Mo., June, 1922, the International S. S. Convention and the Sunday School Council of Evangelical Benominations merged into what is now known as the International S. S. Council of Religious Education. This is indeed the most formidable and dynamic organization of Sunday school forces in Protestantism. The World's S. S. Association is simply a federation of Sunday school forces while the International S. S. Council of Religious Education studies and works out the Sunday school problems affecting this great nation of surs. This Council was organized out of the "recognition of the common objectives of religious education, the common objectives of religious education, the consultation, and the belief that through these, the purpose of religious education in the church, school, and the community can be strengthened, conserved, extended and made effective."

This Council is composed of (a) The general executive, and departmental secretaries or superintendents of denominational Sunday school organizations; (b) Editors of denominational Sunday school literature and their editorial assistants; (c) Denominational publishing agents, and their assistants; (d) One additional representative 126 may be appointed by any of the cooperating boards or bodies; and (c) Denominational representatives on the International Lesson Committee.

The object of this Council is to advance the Sunday school interests of the cooperating denominations: (1) Hy conferring together in matters of common interest; (2) By giving expression to common views and decisions; and (3) By cooperative action on matter concerning educational editorial, missionary and publishing activities.

The International S. S. Council meets every four years. The next meeting will be held in Birmingham in 1926. The Executive Committee meets annually. The Editors Council met in the Chicago Beach Hotel, Chicago, February 19, 20, 1923, and our editors were present to sit and council with the editors of all denominations, and gather advanced ideas and inspiration for the progress of the work. Our representatives in the International S. S. Council of Religious Education are:

A. A. Bennett, Supt. Book Department; J. A. Booker, Contributing Editor; E. T. Brown, Business Manager; J. T. Brown, Editoring Editor; E. T. Brown, Editor "The Voice"; W. S. Ellington, Editor; T. O. Fuller, Contributing Editor; S. P. Harris, Assistant Secretary; Wm. Haynes, Treasurer; E. M. Lawrence, Chairman Board Publications; W. P. Offutt, Contributing Editor; C. H. Parrish, Editor Emeritus; J. Francis Robinson, Field Secretary; A. M. Townsend, Corresponding Secretary; S. N. Vass, Secretary Religious Education; L. K. Williams, President National Baptist Convention; E. Arlington Wilson, Contributing Editor.

THE INTERNATIONAL S. S. LESSON COMMITTEE,

Our membership in the International S. S. Council of Religious Education, and our having a Sunday School Lesson Committee gives us membership in the International Sunday School Lesson Committee.

It is this Committee that constructs the lesson courses in series of years in advance, for use in the Sunday schools, subject, howers, to such revision and modification as each denomination may desire to make in order to adopt the courses to its own denominational needs.

To have a part in the arrangement and construction of the Sunday school lessons to be used by people everywhere, is quite an home and privilege for our Board.

OUR EDITORIAL STAFF.

The policy of this Board is to secure as the Editors of its periodicals, such persons as are qualified both from a literary and religious standpoint, and withal sound in the tenets, perinciples and practices of the Baptist Faith. We have a well qualified group of Editors, whose ambition is to give to the denomination the very best that can be given it in the way of religious literature. To this end, it is our policy to require our editors to give their entire time to the work assigned them, and this we will do just as rapidly as our means will permit.

The Editorial department of the Sunday School Publishing Board has now reached such large proportions as to require the entire time and services of its Editor-in-Chief. Because he could not separate himself easily from well established and invaluable connections in Louisville, Dr. C. H. Parrish, who has had charge of the editorial work of the Board since its organization, offered his resignation. Dr. Parrish rendered invaluable and unrequited service as Editor-in-Chief, and the Board regretted that he was not in position to give his entire time to the work. In recognition of his splendid service he has been made Editorial Secretary Emeritus, and will be a regular contributor to our Sunday school periodicals. Rev. J. T. Brown, A. M. S. T. D., who has been associated all these years with Dr. Parrish as assistant editor, is now the Editor-in-Chief. Dr. Brown is well qualified for this work. He is thoroughly trained in Sunday school work, versatile in Biblical lore, sound in the tenets and principles of the Baptist faith, and a pleasing and prolific writer. The Sunday School Publishing Board is delighted that it can command Dr. Brown's entire service and talent.

The editorial work of the Teacher is being done by the Secretary of Religious Education of the Sunday School Publishing Board, Dr. S. N. Yass, who resigned his connection with the Education Board, and began work in his new position January 1, 1923. Dr. Vass for many years has given attention and study exclusively to Sunday school work and is recognized as an expert in all that pertains to Sunday school work. The Sunday School Publishing Board considers itself fortunate in securing his services. He also has charge of the Teacher Training work of our Board, as well as our organized class work.

MUSIC COMMITTEE.

Our Music Committee has made a happy score with its first song book, "The Gospel Pearls." This book is the realization of a dream of nine years ago to arrange, or see arranged, a song book that would be spiritual and inspiring, and adaptable to all general uses. We are getting out the fifth edition, which brings the number up to one hundred (100.000) thousand. Its demand is increasingly rapid and its circulation is marvelous. Gospel Pearls are now being used everywhere. The Music Committee is now giving its attention to the getting up of a Baptist Hymnal. The demand for a standard Baptist Hymnal for our churches makes it imperative that we get out this book as soon as possible.

GRADING.

To educate our constituency and train them up to modern, yet practical methods of Sunday school work is the duty of the Sunday School Publishing Board. Recognizing this need, our Sunday School Lesson Committee after careful study of the situation decided upon the Departmental form of Grading as being the most adaptable a well as the most practical for the Sunday schools generally among our people. That is, the pupils in the Sunday school are classified in groups of years instead of single years. This did not call for any radical changes in our literature suitable for the various department of the Sunday school according to groups of years. The department of a well organized Sunday school according to the plan of our Sunday School Publishing Board are as follows:

Cradle Roll Department	Ages 1, 2 and 8
Beginner's Department
Primary Department	Ages 6, 7 and 8
Junior Department	Ages 9, 10 and 11
Intermediate Department	Ages 12, 13 and 14
Senior Department	Ages 15, 16 and 17
Young People's Department	Ages 18, 19 and 20
Adult Department	Ages 21 and up

We are very much gratified with the spirit in which the Sunday schools are taking hold of the improved plans of the Sunday School Publishing Board. It seems that our improved literature just contint of ill a long needed place in the Sunday schools. A commendable feature about our literature is that it can be used by all Sunday schools, the smaller schools as well as the larger ones. Every Sunday school can therefore be a "Standard Sunday School."

It is strictly orthodox and purely Baptistic, with logical analysis, suggestive comments and spiritual interpretation together with Plustrative notes and oriental illumination.

OUR YOUNG PHOPLE'S CLASSES.

The Young Men's Class in the Sunday school, made up of young men 18 years of age and up, is known as the Abdemelech Class. The Joung Women's Class, made up of young women 18 years of age and up, is known as the Debbora Class. These are two separate and distinct classes, each one having its own officers, and so on. The fivalry between these two classes will bring about quite an interest in the Southy school. In Sunday schools that have now the old Metoka and Galeda Classes, the Abdemelech and Debbora Classes are to take their place. Our Lesson Committee adopted the name Abdemeled and Debbora for these classes, because of the interesting history connected with them as Biblical characters.

Abdemelech is the Greek form of the name Ebedmelech who was the Ethiopian cunuch mentioned in the first thirteen verses of the 38th chapter of Jeremiah as having rescued the sainted prophet from an awful dangeon to which his enemies had committed him because of his loyalty to God and truth. This Negro, Abdemelech, seems to have been the only person who pitied Jeremiah, and he took it upon himself to report the shameful treatment of the prophet to King Zedéxish who was indifferent at first, but finally yielded to the earnest entreuties of this prominent Negro of high standing, and finally ordered Abdemelech to get thirty men and rescue the old preacher from this slow death, thus making it possible for Jeremiah to live to receive that profound revelation from God as found in the 31st, 32nd and 33rd chapters of his prophecy.

In grateful acknowledgement for this signal he'p rendered him, Jeremiah prayed for Abdemelech and in the 39th chapter, 16th and 17th verses, we find that Jehovah sent Jeremiah to assure this humble servant of God that although terrible things were about to happen to Jeresalem that he himself would be delivered. It can be readily seen that Abdemelech is an excellent name for the Young Men's Class.

Debbota is the Greek form of the Bible name Deborah, just as Abdemelech is the Greek form of Ebedmelech. Debbora had the distinction of having placed herself behind a man whose position made him the logical defender and londer of his people during the days when Israel was oppressed by the Canaanites. The full account is found in Judges, chapters 4 and 5. Deborah is known as a prophetes b. t she was content to use her office to inspire the right man to leadership rather than assume that leadership herself. There are many things most commendable in Debbora and on the whole her life is worthy of emulation on the part of such a group of young women as should compose a Debbora Class.

It gives us pleasure to note that the number of these organized classes in the Sunday school is rapidly increasing.

CRADLE ROLL DEPARTMENT.

Every Sunday school, matters not how small or how large it may be, should have a Cradle Roll Department. This department of the Sunday school is of inestimable value.

Mrs. R. T. Sims has charge of the Cradle Roll work for our Boshe is well qualified is cuthusiastic, interested, and doing efficient work. Mrs. Sims is being ably assisted by the following Cradle Boll Directors who are doing excellent work in their respective fields.

Mrs. M. J. Brockway has the work of this department in charge. Although she has just taken up this work she has already demonstrated her qualifications and fitness for it. TEACHER TRAINING COURSE.

Teacher Training work is being directed from the headquarters of the Sunday School Publishing Board at Nashville, Tennessee. Dr. S. N. Vass, the Secretary of Religious Education, has charge of this work. N. Vass, the Secretary of Religious Education, has charge of this work. The course of study necessary to receive the diploma of the Educational Department of the Board shall be that laid down in the fauther Training Book of the Board entitled "How To Study and reach the Bible," written by Dr. Vass, who has had a quarter of a century of experience as a Bible and Sunday school specialist under critical supervision. The price of this book is $1.50 Pupils completing this book and passing a successful examination upon the same and filing examination papers with the Board at Nashville will receive the Board's regular Teacher Training Diploma, and all graduates will be permanently enrolled.

The Committee on Religious Education of the International S S Council of Religious Education made the following proviso in its report in Kansas City:

"We recommend that it he the policy of the International Sunday School Council of Religious Education, that all Teacher Training Classes applying for registration, examinations and certification shall be referred to their respective denominations when the denominations file such a request with the General Secretary of the International Sunday School Council of Religious Education."

This request we have made of the Secretary of the Sunday School Council and this work will be referred to us.

OUR EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

The necessity for the training and development of our constituency in modern Sunday school organization and methods is apparent to all who are interested in Sunday school work and progress. Better Sunday schools, better teachers, better organizations are needed everywhere in the city as well as in the rural districts.

It is now incumbent upon our Board, without even stopping to consider our financial ability to do so, to look after the educational interests and claims of the schools for help in bringing up the standard of the local school,

To this end our plan now is to prosecute this work, first, by organizing Teacher Training classes, etc. This work under the direction of Dr. S. N. Vass, has already been begun. Teacher Training classes are being rapidly organized, and quite an interest is becoming attached thereto.

Second, by conducting Sunday School and Bible Workers' Conferences. We will hold these Conferences each month in different communities so as to afford as many Sunday school superintendents, teachers and workers the opportunity to take advantage of a week's training in Sunday school organization, systematization, methods, etc. These Conferences are proving to be a great boon to any community where held. The faculty and workers are experts in their respective lines, and every department of Sunday school work is emphasized.

OUR BIBLE CONFERENCES THIS YEAR.

Our first Bible Conference and Christian Workers' Institute was held with the Sixth Avenue Baptist Church, Birmingham, Alabame. Rev. J. W. Goodgame, D. D., Pastor, February 21-25, 1923. Rev. Our fourth Conference was held in July with the Second Baptist Church, Indianapolis, Indiana, Rev. B. J. F. Westbrook, D. D., Pastor. The following reports of the Committee on Findings give an idea of the helpfulness and benefits derived from the Conferences in the communities where they have been held:

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON FINDINGS OF THE BIBLE CONFERENCE HELD IN PINE BLUFF, ARKANSAS.

We, your committee on Findings of the Conference submit our repart as follows: It appears to be the unanimous opinion of the church people of Bine Bluff, who have attended the sessions of this Conference that the people of this city have never before enjoyed such a rare opportunity for religious development and inspiration as they have this week. Never before in the memory of even the old citizens has there been such a group of expert Christian water to do greater research and study. Our superintendents have been shown the latest and most successful methods of Sunday school work. Our teachers are better prepared to instruct and hold their pupils. The public generally has gained much Bible information.

A number of ministers have come from out of town places even as far away as Little Rock and all of them have expressed themselves as being greatly helped by their coming. Sunday schools and workers from other denominations have attended, and have been equally jubilant and loud in their praise of the great work carried on by these men and women of God. Good and wholesome literature has been distributed among the Sunday school workers. Too much cannot be said for this great group of workers. Men and women of God they are, soldlers of the cross, heralds of the blessed message of Jesus. We do here and now extend to them our sincere thanks for their invaluable service to us and ever pray that God may bless them as they carry the light to others.

REV. C. B. COLLINS Chairman, REV. J. F. CLARK, Secretary.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON FINDINGS, ST. LOUIS, MO.

We, your Committee on Findings, beg leave to make the following report:

After a careful study of the purpose and work of the National Bible Conference and Christian Workers' Institute which was conducted in our midst last week by Dr. A. M. Townsend, Secretary of the Sunday School Publishing Board of the National Baptist Convention and his staff of coworkers, we have unanimously agreed that the purpose and work is lofty, in that it is in obedience to the Divine command to teach the Scriptures to all men. Matthew 28:19.

The work is fundamental in that it aims to train the people who are workers in the great Baptist church, especially among the youth in the Sunday school and the B. Y. P. U., thus strengthening the roots of the Christian life of the race.

We commend the spirituality, efficiency and zeal of the entire staff. Spirituality, because the Holy Spirit is working in and through them consecrating them to the work; efficient because each worker is a trained specialist in his or her department; while their zeal is shown by their untiring, patient labor.

We believe that God has raised up Dr. Townsend at this crucial moment, and given him a vision coupled with his remarkable ability, tact and resourcefulness, for the twofold purpose of unfolding the Scriptures in a simple childlike manner, that the wayfaring man, though a fool, may not err; also to bring together the great Haptist family as a unit in the building up of the "National Baptist Convention" and the erection of the new publishing house at Nashville, Tennessee. This building shall stand as a beacon, sending out over the sea of life filled with the spiritual wreckage of unbelieving, doubting humanity, rays of illuminating light in the form of sound, doctinal, Scriptural teaching that shall grip the hearts and minds of our pec-ple and place their feet upon the solid rock of Faith and earnest, joyous service.

We commend the Bible Institute to all cities and take pleasure in expressing our gratitude to God that He made it possible for us to have it here.

Our prayer is that their labor shall not be in vain; that those who attended the lectures may, with a new zeal go forward, working out the plans given with united energy and devotion.

Respectfully submitted, REV. O. C. MAXWELL, Chairman, MRS. MARY J. GORDON, Secretary.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON FINDINGS INDIANAPOLIS BIBLE CONFERENCE.

We your Committee on Findings, take pleasure in presenting the following report:

The National Bible Conference and Christian Workers' Institute

under the direction of the Sunday School Publishing Board with Dr. A. M. Townsend as Director, together with his corps of workers has been in our judgment a special blessing to this city, in that it has covered in a very comprehensive way the entire scope of our church; activities

It is our impression that the work done in this conference in each department comes up to the standard of modern day Baptist instruction. First, it is our conception that the New Testament plan for world conquest through the church is that of individual impression and training.

In this conference it has been very clearly shown first, that the Sunday school in a very convincing manner has been set forth as the teaching service of the church, also that its chief aim is to lead the unsaved to Christ.

Second, that the B. Y. P. U. is logically styled the training camp of the church.

Third, the missionary work was magnified and methods given which would bring much success to this department.

Fourth, the inusical department stressed the proper music in all departments of the church. That class of music which would inspire real worship, was rendered at every session. It was in direct contrast with a great deal of music, which is along the jazz line.

Fifth, the lectures were permeated with helpful information and gripped all the hearers. They were instructive throughout. They have inspired the workers of our churches to covet the necessary training to make them effective in service.

Sixth, in platform eloqunce, blackboard analysis, artistic presentations, and song, the entire affair was inspiring, instructive and helnful

> Respectfully submitted, REV. C. H. JOHNSON, Chairman, MISS PAULINE L. BATTIES, Secretary.

OUR FIELD DEPARTMENT.

This department is far from what we would like to have it be. In fact, on account of lack of funds, we are able to do very little along this line. But this work should not be neglected. If the denomination will soon give us the new, modern, and well equipped building which we have in vision and anticipation, so that we will be able to do the work of the denomination, we see already where all departments of our work can be amply provided for out of the surplus from the operation of the Sunday School Board each year. It is being done by other Publishing Boards and we can do the same.

Rev. J. Francis Robinson is our Field Secretary. Being greatly handicapped on account of the prolonged serious illness of his wife, he has been unable to bring to us the results he is capable of bringing. Notwithstanding this he has dealt some telling blows in the interest of our Board wherever he has gone. He is known everywhere as the Board's booster and "high-stepper." It is to be said to his credit that willingly, he answers every call—that promptly heeds every command—that unselfishty he performs the duty assigned him—that he is lurned up with zeal in the interest of the Publishing Board and withal he is sincere, honest and dependable.

Rev. J. B. Green is District Secretary, and his territory was extended to cover the Southern States, since January this year. With such a loyal territory to draw upon we should expect great results from our representative in that section. Rev. Green is interested in the work of the Board and has proved his loyalty in many ways.

In our general plan of Field Organization the member of our Board in each state is our representative for that state. And as such, is expected to look after the interest of the Board on all occasions wherever an opportunity presents itself. When financial conditions will permit the plan also provides that we have more District Secretaries.

OUR BOOK DEPARTMENT.

Because of our distressfully crowded condition we are not able to do much in publishing books. We have been forced to "turn down" many requests to publish books. In fact, we can do very little outside of getting out our own periodicals. We carry, however, in our Book Department a good line of religious books of all kinds. Our plan is to publish as many of our books as we can. Our policy is to encourage our own people to write books. There are many among us who are capable, and they need encouragement only. There is little profit to us in handling the books of others. We are in position, however, to get our patrons any book they want.

Our Song Book—Gospel Pearls—is proving a wonderful success.
Our Teacher Training Book—"How to Study and Teach the Bible"—is being rapidly and widely circulated.

Our Commentary is in increasing demand. The 1923 edition is larger and even better than the last year. It is well arranged—the mechanical work is excellent, and it has an attractive appearance. It is worth far more than we are charging for it. As you know we have sharp competition with our Commentary, and this forces us to have to put it out better and cheaper than some others. Our 1924 Commentary will be ready for distribution November 1st.

We have hought over the copyright of the "Preacher's Weapon" from Rev. A. A. Bennett. This book is a good seller, and the second edition is now off the press. We are now getting out a Baptist Hymnal, and also Dr. C. O. Boothe's new book, which will be sequel to his "Plain Theology for Plain People."

OUR ST. LOUIS BRANCH.

We have a branch book store in St. Louis, Mo., at 2607 Lawton Avenue, and it is under the management of Rev. Geo. W. Dickerson. This store is prominently located, and it is well equipped. Mr. Dickerson has succeeded in turning many Sunday schools in St. Louis and vicinity to the patronage of our Board, and this together with the closing out of the branch store of the American Baptist Publication Society in St. Louis, made our prospects there very bright. St. Louis taking a great deal of pride in this store, and we are expecting that very shortly every Sunday school in St. Louis and vicinity will be our ardent supporters. Rev. Dickerson is a "Hustler" and enjoys the confidence of the ministry, the Sunday school workers and the general public.

OTHER AGENCIES.

We have had many requests to establish branch houses in other sections, but this we cannot do until such sections demonstrate their loyalty to our Board to a sufficient degree as to warrant and insure the moral and financial support and success of the project.

We have agencies in different sections that are doing splendid work; in Detroit, Rev. H. Lewis; in Philadelphia, Mr. Robert West; in Baltimore, Rev. Jno. W. Davis; in Washington, D. C., Mr. Wm R. Williams; in North Carolina, the Colored Sunday School Store at Raleigh, under the management of Mr. A. J. Rogers; also Miss Annie L. Lassiter, at Durham; in Atlanta, the Hopkins Book Concern, Mr. Hopkins, manager; in Louisiana, Rev. J. E. Evans, at Shreveport; in Arkansas, Rev. W. C. Howell, at Texarkana; in Chicago, Rev. W. L. Petty; in New Orleans, Rev. D. H. Hamilton; in Ohio, Rev. N. L. Shaw, at Cleveland; in Oklahoma, Mrs. M. J. Brockway, at Oklahoma City: in Tennessee, Rev. A. Terrell, and Mr. H. C. Thomas, at Memphis: in Florida, Mr. W. T. Thompson, at Pensacola; in Indiana, Mr. W. M. Martin, at Gary.

THE MEMORIAL 300.

The members of the Publishing Board are seeing to it that no one shall be more interested in the New Building project than they themselves. And this is as it should be. Reference to the report will show that most all of the members of the Board have shown their loyalty by pledging their $100 to the Building Fund and paying the same. And then too, when the record shall be made known of those who made the New Publishing House a possibility, not only should the name of every member of the Board appear therein, but also every leader.

OUR GROWTH.

Our growth is continuous and gratifying. When one takes into consideration our hazardous and distressfully crowded conditions, and our separated quarters, and then notes the large amount of work turned out, with thousands of satisfied customers, our progress is marvelous. We enjoy and appreciate the patronage of about 15,000 Sunday schools. Our presses are now turning out more than a half

Sunday schools. Our presses are now turning out more than a half million periodicals each quarter.

The records show our receipts last year to be $159,472.46; this year $191,118.89; an advance of $31,646,43 over last year. At the close of last year our assets over liabilities were $104,182.24; at the close of business this year $152,285.29; an increase of $48,103.05. And it is to be noted that this year has been a year of eleven munths mistcad of twelve due to the change of making our fiscal year to end June 30th instead of July 31.

Current.

We have done the best we could under the conditions. We carnestly solicit your prayers in the interest of those of us to whom you have untrusted the immediate oversight of this work, and we hope to have your continued cooperation in every way.

Respectfully submitted.

A. M. Townsend,

Music--chorus. The secretary presented in a concise systematic readable form the doings of the Board and new enthusiasm was created for the building of our new publishing bonse.

Dr. L. K. Williams talked interestingly upon the new era in our Convention and how that $20,000 in Douglass National Bank of Chicago had been put to the Convention's credit, check signed L. K. Williams President National Baptist Convention, had been transferred to the Sunday School Publishing Board, thus making ever secure the interest of National Baptist Convention in this New Publishing House. The special Finance Committee took charge for the Rally. "Just Think of His Goodness to You" was rendered by the choir while a voluntary offering was being taken.

Adjourned with benediction by Rev. R. N. Holt, California.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

The Convention reassembled at 3:00, Rev. S. B. Butler, D.D. ludi ana, presiding. "An I a Soldier of the Cross" was sung by the congregation. The Scriptures were read by Rev. P. B. Cornelius, Arizona. "God Will Take Care of You" was sung by the Convention chorus and prayer was offered by Rev. H. H. Harris, Missouri. Song by the chorus, "When I Shall Cross Over." "I Am Bound for the Promised Land" was sung jubilantly. Professor Nix sang as a solo with chorus, "Big Business in Glory," followed by "Since Jesus Came Into My Heart." Solo, "The Lord Raised Me." Thus ended a spirited devotional service. Announcement by Dr. A. M. Townsend of the Suday School Publishing Board. Letters and telegrams were called Dr. A. D. Boone, Texas, presiding, presented Dr. B. J. Perkins to introduce Secretary Dr. W. M. S. McCutcheon, Church Extension Board. The Secretary made an explanation of the discontinuance of his Board and made a strong appeal

SEVENTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE CHURCH EXTENSION BOARD.

To the Officers, Members and Friends of the National Baptist Convention, U. S. $\mathbf{A}.$

Another Conventional year has passed and though we have passed through many difficulties, bindrances and besetments, God has permitted us to meet again in this, the Forty-third Annual Session of the National Bautist Convention, U. S. A., Inc. Your Board submits of you its seventh annual report and the second annual report of its present Corresponding Secretary. And as I stand here I am forced to ask.

"And are we yet alive To see each others' face?"

The Church Extension Board-Its Object and Purpose.

The National Baptist Convention, in its Thirty-sixth Annual Session, which convened at Savannah, Ga., September, 1916, organized the Church Extension Board for the purpose of raising funds to do extension work throughout this country. The chief object of this Board in raising funds is to help the weaker churches in their building plans, thereby encouraging the building of decent houses of worship everywhere.

The Church.

The first church was established by Jesus Christ. There is no mention of a church in the Old Testament. We find in the New Testament that Christ established the first church, therefore it is a Divino institution. Christ hath said (Matt. 16: 18): "Upon this rock, will build my church." He built the first church and said it was His and is governed by Divine laws; its mission in the world is Divine. Its place in the world is a Divine place. It is Divinely originated and organized. Even though the purpose and work of other organizations may be good, the church stands out supreme, and it occupies a unique place or position in the world.

This ought to be clearly seen and known and let the world know that the church should have first place.

A church is composed of people who are known as members of the church. But the New Testament shows that to be a member of the Church of Jesus Christ, "we must be born again." We must be regenerated: we must be new creatures.

Born of the Holy Spirit.

The Holy Spirit must first change the heart, so that we love the church and every good work, we must be changed in our feeling and changed in our life.

Without the above, we cannot be a true member of the church, even though your names are on the visible church book or roll.

Raptists pattern our church after the New Testament models and leachings and we have not time or use for man made books of miles

If the Church Extension Board is to succeed, every member of the Church Extension Board must be born again, and must be a new creature with the love of God burning in our hearts in such a way as to chainse our hearts and fill them with love for the church and every good work. We must be changed in our feelings towards the Church Extension Board and changed in our life so that we will be able to do our whole duty towards God and man. Thus enabling us to extend the visible Kingdom on earth.

The Church Extension Board or Department a Necessity.

To meet the obligations of this important hour and to cope with the advancement of other Denominations, we must maintain the Church Extension Roard whether the present staff of officers of this Board remain at the head of affairs or not. We haven't time to stop to look back at the mistakes of the past, for each day's advancement must count for itself.

"Come up higher," is the inviting command of the future. Those who will not heed the command will in the end find themselve crushed beneath the refinement and progress of the coming age and soon lose their place. Brethren, I am anxious that we labor on

I shall not attempt to pay tribute to ancient fathers of poetry who stood with harps of immortal melody on the misty mountain peaks of distant antiquity; to the stories of courage and sacrifice which inspired the annuls of Greece and Rome at the fulmination of exploding of Demosthenes; to the splendor of Tuliy; to the sweet verses of Virgil, nor to the meetic prose of Livy. But my tribute is most heartily and earnestly paid to the efforts, sacrifices and good judgment of those who started and established the Church Extension Board, of which we form a part, namely;

Benjamin J. Perkins, R. B. Roberts, C. W. Grabam, I. S. Strong, and others. This Board received the encouragement and advice of our late President, Dr. E. C. Morris, and also the late Dr. W. C. Parks. Dr. Morris endorsed the line of procedure as outlined by the present Corresponding Secretary and promised Dr. Roberts and me that a special collection would be raised for this work immediately after my report was made in Los Angeles.

Brethren, he is not here to-day, but has gone to his reward. But 1 do hope and I firmly believe that our own President, Dr. L. K Williams, will carry out this part of the desire of him who now sleeps. I am here inspired with one of the old Greek maxims which says, "Sparta is thine allotted home; make her a home of order and beauty."

The Church Extension Board, like Sparts, cannot make itself glorious and attractive, it must get its glory and success from the unceasing efforts and untimited sacrifices of those who love its purpose and are willing to defend the end for which it was established. by giving their full cooperation to the officers elected at this Convention for the next year.

Remember, Brethren, Bricks Cannot Be Made Without Straw.

Too much of our denominational life is involved in the future out come of the Church Extension Board to allow if to fall. It should be our highest ambition and loftlest aim to make the Church Extension Board what it ought to be.

If it dies, its death will record a stigma upon the face of the history of the National Raptist Convention, and our ability as religious leaders will be laid bare to the hostile censure of those who must take our places in the near future.

And may I repeat one statement made in my report last year While our Board has not satisfied our expectations, a poor but hones and striving Church Extension Board is better than no Church Extension Board at all. Progress may seem slow at first, but perseverance assures success. If the axe is dull, the more strength must be put forth.

If the Church Extension Board seems to be a burden to the vention: If the success of the Extension Board has not been while this Convention has desired in the past, let the brethren decide to put forth greater strength to make it what it should be.

The Church Extension Board, to succeed, must be given the same consideration other Boards receive. In fact, it must be used by the denomination and members of this Convention, for the secret of never is use. We cannot pursue a worthy object steadily and persistently with all the powers of mind and yet make it a failure.

The Church Extension Board has never been given or has never received the encouragement and financial help due it to make it a success. Members of the other Boards and leaders of our Convention have always booked down upon it with disdain and as a small some thing. But we must never forget, my brethren, that some of the largest fires start among the trash and rubbish.

Sometimes we find more need for the thing that we have cast aside than for those we have in sight.

He who plants a grave receives a purple cluster, not a bunch of thorns or thistics. He who sows honor shall reap confidence. The sowing contains the germ of all the harvests to be reaped.

The Growth of the Church Extension Board.

From the chamber of life and the chamber of death, God hath never drawn the curtains. The chamber of growth is another most buly place in which God alone doth stand. The sheaf is simply the seed enlarged and multiplied.

The Church Extension Board's growth for the past six years has been very limited. But we must remember, "Rocks enlarge by accretion," or by being added to, but from what a rock is at the beginning. the geologists cannot tell what will be the shape of that rock when all deposits are finally made.

As to the growth of any organization, like produces like. If we sow wheat, we reap wheat.

"Wait on the Lord, ye trembling saints, and keep your courage up. Hell raise your spirit when it faints and far exceed your hope.

The Success and Needs of the Church Extension Board.

If the Church Extension Board is to succeed, the members of our Board most he men of concentration, who are willing to strike sledge hammer blows in one united financial drive until our purpose has been accomplished. This Board needs strong members of unwavering aim and single purpose.

Figure the rays of the sun in winter and you can kindle a fire with case. Melt a charge of shot into one bullet and it can be fired through the hadies of four men. ,

The Future Success of the Church Extension Board.

- 1 It is absolutely necessary to pay off the present indebtedness.
- To do this there must be a well outlined program and systematic way of doling things.
- A Cooperation of the officers and members of the Church Extension Board, whoever they are.

4. Cooperation of all the Bourds and members of the National Baptist Convention with the officers and members of the Church for tension Roard

5. The commercial side of the Church Extension Board must be decreased or cut off and given to the Home Missiun, Publishing or B. Y. P. U. Board. I refer to the sale of church furniture and the bullding of new churches, and let the Extension Board be engaged en clusively in raising money for Extension work, to be reported and turned over to this Convention. If not this, then this Board should so ordinate with some other Board.

Poverty and obscurity of origin may inpede our progress, but it is only like the obstructions of Ice or debris in the river temporarily forcing the wates into eddies where accumulates strength and a mighty reserve which ultimately sweeps the obstruction impeluously to the sea. Poverty and obscurity are not insurmountable obstacles but they act as a stimulus to the naturally indolent and develog a firmer fibre of mind and a stronger muscle and stamina of mind.

There is scarcely a great truth or doctrine but has had to fight its way to public recognition in the fare of detraction and persent tion. Nearly every great discovery or invention that has blessed mankind has had to fight its way to recognition even against the me position of the most progressive men.

Obstacles and hardships are the chisel and mallet which shape the strong into beauty. The statue would have slept in the marble but for the blasting, the chiseling and polishing,

The Activities of the Church Extension Board.

Our monners, actions and characters are always under inspection. Every time this Convention meets, the Secretaries of all the Boards and the officals of this Convention must step on the scales of public opinion and not only during the annual meetings, but all of the years. we are being weighed.

I am sure all of you who attended the Convention last December are aware of the fact that your humble servant was reelected Corresponding Secretary of this Board for this Conventional year, but when the Executive Board of this Convention met at Nashville, last January, our Roard was requested to cease activities until the meeting of this Convention.

This was adopted without any arrangements being made to satisfy the creditors of our Board, and in order to clearly understand the actions of the Executive Board, I sent a letter to Prof. Hudson, to questing him to send me a copy of the motion. Afterwards I recleved word in a letter dated March 8, from our beloved and honored President, folling me there would be no objections to our sending out in appeal or having a rally to help reduce this and any other obligations of the Board. This particular matter was not taken up at the Memphis Conference. Our hands were tied and yet the creditors continued to write me and to visit me and I was compelled to pay a little to keep the denomination from being embarrassed. I was aware of the fact that I was making a big sacrifice in others and letting myself go without things that I needed for my own sustenance.

I realized that just one year before this, I had given up my church in Chattanooga, where I received my pay and was able to provide for myself and family. When the Church Extension Board was requested myser, and activities, your humble servant was left without a church or anything or anybody to depend upon but Jehovah, but I was conof anything of anymony to accepted again and genotically when I remembered the words of the poet;

"Though troubles assail and dangers affright, Though friends should all fail and foes all unite, Yet one thing secures me whatever betide. The Scripture assures me, the Lord will provide."

I realized that everything belonged to my Shepherd and I had faith in Ilis word. Therefore, 1 decided regardless of the circumstances, I would keep my promise until this meeting and not allow myself to even be called to or to accept a church until the close of the time given for our Board to close its books,

My Shepherd will supply my needs, Jehovah is His Name; la pastures fresh He makes me feed beside the living stream." Believing and trusting God for sustenance, my God put it into the mind and heart of Dr. W. F. Lovelace and our own President, Dr. b. K. Williams, to transfer me as a worker with the Home Mission Board, and I wish to say to you to day that since my connection with the Home Mission Board at a salary of $1,600 per year, I have raised my salary, rallway expenses, etc. Each month I have forwarded a small money order aside from this to Dr. Lovelace.

Taking the advice of Dr. E. W. D. Isaac, I set out to raise something an oask debts of the Board and I thank God I have raised on: Back salary $378.61

Brethren. Alexander Pope said: "A brave man thinks no one superior who does him an injury; for he has it then in his power to make himself superior to the others by forgiving." Some, perhaps, in the past have thought that your servant was not sincere. Remember the words of the writer: "The only conclusive evidence of a man's sincerity is that he gives himself for a principle. Words money, all things clse are comparatively easy to give away, but when a man makes a gift of his daily life and practice it is plain that the truth, whatever it may be, has taken possession of bin. Nothing is so taxing upon a man and rests so heavily as the task of maintaining smooth and charitable relations

Christ plone was able to meet storm with calm, hate with love, with one's fellows. scouls with smiles, plottings with confidence, envy and bitterness with unruffled tranquility. In fact Jesus Christ, the Saviour and Redeeliger of mankind is the only perfect and pure man the earth has ever known.

"His word of promise is my food, His Spirit is my guide; Thus daily is my strength renewed And all my wants supplied."

Christians can but feel that God is a lover of His people For has put robes of beauty and glory upon all His works. Every flower is dressed in richness; every field hissbes beneath a mantle of beauty and every star is veiled in brightness.

Christians, take a step forward toward God; how down and pray ask God for what you want and the mountains will be leveled and God will make the way free from all obstacles that would prevent or keep the Board from success.

Conclusion.

It seems as though it is the object and purpose of some to place the responsibility of the heavy indebtedness of this Board upon the present Secretary.

I wish to state and inform you that the greater part of this ded was inherited by me and since no one else seems to tell you, I was instrumental in getting all of the people whom our Board owed when I was elected Secretary, to accept notes for amounts due them with the exception of the Travelers' Rest Baptist Church in Belzoni, Miss

I was instrumental in saving this Convention $1,086.46 out of the amount of $1,286.46, which the Extension Board owed Mr. B. L. Holmes, of Clarksdale, Miss., for he agreed to accept $200.00 in full payment of this debt, and we have until August 25, 1924, to fluish this amount.

Brethren, I have done my best. I have made a sacrifice and nor I am asking you to consider the same.

Your Secretary further reports that this Convention and honorable Board is indebted to him in the sum of $1,198.13, balance for back satury for the fiscal year 1921-1922, according to our Anditor's report, axide from the balance due him up to the time the activities of the Church Extension Board ceased, August, 1922, to January, 1922, less the amount received or paid him on the amount due him from August, 1922, to January 25, 1923.

Our Secretary is very much in need of said money and requests that said sum be paid immediately.

In the event the full amount cannot be paid in cash, he asks that as large an amount as possible be paid to him in cash during the meeting and that the Board and Convention execute bankable notes with good and sufficient security for the balance, so that he may be able to discount them and in that way obtain the full amount of his salary.

I further wish to state that if this Convention will give us a chauce to raise or if they will pay this Convention $200.00 in cash, or more and credit me with $100.00 which I promised to give to the bulding of the new Publishing House at Nashville, and give or execute bankable note for $496.13. I will extend the same any reasonable time and donate the balance, which is $400.00, due 1921-1922, to this Convention.

For I am Interested in this Convention and no other. I do this because I want it understood that I did not accept this position o Secretary of the Extension Board simply for the few fishes as loaves, or in other words, the salary. I stand here to tell you the law always helped different causes represented by the breaker of this Convention.

Humbly submitted, WM. M. S. McCuichean, Corresponding Secretary.

Years.

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from honceforth: . . Yea, said the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them."

ANNUAL REPORT.

President, Officers and Delegates of the National Baptist Convenon, Greetings:

With gratitude to God and a deep sense of our responsibility to a not world, the Foreign Mission Roard negs to present its Forty-third annual Report

The function of the Foreign Mission Board covers that phase of pur national work that pertains to the preaching of the Gospel in regions beyond. It relates to the very heart of the great commission: Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." This to do with the return of our Lord, for he said, "And this Gospel it the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto ill nations and then shall the end come." According to the Divine Kord, it is the basis of discipleship: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross, and follow in it ye continue in my word, then ye are my disciples indeed for therefore, and teach all mattons baptizing them in the n me the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit." That the work our Board is very vital, as to our Christian status, is obvious.

Departure of Dr. A. R. Robinson.

Dr. A R. Robinson served our Board efficiently for more than decade. He was faithful to the last, even during his illness, be can out when he was far too sick to preside. We will always remember to the Convention at St Lembers personal check for one hundred dollars ($100), his lack of stream preventing him from attending the meeting.

il is the purpose of our Board to establish some station or builds in Africa, a fitting memorial to this great character.

The Program of the Church.

Jesus Christ, our Lord and Master came from Heaven to establish church for the purpose of saving a lost world. He amount His mission in the words: "The Son of man is come to seek and an that which was lost. Greater love hath no man than this that lay down his Hie for his friends." It is made clear throughout the New Testament that the world is to be saved by the preaching the Word. This is the regular work or duty the Master gave to the church. This is the Master's program. It is of Divine origin. He have we treated God's program? In most churches it has been a aside and we have substituted a man made program.

The evangelization of the world is not a task to be lightly treated It is a work distinctly committed to the church, it should be to goal of all church endeavor, it is the end for which the Christian church exists. Missions consitute the primary work for which church was established by our Lord. For one to say that he does a believe in Foreign Missions is to say he does not believe in Master's program. Yea, more serious, he does not believe in the Master who was the pioneer of Foreign Missionaries in that He is His heavenly home for the salvation of a lost world. We may church buildings on the program as our first step in carrying on the great purpose of our Master; the church house may be the house hase, but it will never do for us to substitute building of chart houses to take the place of the propagation of the gospel to the other most parts of the world. If the building of churches is to be obstacle in the way of supporting the heralds of the cross, who are to unfurl the Christian hanner in every clime, then it would be belief to not have a single church house. While appeals of the beaute world to send them the gospel, come like a clarion call to the Chralle family, pastors and congregations are unnecessarily erecting best church edifices, purchasing adjacent properties after having paid the original building. It is said that the people must be kept in state of obligation or they will lose interest in church the giving of the gospel to the world a great obligation? Will x take millions of dollars to fill Africa and other heathen count with missionaries? Is not the bringing of souts into the Master's singlom more precious stones in the great living building than finance for church edifices?

Remember the program of our Lord? Are we following in the teststeps of Jesus Christ, who was the only Son, and yet became a foreign missionary? Have we adopted His program? Are we bringing prodigal nations back to the Father's house?

The Progress of the Gospel.

Let us lift our eyes to the divine sweep of the kingdom of heaven on earth and to the unfailing promise of God: "My word shall not return unto me void, but shall accomplish that whereunto I sent it." it is hard for us to realize to-day that this world was once a heathen imple shronded in heathen durkness. Its inhabitants were worshippers of idols, bound with chains of ignorance and superstition. But the glad tidings of the gospel have brought millions to the feet of lesus. He said, "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto God is accomplishing His purpose. The preached word of God has had its effect in every country in the world. While earthly kingdoms wane, the heavenly kingdom is growing in strength from century to century. Heathen kingdoms have been overthrown; heathen customs have been put aside. The churches of the Living God, institutious of learning, are being erected; Christian principles are being inaugurated. Surely not any man who looks facts in the face can fail to recognize that Jesus Christ has made His pledge to use the divine resources for enlargement of the kingdom. You and I may grow discouraged; we may lie down under our burden; we may denounce mission work, but whatever you or 1 do, Jesus Christ will carry forward this task of the evangelization of the people.

Peeling the assurance of the Master's power and promise, "All suttority hath been given unto me in heaven and on earth: Go ye, therefore, and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you: and lo, I am with you alway even unto the end of the world." Let us go forth with the light of life to the struggling millions.

Some of the Achievements of the Present Administration.

During the one year and ten months of the present administration of your Board, steady progress has been made though there was an apparent halt on the "Onward March of the Mighty Army" so that we could get our bearing. A strategic retreat is sometimes better than an newise advance.

From the very beginning it was our policy not to send out more missionaries mutil we could well support and provide for those we already had on the field, unless the new applicants came to us with their support pledged. We have, however, reinstated and appointed some new native workers on the field who are doing excellent work. To give you the figures, five missionaries have returned home during our administration, namely: Dr. W. T. Amiger, Miss Delia Harris, Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Ezell and Mrs. B. H. Payne. On the other hand, eighteen new workers have been employed, reinstated, or returned.

They are: Mrs. E. F. Butler, Rev. and Mrs. D. R. Horton Rev Prai (Joll, Rev. and Mrs. G. T. Stephens, in West Africa; Rev. Frederig Vockerodt, Rev. Luke J. Tshuhata, Rev. Jose Nitabla, Rev. Lin Nitabla, Rev. E. B. P. Koti; Rev. Joseph Mahlanga, now suppose by the Ohio Baptists; Rev. and Mrs. David Tyesi, Rev. Kollafi a South Africa. Rev. F. I. Bunthorne, Rev. W. C. Bowman and Re J. M. Sandins, in the British West Indies.

New missionaries have been appointed, also Rev. and Mrs. D. P. Horton who were returned to the field. Rev. E. B. P. Koti and Rev. Stlahla who were reinstated as missionaries. Five of the absonance workers have been sent from this country during the press administration. All these new workers including our old workers, total number of thirty-two, are paid up until the end of September Only three have their salaries entirety paid by money designant from churches.

Your Board is sending additional support to your teachers in the stations in West Africa and will do the same in South Africa as sow as they can get proper reports from the field. Your Board also he $5000, in hard cash, of designated monies to be used for an ladustic School in Africa. One thousand dollars ($1,000) of this has be recently given by the State of Virginia. Every day we are expectly an additional $4,000 in settlement of the Ewen will, the major par of which we hope to use for the same purpose. We are praying the found will increase to at least $50,000 hefore we go out in December If the Lord will so grant it, we promise to be faithful stewards of the same and will see to it that it will materialize into a great industral school in Africa.

Growth of the Systematic Giving Scheme.

The systematic giving scheme launched by your Foreign Maste Board and approved by this Convention is meeting with unfold me cess. Our missionaries and native workers are being paid better to day than ever in the history of our work. During the present is ministration, the missionaries have received their salaries or month. They are all paid to date; some of them are paid in advance For the last two months, we have been able to send additional food for the sole purpose of providing more facilities with which to camon the work at the mission stations. Why are we now able to po our workers promptly and regularly and help furnish equipment to the mission stations, whereas heretofore our income was far insitquate to pay the salaries of our workers? It is because a low of the churches have lined up to be "Monthly Regulars," by sending offered for Foreign Missions every month. A few have made Foreign Mission a part of their program. They desire to share in helping to relieve the distressing conditions of their heathen brothers across the sea.

Our churches have only begun to line up to give the gospel of Africa and other heathen lands, where millions are still groping it heathen darkness. To equip and maintain a force sufficiently use to reach such a multitude within a reasonable time is no small tast yet such is the opportunity confronting us. It ought to quicken a with tremendous carnes(ness. We are exceptionally honored in God should count us worthy of carrying His Word to the heather Think of being a colaborer with Him in this most glorlous of all well.

We should look on the success of our systematic giving scheme as only a beginning. Our task is not nearly completed. We have just started. Out of 24,333 Negro Baplist churches, 425 have lined up as Missionary Regulars." This means that, about sixteen churches out of every thousand have pledged to give the gospel to the perishing sellions. Just a glance at those figures tells us we Haptists need to wake up and do God's work on a larger scale. Many, many State conventions are not giving one penny for the spread of the gospel. Several states have taken Foreign Missions off their letter blanks. They have not yet been gripped by the spirit and purpose of that final commission of our Lord, and have not entered heartily into helping the church to reach the African heathen given us in the world's alloiment as our share for evangelization. The enlistment of every laptist church, and association in sympathy and active support of our Foreign Mission work needs special thought, prayer and effort.

If we can get one thousand churches to become "Missionary Regulars" in the next (welve months, our Board will be able to send out twenty new insistonaries supported and equipped. May the imperative needs of our mission fields, the call of our brothers and sisters in benighted lands align our whole Denomination in more definite and liberal support of our field given tasks. "Go ye therefore." Let us so, or send.

WEST AFRICA-Liberia.

Our work in West Africa is confined to the Negro republic of Liberia. Here as a missionary factor, the Negro Haptist Church has a opportunity to demonstrate its power to the world. In many cases the ground is granted to us Irce. The missionaries labor under the protection of the Liberian government. Every encouragement is given the missionaries as they work and suffer among the heathen.

This little republic has great internal resources. The soll is very fertile, the climate is of such that large crops can be grown during the whole year. It is located near the largest markets of the world. It is truly a God given opportunity for missionary activity. The citizens of this republic are Negroes who went from this country over a bundred years ago. The Lott Carey Baptist Church in Monroyla, has celebrated its one hundredth anniversary.

It is an everlasting shame to our Colored race that the industries of Liberia have not been developed. Here in America we are supplied with brick yards where bricks are made; forests from which limber can be gotten to build homes, churches and other buildings; from to make plows to till the soil for the purpose of growing all kinks of food. Those blessings which we enjoy here must be carried in our people in Africa. In a few years we hope to place Liberia in the front ranks as an industrial, agricultural and dairying country. The prospective training and industrial school which is to be erected in Liberia is mentioned on another page of this report.

We have ten mission stations in Liberia. The missionary endeavors of Suchn and Grand Bassa Missions are having worth while results. Hundrefs have come under the influence of the work and are now rearing testimony for Christ. The work at Cape Palmas is succeeding Much is being done to redeem Africa.

East Africa.

The station where Revs. Cheek, Chilenibwe and Miss Dalasj labored many years ago is still without a leader. The station does not allow Colored missionaries to enter, nor the nativa Chilans to hold services. We pray for the time to come when we will be able to do more for the Master in this part of Africa. Prequential but encouraging letters are received from the native worker assuring us of their determination to wait on the Lord until a brighter day dawns.

South and Central America.

Conditions in South America can be hardly stated. Rev Joseph Garner, who was once our missionary on this field, left such great financial responsibilities on the church until it was utterly impossible for your lloard to meet them during the past year. A highly educated minister is needed to do successful missionary work in both of these fields, such a man our Board is not able to pay at this line. The people are poor, but civilized. Help is urgently needed. Although the Board stands ready to give assistance, it feels that the people should be responsible for the support of their ministers. Our Board should not relieve them of all obligations while the heathen in Africa are far more in need of our services. Just what step is to be take to help these people is still to be decided.

West Indies.

We are supporting three workers in this field. From their reports we know that effective work is being accomplished.

Our Industrial Training School.

Let us thluk of Liberia, the only part of Africa where we may to with the gospel to those who are in heathen darkness. There is that beautiful country with an area equal to that of Obio wer thickly populated and called the Negro Republic. These people as classed as Liberians and Natives, Liberians being those whose secestors were American Negroes, while the Natives are aboriginals their ancestors having always lived in Africa.

The Liberian government is very much like that of the United States except that all the government officials from the President down are black people. Certainly they are to be congratulated on the progress made in the formation of laws and the operation of the country for more than seventy-five years. Liberia's stronger neighbor have taken a great deal of her territory. There is a great need of internal development. Liberia is near England and other great Bord pean centers, the greatest market in the world. The country is well watered, the ground is very fertile, the finest kind of timber is found in her forests, stock thrives well; citrus fruits, rice and many observationally products grow vigorously. Liberia is also said to be rich in minerals, but all of this is undeveloped. No horses or vehicle are used for transportation, consequently there are no roads for wagons. Everything is carried by human belags. The cows are so milked so they have to buy condensed milk from other countries.

Here is a great opportunity, not only to civilize the natives of Liberia, but for commercial enterprises. It is really a chailenge to the black people of Africa. Bishop Brooks of the A. M. E. Church, came over and in a short time raised $50,000. A great A. M. E. Church, class over and in a short time raised $50,000. A great A. M. E. College is now being erected. We want to go outside the city of Monrovia, purchase about two thousand acres of ground, fence it in, buy cattle, clear away the trees, dig up the stumps and begin to use homes in plowing. Agriculture, carpentry, blacksmithing, domestic science, other trades and higher arts will be taught in this institution.

We already have between $4,000 and $5,000 for this project. We need quite $50,000. Plans are being made for our Secretary in company with at least five new missionaries, to go to the field in December. to begin this noble work. Since we are to reach Africa by Christmas. would it not be well for us to give this great institution to Africa in the form of a Christman present? If every Baptist in America will give something for this great institution, we would have a school is that dark land that from an industrial viewpoint, would be a modern Taskegee, sending rays of light to every nook and corner of the republic. Every Baptist in America is asked to belo in this scheme. We are asking every Baptist to send a Christmas present to headquarlers which may be carried to Liberia. During the month of November give us one cent a year for every year you have lived, or give us $1. If you don't care to tell your age, as a Christmas gift to those who wall in darkness. Let the aggregate of these gifts equal the price of a modern industrial school, a tittle Tuskegee, then we will be giving them a chance to enjoy life as we enjoy it here.

Suehn Industrial Mission, Monrovia, Liberia, West Africa, July 13, 1923.

Rev. J. E. East, Co. Sec'y Foreign Mission Hoard, N. B. C., 701 S. 19th St., Philadelphia, Pa., U. S. A., Bear Dr. East;

Your letter of May 22, reached me July 12, with enclosed check for $125, for which I thank you most heartily. I do not have to say that it was much needed, as this is between the harvests. Hills are to be paid, food is to be bought, and the high cost is the cry. This releves us of that part of the worry. There are many argent needs, such as the long standing repairs, and funds for which to pay for them.

We have the sawers in the woods at present, for this we are very glad, for that kind of help is very scarce. Then, too, people are in such poor circumstances, that as soon as they are through their work they are auxious for their pay, and even before they are through, they must have money with which to buy food. We are doing all that we can to carry on the work at the very least expense.

We appreciate very much the $50 contributed by Mrs. Louise Russell, 310 Quincy Street, Topeks, Kansas, for the education of a little girl that is to be named for her. Just last week a king gave me his little daughter and I shall name her for Mrs. Russell. I am also very glad of the friends, considering that ft will cost more than 325 he care for a child; for it is impossible to care for a child with less than 350. But it has been the old custom, in spite of the high and increasing cost of tood here. We are having some hitter experiences in trying to get enough food, even if we have the money, because of the scarcity of foodstuff at this time, and the high cost in Moarova even there it is not always to be found. (Thanking you for your advice—but we feel that the parents should help in the support of the child, since the Mission has assured all of the responsibilities, and I discourage all other fitens.) But we are thanking find that we have had our two meals each day.

I am surprised that you haven't received the reports for the two quarters, as I mailed the first in April and the other the last of June also the pictures. That is why I did not write you as early as I wanted about the President's visit. But I hope that you will feet that I so as much interested now as I was the first day that I came. God helping us and we are very happy here, although we do not have many things that we could get at home, in beautiful America; but we have the love of God in our hearts, and we are glad to be helping the less fortunate ones. Then, too, we have been more rushed trying to get the balance or our farm in, putting up a feace to protect the farm from the goats, as we need both. (We have a number of them that a friend gave us as a start.)

We haven't let them go as yet, but as soon as they have falshed the month, we will, unless some friends want to send their pay-stronounds per month.

We want to thank you again for all that you have done for us and the friends that made it possible for us to be helping in this way. I do wish to thank Rev. M. H. Jackson for the raincont has he sent me last fall. It has meant so much to me, for one cannot go very far without the proper protection from the weather, and box to keep well. I am yet working alone and have to fill many places therefore, good rubbers, boots, raincoat and hat are always needs We are also thanking the R. I. (Providence) State Convention, through Mrs. E. B. Holland, that sent us a box which reached us in May, slice the other friends. (The names were lost with many of the things.)

I shall write you later. I hope you received the letter telling you that we have a little hoy named for the newly elected President of our National Baptist Convention. The little hoy is the son of a list and is about three years old. His name was Swiour, which means mean, this, of course, means plenty. I am sure that Dr. L. K. Williams means plenty to the National Baptist Convention.

Dr. East, I am very grateful for the papers that you have sent us from time to time. They are very interesting as I can hear from home and the many stations. I do not get "The Mission Herald so often but it is very interesting.

Our children's clothing has worn very thin. Let the friends do all that they can in this way for us.

Again thanking you and wishing you well, I am.

Yours for Christian service. E. F. BUTLER. Suehn Industrial Mission. Montovia, Liberia, West Coast Africa June 2, 1923. Rev. J. E. East, D.D., Cor. Sec'y Foreign Mission Board, 301 S. 19th Street, Philadelphia, Pa., U. S. A., Dear Dr. East:

I am sure, by this time, you have received a letter from me telling you how much we appreciate the box and barrel sent to us. We neglected to write you that we were short of many of the best articles sent, that is, we paid duty on some things that were mentioned on the invoice, but on opening the box, not the barrel, the best had been lost. We wrote you that we received a letter from Mrs. E. B. Holland that we were being sent a box from Providence, R. I., and that some of the articles sent were some of the things that we requested. These did not reach us.

I haven't written Mrs. Holland yet as there may have been some mistake in sending them. The books. Bibles, and many others things we needed so much were missing; even the canned goods were 19 cans sbort. Enclosed you will find list of same. I think we can avoid some of this trouble by putting steel bands on all of our cases.

I have just mailed you the report of the President's stay here and I hope it will be of some interest to you for "The Herald." And since a boat was due to for the U. S. A., I was auxious to have it go to the mail.

Hoping you and family and all the office force are well, and again thanking you, I am.

Yours truly.

Xwili, Bityi, Rail, Tauskie, South Africa, June 15, 1923.

E. F. BUTLER.

flear Dr. East-

thave the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter with a recriffed check of $75 from the Union Baptist Sunday School, I am thankful indeed.

We had a nice session at Quanda as you will see from the minutes of the meeting, which I am to forward soon to you for publication. have just come back from Cape Town with Rev. Payne. We went there to see the Department of Education about our school at Quanda, and we also organized a church at Mailland, Cape Town, I think it is going to be a big church there.

Dear Dr. East, I don't know what to say to you to-day. You have some good work in Africa and you are still doing it. I might say his South Africa is the product of work among the Baptists. You aught many things in this country. Please do not neglect the Middle but to school. She is looking to you and you know she cannot be anything without your help.

You have done well to Miss Nblabati and Mr. Matthews. Miss Nblabati is teaching at Quanda but Mr. Matthews is not there, an asking you. Dr. East, to let these two people be at Quanda for ley were your choice. Many good people speak well of you. Don't let your work he in vain after you have struggled in this country. It is need both of them. They will be something in that school,

MINUTES

Jesse is thankful for the money you sent him and will write you Remember me. Dr. East, in your prayers. May God bless you Yours in his name,

Rev. J. E. East, D.D., Cor. Sec'y Foreign Mission Board, 701 S. 19th St., Philadelphia, Pa., U. S. A. My dear Dr. East:

Your letter of May 15th came to us last week; it was of midinterest to us, as we are always glad to hear from you. Your letter express so much interest in the work and workers in the field.

Glad to say that we are all well. I have just returned from Grand Bassa. Miss Bryan is leaving for home and I went down to behind them get things straight. She is much broken down in health and am glad that you sent for her. I tried to get some one to help B. Sisusa, but he thinks he can manage things, he and his wife. He says if it gets where he can not take cure of matters be will let me know.

I heard from Mrs Butler, Rev. Nichols and the others, and they are all well. Rev. Nichols seems to have no mind of coming home just now as he is doing fine and is satisfied with the way you are treating him.

It seems to me that all the workers are doing well and are sellified, only the haly we have at Lloydville. I don't know if it is the but I am told that she is in a had condition as she is not hearly from you. She is a very faithful worker and is loyal to our Bord She is of more benefit to the Board than some of the other local well-ers we are supporting here now. It would be good if you are ad beating from her that you write her. Dr. Bast, knowing of your leterest in Africa's Cause, your wide experience in Africa, your two vision of what is the real and only need to regenerate Africa, under rially and spiritually, I am more anxious that you come to this field and see things for yourself, as the reports you may see and bear cannot be depended on, as in plain words many are but fates, and writing can not tell the story as it is.

Miss Bryan is now in Monrovia and I am helping her to get avershe hopes to sail on the 28th inst. by way of Spain. Miss Bryan had done noble work in Bassa and she is one of our faithful and capable workers. We hope her health will be restored that she may return to the field again. She is bringing two children with her, a little girl (native), and a young man (civilized). The people of this young man are paying for his way to America. Miss Bryan understood that the Roard does not wish to have any more children brought out, but she said she is bringing these on her own responsibility, I this Accept our thanks for your kind letter and best regards to 70%, family and friends. Pray for us. Our work is doing fine.

Yours for the Cause,
D. R. HORTON.

Rev. J. E. East, Cor. Sec'y Foreign Mission Board, N. B. C., Philadelphia, Pa. Dear Rev. East:

Another year is drawing to its close in the history of Mission work here in this part of God's vineyard with no small amount of pleasure and gratitude to God for His mercy, care and fatherly indulgence to us as missionaries and for the living existence of His work. Since the last quarter's report there is cause to rejoice that the work is still active in spite of many drawbacks.

A large number of native boys are coming out from the surrounding villages. During the last mouth there were two cases of interest. One little boy about three years of age told his mother he wanted to go to school and did not want to live in the village any longer. He came to us alone and is comfortable and contented, showing no desire whatever to be at home with his mother. Another boy about eight years of age left the home of his civilized master and came to our Mission. After being here five or six weeks, his mother came with a pitiful story that she was summoned to give up her suckling baby in place of the boy, since the latter was bought and was Mr. -s property. She pleaded with the little fellow to return. He wept and went to some neighboring village for a few days. She eventually got him and took him back. Two days later he returned to the mission. There are too many lustances to be mentioned, but better told than written. Many of these cases cited could be easily dealt with and work among the natives far-reaching if money could be contributed for relief in such instances.

The Mission house is badly in need of repairs. The farm yielded five hundred bushels of rice. The cassava crop is fine. Stock rearing with no proper fencing necessitates buying cassava the latter part of the year. The Mission kitchen needs a new stove, kitchen ntensils and also household requisites which we are unable to supply. The native boys and girls need clothing. Some of them are becoming dissatisfied with their scanty supply. We need materials for clothing. Please send them. There is much anxiety as to work for the coming year. School is about to be closed for the holidays and there is much concern how to sustain and keep up the Mission during the vacation.

Much regret is manifested over the death of the President. We extend to the members of the Board and to the Convention our sympathy. School was closed as soon as the news reached us and prayers were offered for the bereaved family and for the entire Convention. The postponement of the Convention and the death of the President and other recent bereavements are felt keenly by us who are a part of the Convention.

Yours in His service, PRISCILLA A. BRYAN, ROBERT M. SISUSA, M. D. Harper, Cape Palmas, Liberia, West Africa, April 26, 1923.

Rev. J. E. East, D.D., Philadelphia, Pa. Dear Dr. East:

I am glad to be up, and feeling well and able to write you at his time. I have been sick in bed for one week, but I asked God is enable me to get up so I might go to work again. I am all right once more. Since I wrote you last the barrier on teaching has some what been removed by the Government, but it does not seem to be settled. I opened school and began teaching the 2nd inst. I will continue to do the best I can.

I visit the Philadelphia brethren, who are still holding on the faith. I am trying to raise some money to erect a church building for them. I received check of $133.32 for which I thank you. It came in a good time.

The cost of living is high. One pound of flour costs twelve couls and other things are proportionately high. All of us must try to live. Dr. East, I realize that you are doing the best that you are in paying the different salaries and helping the stations when means warrant it. Your system of "Monthly Regulars" is just the thing and should be continued. To offset this or to allow it to be frastrated will certainly weaken the work, discourage and greatly evolutions to the promise made and many more should give regularly according to the promise made and many more should not be satisfied until they join the list. Every cent that is raised is urgently needed, not merely wanted.

I am convincingly persuaded to say that, after looking careful; into the "Central School" idea to be named "Jordan Seminary," # the churches of the Baptist denomination will think, pray and work whole-heartedly and enoperatively for the materialization of it we will eventually realize more than a field of gold, better than a bed of diamonds, and more valuable than a sea of pearls, considering the fact that a soul saved (rom chaotic heathenism, the cultivation.of the mind and the preparation of the whole man in head, heart, band and body, will doubly pay us for all that we put into it. Out of this may eventually mean the redemption of Africa for the Africans and a good deal toward giving him his rightful place in Africa and their God himself will have a bigger hearing from the big Baptist family here as well as in America. But when will the masses see the necessity of doing this? The missionaries have toited and many of then are tired, but they don't mean to give up. You, Dr. Jordan, and so many others have appealed from time to time, but what does such a pittance amount to among so many millions? If this is the most tangible, and feasible program, adequate to meet the general approval. then we should join in as one solld phalanx and do the most peopled thing for this very dark land while things are favorable.

Tell the brethren of the denomination that the Baptists in Liberia are asking what the Foreign Mission Board of the National Bapts Convention is going to do as the other denominations are doing more than we are. Dr. East, there are many things needed and should be done. I was at B. I. A. the other month and watched how interestel

Dr. Sisusa and Miss Bryan were in the work, doing what they could, and certainly they are doing the work.

I long to see the time come when we will be in position to do big things in Africa. I am much delighted to know that you were in Florida recently and saw many of my gnod friends. Kindly give my sincere regards to the many friends and the great Baptist family, Tell them that we are looking for and expecting a big program for May the Lord help you and the Board to do much for the cause. Pray for me and the success of the work.

Humbly yours in service, D. S. NICHOLS.

New Fields That Demand Our Attention.

Your Foreign Missian Board has not been able to do anything as yet toward opening up new fields, though distressing cries come to strom the native Baptist churches in Ex-German Colonies of Cameroons of West Africa, which are under the mandatory powers of the French. There are several strong independent native Baptist churches in the Cameroons under the Germans, who have been driven out by the French. Now, since the French hold mandates, it seems that the French Protestant Mission is taking over the native Baptist churches gagingt their will.

We owe it to these gentlemen to go to their rescue. We must go. We dare not fail. During the present year we should send at least two workers to this field. The letters which we are printing below rereal sad conditions. Let us pray to God for these poor, persecuted Baplists, our own people in West Africa.

Douala, April 15, 1923.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

We are taking a great pleasure in the name of God to approach you for some help for we your poor brethren have been living in discress spiritually for the last fourteen months. As you will see from the attached documents, we are begging you to favor us by forwarding the matter to the different Baptist associations, conventions with which you might be connected, to have this affair openly known and send us as awell as the French Protestant Mission here a word of consolation and advice as to the best step to take in order to conclude the matter. We have also sent a copy of the same (as you will see by enclosed copy) to the Missionary Society in London. We wish the notice to go abroad, hoping that by exchanging of letters God will render some help.

f, the undersigned, was haptized by Rev. N. S. Epps, D.D., January 21, 1809, and since my return to Africa I have been doing what I could for the uplift of our native Baptist churches until the present trouble arose. I hope you will take some interest in the matter and help us if possible.

We are awaiting your kind and favorable reply at your earliest convenience in the name of God, regardless of the distinction of nations, that we might have some rest. We are,

Yours for Christ, THOMAS BARLA, 'ecrivian-interrprete-principal Chemin de fer' du Centre Dauala. Cameroon, West Africa.

Douala, Cameroons, April 23, 1923. To the Directors of the Baptist Missionary Society in London,

Dear Sir:

We have the honor most respectfully to approach you in the name of God and helping a hand of your Society, asking that you assist us in our painful soul's distress which we have been suffering over fourteen months. See attached documents.

The arrival of the French Protestant here was in the year of 1915, under the charge of Director E. Allegret. During this time the work of God was divided as follows:

The Native Baptist stood independently, the German Baptist Mission on the other hand, German Protestant Church by itself and the Roman Catholic stood for itself. There was no connection between these churches, but each worked peacefully.

In a short time, before the leaving of Mr. Allegret for France, Mr. Charles Mattre, his successor, who had been introduced to the people as a Baptist pastor, raised a tremendous disorder in all the Native Baptist churches in Duala, which were founded by Mr. Alfred Saker, Miss E. Saker, Mr. Munz, Mr. Thomas Lewis, David Johnson, Mr. Fuller and other good volunteers. These churches are the oldest in the whole Cameroons and there are over nine thousand active members in different districts of this country.

Through jealousy the French Protestant Missionary, C. Maltre nersuaded some of the Native Baptist Church members in March 1922, to be partakers of a movement to stop the Native Baptist Church entirely from working in order that he might occupy the whole place and get an increased salary. In fact, these Native members, not knowing the object, agreed with him and assembled blindly to sign their acceptance to the said decision of French Protestant against our Native pastor. Lotin Same. (See Copy No. 1.)

After the reception of this decision, the Native Baptist Church protested but the administration here gave no reply to the petition. After a while the Native Baptist Church answered them by a revision as you will see in Copy No. 2. We saw clearly that this act was not religiously done, but as mischief to us because we do not have a leader here in Duala and for this reason we are submitting our selves to the Missionary Society to give us some help, for we have heen actually driven from our own properties by Mr. Charles Mattre. Because of his ill treatment we absolutely refuse to join under his control, but rather he leaves all our Chapels that we may work in peace as we have done for the last forty-seven years without belog led by anyone since the departure of Mr. Sacker, etc.

Pastor Charles Maitre, of the French Protestant Mission, known as a Baptist pastor. Is exercising the rules and regulations of the Latherans, very different from the Baptist worship, allowing pastors of the said denomination to serve the Lord's Supper among the Baptists, assisting in the baptism, etc. His object is to do away with the Baptist worship. In this case we do not recognize him as a remember of the Baptist Church. We acknowledge that the Gospe should be freely taught among the heathens, but this self-commanding of Mr. C. Maitre is a surprising fact.

We are in need of help in order that our nine thousand Christians may not go astray. We want to hold up the name of Mr. Sacker here as it is held up in Victoria by the natives as one who opened the eyes of many black men in this country, West Africa. We are sure God has rewarded bim for his good and faithful work.

We are humbly awalting your assistance in some way so that the french Protestant Mission may let us go on with our own work. We are expecting a favorable reply at your earliest convenience.

Yours very sincerely,

'ecrivain-interprote-principal Chemin de fer du Centre Douats, Cameroon, West Africa.

Decision Concerning Latin Same, Late Pastor of the German Baptist Church in Cameroon

It is known that Lotin Same has been solutly ordained for the ministry by Missionary Bonder and given charge of the German Baptist Mission after promising:

To conform his teachings publicly and privately with the faith of the church.

To live faithfully in principal orders and liberties which assure force and independency of the church.

To consecrate all his time and strength in faithfully fulfilling the duties of a minister.

It is known that since 1917, Lotin Same desired to gain money by sawing wood, keeping a plantation and trading (aside from the work which he should have done.)

It is known that though weary of reproaches and appeals. Lotin Same separated from the Mission which he promised to serve and organized an association of which he is chief. He is putting the question of politics (of race and clan) before the question of religion.

It is known that Lotin Same is faithless to the rules of the true Christian Church. The Christian Church in all the world refuses to receive polygamists in the church, but he has baptized them and given them positions as deacons in the church. He has publicly declared that polygamists should be admitted to the church.

It is known that those who are responsible for the missionary work had long expected that Lotin Same would realize his duties and would desire to faithfully and humbly perform the work of God in his country, but his scandals have troubled the churches and country. No man who completely falls to engage in the sacred duties of his charge is permitted to bear the title of a pastor unless he is first discharged.

The missionaries assembled at Duals saw themselves obliged to declare that:

Lotin Same put himself out of the grand community of Christians who ordained him. In consequence they are patned to remove the title and function of pastor.

Lotin Same has no right to preach, baptize, or serve the Lord's Supper in a Christian church. He has no right to worship in any service in a house built for the use of God's service.

The representatives of the Baptist Union Church of Camerooa, pastors, evangelists, deacons and catechists joined in the General Conference at Dido on the 19th of March, 1922, recognizing that for the peace of the church, country and the honor of Christianism did oblige the missionaries to take such decisions.

We ask God to have pity on the churches who want to live and serve in purity and peace, and on Lotin Same that he may repent.

COPY NO. 2.

The Revelation of the Native Baptist Church of Cameroon regating the decision taken by the French Protestant Mission against the Natiwe Baptist Church and the Pastor, Lotin Same, by discharging him of his pastoral duties.

After taking notice and investigating each point which is written in the decision of the French Protestant Mission against the Pastor, Lotin Same, the Native Baptist Church of Cameroon unanimously decided to reply openly as follows:

- We do not recognize the decision of the French Protestant Mission as a rule of God's laws, especially not as the regulations of the Baptist churches of the world.
- 2. (a) The Missionary Maître is the only full member of Baptist church, but the other missionaries who took part to witness this decision had no right to do so for they are not members of the Baptist Church; neither Missionary Maître has right to decide a matter which concerns the Native Baptist Church but of the French Protestan Mission; that means, he did not come to Camercon for the interest of the Native Church, but as one of the French Protestant Mission. In fact, he is persuading the Baptist and has knowledge of the rules, though he is a Baptist and has knowledge of the regulations of ins religion which requires that every missionary be baptized if he wishes to unite with the church.
- (b) It is known throughout Cameroon that since the year Rethere exists a church named the Native Baptist Church, which is no connection with the Mission churches, even when the German aptists were here, but there never was a church here by the name of Union Baptist Church of Cameroon.

All black men who signed that decision were more or less persuated to do so, but not through their consideration, because they are not authorized to do so. They as members of the Native Church have folied to stick to their failb.

The reason of their separation from us is because of their failure to fulfill their promises for the benefit of God's work. It is certain that the various churches mentioned in the decision know nothing of this act so they could not authorize them to witness such a decision contrary to the facts. Furthermore, most of them are not leaders of the churches as it is indicated in the so said decision.

It is known in every Baptist Church in the world that no Christian is dismissed from the church without being justly dealt with according to the rules and laws of the Bible and a motion of the church to the effect.

The Native Baptist Church, of which Lotin Same is principal member, has never found any fault with him which would cause him to be judged. We consider this decision a made up matter for the purpose of stopping the success of the Native Baptist Church.

- 3. It is known that the Native Church was founded in 1884 and has been carrying on her own work up to this date through her own leadership and for her own benefit. Pastor Lotin Same did not organize this church for his own sake as is falsely mentioned in the French Protestant decision.
- 4. It is known that the French Protestant Mission is willing to take people to be coworkers with them as teachers, etc., and keep them in the church of God though they have faults which are openly known, but because they are good speakers, they are allowed to become members.
- 5. Before the arrival of the French Protestant Mission the Native Church had a right to settle matters of her own and it is known that no church in the world has right to decide a matter of another church and stop her minister from performing his duties without authority.

This, is caused by reason of distinction of races between us which is much exercised by the French Protestant Missionaries called God's neonle.

Therefore, the Native Church has taken this decision as unjust, so made up their minds that:

The Pastor, Lotin Same, has a full right to continue all his holy works, to visit all the congregations of the Native Baptist Church as before and to be recognized in any Church of God in the world as an ordained pastor.

This is decided in the meeting of the Church elders of the Native Baptlat Church of Cameroon, held at Dikolo Chapel, Duala, the 19th day of April, 1922.

We, the undersigned, are chosen to speak and decide for the entire Native Raptist Church.

Signed: Musongo Etoa, Bekombo Dibue, Eyango Tamba, Jemba Muduru, Kinge Tonc. Mdoki Mpumbe, Embola Dikobo, Enama Njemele. Muudi Hose, Kinge Dibomge, Ewegea Seme, Njo Dumbe, Bwemba Ngole, Endene Jata.

Duala, le 20 June, 1922.

MINUTES Recommendations.

- (1) Our Board recommends that more time be given during the Wational Baptist Convention, to put the cause of Missions before the people by the means of stereopticon views, lectures and addresses given by missionary experts.
- (2) We recommend that we have a seminanual Board meeting for the whole Board, which shall be held in connection with a missionary institution or Chautangua in some central place, so that the whole Board will be brought in closer touch and more often with the work and become imbued with the needed information and inspiration that the occasion may offer.
- (3) That at this same semiannual Board meeting, all pastors and church workers who are interested in Missions, be privileged to attend and associate themselves with the Board to help spread the gospel.
- (4) Since the country is ripe for getting and lining up persons as Monthly Missionary Regulars, and in order to achieve our purpose in recruiting at least one thousand (1,000) regular contributors during the next conventional year, we recommend that we divide our territory into districts, putting a worker in each district. The duty of these workers to go from church to church getting them to line up as Missionary Regulars, taking the names of pastors and key workers so as to put our office in touch with them.

Let us remember that one thousand (1,000) additional regular will mean twenty (20) new missionaries in Africa.

- (5) That the associations and conventions throughout the country be urged to put Foreign Missions on their letter-blanks so as to make these organizations "Open Channels" through which God can send the gospel to a heathen land.
- (6) That all associations and conventions be urged to lift at less one offering some time during the session for the spread of the gospel and that this money be forwarded to the Board.

Again our Financial Report does not cover a year's work, but only eleven months. It shows that $42,854.03 have been raised during these eleven months. No efforts have been made to put on a drive of any kind aside from our usual Easter effort; no distressful cry has been raised on behalf of some suffering and stranded missionary that would bring in any extra funds; just our regular method of collecting funds.

Out of our more than 24,000 churches, less than 500 have fined up as monthly regulars. The major part of this money thus reported came from these monthly regular churches.

Most of the money paid out in notes was paid out on account of missions. We would especially call the attention of our readers to that part of our Financial Report that refers to the collections from the different states and they will notice how Pennsylvania has grawled up, as well as many other states. They will also notice the shameful amount that some of the states have given during the year for the spread of the gospel in all the world.

The Mission Herald

The Mission Herald has done more for Foreign Missions this year than any other living agent. It has gone into thousands of homes and stirred hearts. It has been a bureau of information, an instrument mightily used by the Holy Spirit in making friends for missions. A large amount of the money given by Pennsylvania is due to the fact that many of the pastors have gotten bundles of The Mission Heralds and distributed them among their members.

If you ask if this principle has paid, I will point you to the $8,000 given by Pennsylvania. At the first reading of The Herald many Sunday School Superintendents, B. Y. P. U. Presidents and Missionary Circle Presidents, as well as Pastors themselves have used their influence to have their organization or church become missionary regulars.

No truly regenerated soul can rend The Mission Herald and not contribute to Foreign Missions, unless they are poverty stricken.

4 Mission Fleld-South Africa.

South Africa stands out as one of our greatest fields of missionary activity. There we have more salarled workers than in any other part of the mission field. In addition to these workers there are a number of unpaid local preachers who show great interest in the work We have fourteen mission stations with eight ordained ministers and over 7,000 Baptists. The native people are so uncertain as to the tenure of land until they have become very transitory, therefore it is hard to keep a line on membership. When there is a flourishing church to-day, there may be an empty church to-morrow. The poor natives are compelled to go from pillow to post for a livelihood. In connection with the fourteen mission stations there are a number of out stations. In many cases one station will take in a radius of two lumified miles and there will be a number of surrounding out stations that are taken care of by the paster of the main station. If fands would permit, each of these out stations would be made a regular church with a pastor devoting all his time to the church and community. There would be a day and Sunday school at every stationWe have only nine day schools in all South Africa. Our large Industrial school at Middledrift is still making progress under the leadership of Rev. H. A. Payne, who is the only American born colored missionary in this part of Africa at this time. His wife, Mrs. Bessle Payne, has just returned to this country.

There is great need of better understanding between all the workers of South Africa and our Foreign Mission Board. A distant relationship has existed heretofore.

Only one house in South Africa is properly deeded to our Board. That is at Cape Town. The largest number of our church houses are on ground owned by the Government and a deed cannot be secured. Apparently there is a feeling on the part of the brethren of South Africa that the Board should supply the money and equipment for the work without a voice in the direction of it. Our Board is taking a firmer stand. It if is to support the work, it should have some say in its direction and also the missionary activities of those workers who are being supported and equipped.

Our missionary activities are being hampered by restrictions put on missionaries entering this part of the continent. Let us pray that the doors of South Africa may be opened wide to us. The prayer of a righteous man availeth much.

in all Africa, perhaps the greatest educational institution connected with our Board is the one at Middledrift. This institution is supplied with a large number of well trained teachers. Agricultural, industrial, normal and ministerial courses are taught. This valuable school property is on crown land to which not a single document is held, it was simply given by the Chief and we have occupied it since 1897. If matters can be adjusted relative to the ownership and direction of this work, the future of the school is assured.

Field Workers.

Mrs. Josephine Straghn is the most outstanding character as a field worker of our Foreign Mission Board. For many years she has labored for the work and her Interest and proficiency have so multiplied with these years until at the present time she is the most effective worker of our denomination. There is no other agent of our Foreign Mission Board, with the exception of the Corresponding Secretary, so successful in raising funds for Foreign Missions as our Sister Straghn. She is worthy of some recognition on the part of our Board. Through her efforts, Florida has been put on the map as a Foreign Mission State and many churches in other states have been aroused to do Foreign Mission Work.

Miss E. E. Joshua, who is also on our staff of field workers, has made very few reports during the year. Her failure to do same, may be ill health.

During the coming year we may increase our staff of field workers. Their chief object will be to get the churches lined up as "Missionary Regulars" rather than collect funds.

New Warkers.

There is a great need for new workers to take the place of those who have come home for a rest to increase their strength for new missionary activities in Africa. Our forces have been weakened by the home-coming of Dr. W. T. Amiger, Superintendent of Mission, Liberia; Miss D. E. Harris, worker at the Burroughs Industrial Mission, Liberia, and Mrs. H. A. Payne, worker at the Buchanan Normal and Industrial Mission, South Africa. Recent communications room Miss P. A. Bryan tell us she is on her way home.

In December of this year it is our hope to send out at least five workers in company with the Corresponding Secretary. These workers are now being selected. We are glad to report that a majority of them are young people with college degrees. Some of the new workers will be stationed at old mission stations, the remainder will take charge of the work of the training and industrial school in Liberia. It will take quite $2,000 to put these fresh recruits on the field, but we have faith in God and our Baptist denomination. We feel that God is with us and that the Baptists will rise to the called the hour. Were it not so expensive we would have brought some of the prospective workers across the continent and would have had them say farewell to the Convention.

Open Channels.

The importance of open channels can hardly be overestimated from any point of view.

The people of Europe in ancient days had a great fascination for the things of India and the East. There was a caravan route acress the Holy Land down the Emphrates Valley and on to India. Camels were used in crossing this large tract of ground but it was a grattine of commerce; most valuable materials were transported to set from the East.

When Mohammedanism arose and the Moslem took charge of Pulestine the way was blocked and for years Europe and the Ess suffered for the want of an open channel for communication.

Our own America was discovered while Columbus was seeking as open channel to the East. Bartolomeu Diaz discovered South Africa while trying to achieve the same purpose. Though very laddiect, a waterway was found to the East by way of South Africa but is later years the small/neck of land between the Red Sea and Mediermenean Sea was tackled and a channel was opened up connecting the waters of the Indian Ocean with those of the Meditermaness Sea. This Suez Canal has been a blessing to the whole world it is absolutely essential that it be kept open.

For a number of years the eastern part of America had suffered for the lack of some channel by which we could reach the western coast. With great difficulty, mountains have been tunneled and deserts have been crossed by lines of railroads, still there was felt the need of a better channel. Had our fleet been on the western coast and the enemy attacked our eastern coast twenty years so it would have taken weeks for our awfitest memo-fewar to have gotten to our defense. The same would have been true of the West. This our forces were divided. Our government felt the need of a channel so that any part of the country could be easily reached; therefore millions and millions of dollars were spent on the Panama Cansl, and a way was opened up to go quickly from the East to the West. Sometimes there is a landslide and this channel becomes blocked, the movements of all ships are held up, commerce is tied up so we are laved with a great calamity. The importance of keeping the Panama Canal open cannot be overestimated.

We have not yet forgotten the terrible struggle of the Allies to open up the Dardanelles; prominent place was given in the Peace Conference to this important channel so it might be international and kept open for all countries. Thousands of lives were lost trying to open it up when it was closed. Close it and the wheat growing world cannot communicate with the other ports of Europe, bread will greatly increase in price and both man and beast will feel the effect of the closion.

The greatest need of this age is open channels through which our Lord Jesua Christ can reach the unfortunate, the unsaved and the perishing world. The purpose of our Lord for every individual, church, association or convention is that they might be a channel or a means through which He can reach unfortunate humanity with a panacea for all its ills.

Our God, through grace, wishes to make our hearts great waterways through which He may sail ships of love to the rescue of our fellow men. When we, through selfishness, close up our hearts, the way is blocked and souls that might be rescued and succored suffer and perish. Human beings are only stewards in trust with this world's goods to be used as a blessing for unfortunate men. God wants to pass something through our hands to be a blessing to others. When we become selfish, when we decide no, we are going to use this for ourselves, or we are going to use the greater part for ourselves and forget about the others, then we close the channel. Our Saviour's work, helping others through us, is hindered. Moneys come into the church for the building of church houses, the support of the minister, other expenses of the church, for support of education, and of missions. It must come through the channel of human beings and as soon as they through selfishness stop the channel, the work of the Kingdom suffers.

Well may we sing, "Make Me a Channel of Blessings To-day." The very greatest service we can possibly render is to open our hearts to our Saviour through the means he has given us and through our talents we may reach someone else. May we keep the channels open!

Next we come to the church. Many times the members ring true as open channels to the church and through them God fills the church reasury with many dollars that could be used for real work, that is, the spread of the gospel to all the world. The building of church edifices though a side issue, is man's first consideration but the whole Christ to the whole Lord is the paramount issue for God's pendle. But oh how often the channel is stopped up and God cannot reach the world through His church.

He cannot get to the associations and the conventions through the church. The ministers and the congregations begin to say that charily begins at home, let us help ourselves and many of them pay for their church, supply their paster with every need in the way of beautiful parsonages, fine automobiles and clothes. They close their ears to the cry of a perishing world. The church as a channel is closed up and our God cannot get an after collection once a mouth to carry on His Kingdom work. Sometimes the minister with a drawn sword stands in the passage way, sometimes the officers and sometimes the whole congregation. They fall to see the great field that is while to harvest.

No, to them the purpose is to pay for the church edifice and a keep up the running expenses. Many times there are consecrated hearts in these churches who from their meagre earnings from medial labors give liberally to missions, but the church will not let this money pass through. With no hesitation they take the missionary money and use it for every other thing but missions. Is not this a blocking of the channels, while human souls perish on the other end?

Associations should also be open channels through which God can move and carry on His Kingdom work. How often in recent times, yes, within the last few weeks have we seen the officers of associations and conventions diverting and misapplying funds that the church had sent up for the spread of the gospel in the world. Tea we have seen this money taken for the payment of traveling expenses for executives. In many other ways the missionaries are hindered in their work and suffering, they, for whom it was given in support. Such associations have blocked the way; they are not open channels and they seem to little realize the great calamity caused by their attitude.

Above all things our National Baptist Convention must be an open channel through which God can do His work. There must be no ungodliness, no spirit of graft, no thirst for honor, no political chicanery that will block that great organization as an open channel through which our Saviour can work. We are praying, we are watching, and we carefully plan that every thread of clothes worth sending that is forwarded to our Foreign Mission Board and the very largest percentage possible of money that is given our Board will pass on for the redemption of jost souls in Dark Africa.

To us that is a sacred trust, our most solemn duty and in the graiday of reckoning may we stand with our garments clean not beint charged with having blocked one penny that passed through our hands for the redemption of a lost world. May God help us to content for open channels!

It was a splendid report and full of helpfut information. Dr. J. C. Austin. Pa., spoke the closing words commending the monthly regulars and the progressive plan of the Board. Dr. A. M. Johnson. Ohis. Chairman Morris Menorial Commission, submitted the report of broommission through the Secretary, Dr. O. C. Maxwell. Missouri. 12846 receipts. Expenses $232.02. Encore, "I'll Overcome," Dr. Boone made an appeal for those who had suffered losses and misfortunes. Secretary Hudson made announcements. While the band played "The Star Spangled Banner." Dr. Griggs and his escort entered the building. This was followed by a Chantauqua sainte. "My Country 'Tis of Thee" was rendered. The briffith Quartette sang a beautiful selection. Dean Chas. W. Kelley, Tuskegen Institute, was presented to express the sincere regrets of ilt R. Moton because of inability, brought by circumstances, to be present. Solo, Mrs. J. D. Hushell, New York, "It Was for Me." Dr. E. B. Topp. Mississippi, was presented to introduce the speaker of the evening. In well chosen works Dr. Topp presented the Rev. Dr. S. E. thiggs, Tonnessen, to deliver the annual address. Dr. Griggs, with peculiar wittleisms and characteristic humor, caught the crowd and prepared them for one of the richest treats that ever was the lot of an assembled host for conventional purposes. "An Interpreter, A Prophet, A Reformer," was the selected subject about which the orator built a masterpiece and in a burst of fiery eloquence portrayed the essential reformation needed and swept the vast assemblage away as Circu did the populace and lashed them to extraordinary endeavor as did Demosthenes the Athenian host to resistance of Phillip's encroachment. It was a triumph. A reformer, a seer and the most analytic mind of the race. He has no peer upon the platform.

Music by the Chorus. "Shine. Shine" and "Just Over" were sung. An offering of $7.28 for the unfortunates was lifted. Adjournment with benediction by Dr. J. W. Bailey.

Bolden, Mississippi, presiding, called for the minutes and the journal of Wednesday, Thursday and Priday sessions were read by Assistant Secretary J. M. Nabrit. The minutes were read and approved unanimously. Dr. W. P. Offult, Kentucky, was presented and discussed the theme. "The Uplifted Christ, the Pledge of the Triumph of Right." The speaker was at his best and gave the Convention a splendid message inspiring and reassuring. Announcement of committees, boards and Vice-Presidents from the states were read by Assistant Secretary E. H. McDonald. The lists as announced were approved. Rev. E. L. Twine. Mississippi, presented a series of resolutions touching the Resolutions in the $100,000.00 Drive.

Whereas. The President of our National Baptist Convention recommends the raising of One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000.00) for the varied and pressing needs of our Denomination, and

Whereas, in my humble judgment the full weight of every element of the Convention should cooperate with our President in the raising of said money in every legitimate way.

Therefore, Be it Resolved, That to secure the closest cooperation of every association and convention belonging to this Convention a commission of five members from each state be appointed whose durit shall be to lay the needs of the Denomination upon the hearts of our people at home.

Resolved further. That the President of this Convention appoint one member of said State Commission and that the other four members be appointed by the President of the State or their Executive Boards.

Be it further Resolved. That each State Commission shall have power to formulate whatever plan in their State will in their judgment help to manipulate this great program.

An amendment making the appointment by the several state presidents having been offered, the resolution was adopted. The Auditor, Prof. E. D. Pierson, submitted his annual report. Comprehensive exact, systematic, detailed, illuminating and exhaustive was the treatment of the vital matters of the Convention as presented in this report of the Auditor. Report referred.

AUDITOR'S ANNUAL REPORT

of the

Various Boards and Other Activities

of the

National Baptist Convention, U. S. A. Made At Its Session, September 5, 1923, Los Angeles, Calif.

For Serious Reflection.

In order that the suggestions and criticisms offered in connection with the following accounts may be better understood, the following information or explanation of the duties of an auditor is given:

1. Auditing, unlike bookkeeping, is an analytical process, it implies not only a thorough knowledge of accounts and the principles underlying their constructions, but requires also the ability to analyze properly the details of business transactions and to synthesize correctly the operation of a business—hence his business is not so much to ask you what you have as it is to tell you what you ought to have 2. It is the common belief that the chief end of an audit is to verify the arithmetical accuracy of the books, to say that the accounts were examined and (ound correct or incorrect, to add a "Balance Sheet." A more false conception of auditing can scarcely be conceived. For, not only must the auditor be a business analyst, but he must be able to make his analysis show the effect of business policies practiced and the factors which contribute to greater cohesion and efficiency in administration, office routine, factory production of marketing. For its the business-building, constructive side of auditing that is of greatest worth.

3. An auditor of Negro Baptists' accounts means much more that the term "auditor" usually means, for, in its actual performance, it often develops that the auditor, aside from auditing, must actually. I. Train the bookkeeper; 2. Work out a system by which the records can properly be kept; 3. Interpret and classify the various business transactions in the light of Baptist usages and practices.

it is practically impossible for anyone to make satisfactory audit of church accounts who is not conversant with that denomination's usages and practices.

Thousands Saved.

Secretaries and others directing our finances can readily attest to the great saving resulting from thorough and periodical audits. This does not necessarily mean dishonest practices. Thousands of dollars, or their Juliues, are saved annually because of auditing, for we try to keep records to be audited: I. More accurate and truthful; 2. Better classified: 3. More exacting; 4. Because of expected comparison, expenditures are made more economical; 5. Cash receipts are more carefully entered and accounted for and cash disbursements are more carefully guarded; 6. Business systems, to make the above possible, are sought, used and appreciated; business confidence and permanency are strengthened and a healthy business spirit—an essential to business success—is developed and maintained. There is no greater "return" on any investment made than that paid to keep the operation of the business straight. Just as an alarm clock loses its usefulness when its warnings go unheeded by the very ones who bought it to be thus controlled, so will our Convention fail in reaping the rich reward good business management brings if it fails to seriously consider and act upon the suggestions herein made in connection with our denominational financial activities.

A Good Sign.

Just as the physician knows his diagnosis is correct, and the prescribed medicine is reaching the spot by the patient's unrest simultaneously with visible evidences showing progress toward permanent recovery, so does the auditor, when he sees only his classification and compensation, but not the facts and accuracy of his statement assailed. An auditor would not be true to the great trust imposed—especially in the light of the fact that he does not operate any of the "Boards" of accounts audited, if he falled to make an impartial statement of facts as they actually occur under the X-ray of modern business analysis. This your auditor will insist on doing as long as the Convention's command is "give us facts, figures and fair play."

To the President, Officers, Representatives and Others of the National Baptist Convention of the United States of America:

Dear Fellow Workers: It is with a keen sense of the responsibility affacted that I submit for your serious consideration my Third Annual Report, dealing with the "facts and figures" as revealed and interpreted from the records kept in the office of your officers and various "Boards" for the year beginning August 1st, 1922, and ending June 30th, 1923.

The "Records" of this Board seem to be as clusive as the proverbial flea. Although there has been much correspondence, telegrams, and the like, as well as many promised engagements made to ferret out the actual conditions of this Board, the Auditor has not set been able to see a single record belonging thereto; notwithstanding he made a special trip to Memphis for this purpose.

However, while in Memphis Rev. Thomas, a member of the Board and others, made it possible for me to get in the office where I took in inventory of everything left in the office, as follows:

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT

EDUCATIONAL BOARD

Dr. Sutton E. Griggs, D.D., Secretary, 608 N. Mirick Ave., Denison, Texas

This Board has been inactive throughout the year. In snewer to the many queries, the following letter, although of a partial personal nature, can best explain matters, and it is accordingly produced in it entirely here:

"Denison, Texas, Aug. 14, 1923.

"Prof. E. D. Pierson,
"318 Robin Street,
"Houston, Texas.
"Dear Professor Pleason;

"Your favor of July 23rd is before me with regard to the Educational Board. I beg to say that no funds whatever have come to me. I have kept in touch with its affairs, and have made several trips in its interest, but have received nothing for my services, and have no bill to present; I have simply served as acting secretary during this year, taking care of such responsibilities as arose. I suppose that this statement that I have merely acted as secretary is a sufficient answer to other of your questions.

"The hendquarters have remained exactly as left by my predecessor, Rev. S. N. Vass. With regard to the estate to which you refer, Rev. S. N. Vass is in a position to give you full information as my father, before he died, took up the matter with him, and told him what disposition he would make of the property. I wish to say that the property in question is being administered as he directed. Out of the funds accraing a scholarship has been established in Bishop College, and will be in operation throughout the coming school year and thereafter. Should the National Baptist Convention establish a department for women in connection with the proposed National Theological Seminary, funds derived, from this property can be used under the terms of the bequest to help educate Christian women in that department. I am simply giving you this for your personal information.

The nutter was fully discussed between Dr. Vass and my father. They did not agree, as I understood, but my father's action was positive and linal in the matter, and I have no disposition to depart from his judgment and his wishes.

"Yours sincerely,

"SUTTON E. GRIGGS."

Dr. C. H. Parrish submitted the report of the Joint Seminary Commission.

REPORT OF THE JOINT COMMISSION ON THE NEGRO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

MINUTES .

Since we made our last report, two members of the Joint-Commission, who were members of the National Baptist Convention, have passed to their reward. Rev. E. C. Morris, D.D., of Helena, Ark., was President of the National Baptist Convention, U. S. A. After a lingering illness Dr. Morris died on September 5, 1922. He was a brother, well-beloved and trusted, and altogether worthy of the high bour hestowed on him. He was President of the National Baptist Convention for 23 years. His loss is deeply deplared, and his memory will be afferdimately cherished among his fellow servants.

At the meeting of the National Baptist Convention, which was held in St. Louis, in December 1922, Rev. W. G. Parks, D.D., of Philadelphia, and long time Vice-President of the National Baptist Convention, was chosen to succeed Dr. Morris on the Commission. He had scarcely reached his home, in Philadelphia, when, in a moment, and willout premutition, he was stricken and died within a few hours. He would have been a most helpful member of the Commission, for he was most highly esteemed among the whole brotherhood.

There have been two other changes recently made in the personnel of the Commission. Rev. P. James Bryant, of Atlanta, Ga., was chosen to take the place made vacant by the death of Dr. Parks, meantime Dr. J. W. Bailey, because of his change of work, resigned his place on the Commission, and was succeeded by Dr. S. N. Vass, of Nashrille. Ten. And Dr. Joseph A. Booker, who was Corresponding Secretary of Home Missions for Arkansas, was a member of the Commission, until he resigned that office. He was succeeded by Rev. W. F. Lovelace, D.D., of Wynne, Ark, both as Corresponding Secretary of Home Missions, and as a member of our Commission. These men have all given earnest and faithful support to the work of this Commission.

A Year of Adjustments

There were sufficient reasons why the Joint-Commission felt it proper to delay a little longer, the beginning of our building enterprise. We have desired to promote the integests of the seminary in the safest possible way. Hence we were proceeding with much caution. We had selected an architect, but had not given order to prepare plans for a building, when we discovered that it might be possible to purchase the property of the St. Cecilia Academy, a Catholic school for girls, located in Nashville. For what appeared to them as sufficient reasons they desired to change their location. And it so happened that their property would be exactly suited to our needs. It would not only supply us at once with a full equipment of grounds and buildings, but would likewise supply our needs for many years to come, and he admirably adapted to the best interests of the Seminary.

About St. Cecilia.

This school is located within the corporate limits of Nashville, being in North Nashville, and lying just across the Cumberland River from Roger Williams University, and the location originally chosen for the seminary. It has all the buildings and grounds and improvements that the seminary will need for many years. The slaters who own the school tell us that there is sufficient room to accommodate and house as many as eight hundred students. Doubtless they have in mind that many kirls. But there is sufficient accommodation for at least Five Hundred Theological students, and a faculty sufficient for a school of that size. There are seventy-five acres of land in the premises. In a good state of improvement. And there are all the buildings and every other equipment which would be needed in the conduct of a school of that size. The school has all of the public utilities, including street cars, electric lights, gas and water, power house, laundry, harns, dairy, poultry pens and houses, as well as orchards, truck pardens and berries, and vegetable gardens and stock pens and enclosures. The place is in a fine state of improvement. It occupies one of the most commanding sites around Nashville, and is commanding in appearance.

The sisters tell us that the institution represents an investment of not less than $600.000. They have signified their willingness in sell it to us for $300.000. In order to exercise all needed caution, your Commission engaged two disinterested men, who are familiar with Nashville, and with real estate and property values, to inspect the property, and give us their estimate of its value on an open market. They report that they regard the property as worth $300.000, which is asked for it. It is a most beautiful and commanding situation, and would at once give the seminary a standing of importance and dignity, equal to any school in Nashville. And Nashville is a city of schools such that it is spoken of, with pride, by our people, as "The Atheas of the South." And it well deserves the name.

Canvassing the Terms of the Trade

It has been a slow and somewhat deliente task to come to an agreement with the sixters, as to the price and conditions of a trade. For the Catholic sixters have naturally been very cautious and somewhat timid, in agreeing to the sate. And your Commission has tried to be as careful as possible, because we felt deeply the importance of an anomination and also to us as cooperating conventions, of this great adventure. We have sought, at all times to conform to what we believed would meet the approval of the conventions, as well as all the triends of the enterprise.

Our Option

We have practically agreed with the St. Cecilia Academy people up on the terms and conditions by which the property may be acquired by us. We have been in conference with their accredited Altorney, and have practically come to verbal agreement. But the time has been too limited for us to have all necessary papers prepared. Our proposition is that we shall acquire the property upon the following terms: The price agreed upon is three hundred thousand ($100.000) dollars. Our first payment is to be one bundred thousand ($100.000) dollars, which is to be paid September 25, 1923. At that time the title is to pass to us, and satisfactory arrangements are to be made for the payment of the other two hundred thousand, ($200.000) dollars. In annual payments of fifty thousand, ($50.000) dollars. But we have assurance that we can easily make arrangements so that we can have what time we may desire to pay the remainder. But we have agreed with the representative of the academy that there shall be payments made on the first of each succeeding July, of as much as fifty thousand. ($50,000) dollars. We are assured that when the first one hundred thousand. ($100,000) dollars have been paid, we can secure what time is necessary in order to complete the payment of the purchase price. In the first payment of one hundred thousand. ($100,000) dollars the National Baptist Convention agree to pay twenty-five thousand. ($25,000) dollars. Then they agree to cooperate with us in the payment of the rest. They have agreed to put as much as one hundred thousand, ($100,000) dollars into the purchasing of the seminary. This we believe they can do, under their new President, Dr. L. K. Williams.

Authority to Make This Purchase

Your Commission asks that in case these salistactory terms are completed as indicated above, your Commission he and is hereby authorized to close the deal for the St. Cecilia Academy property, and dispose of the former site, originally chosen, and put the proceeds into the purchase of the said St. Cecilia property. And in case this is done, we ask that we be authorized to plan for the opening of the seminary in the autumn of 1924. And in case this purchase is not made, then we ask that you authorize your Commission to proceed to hilld on the original site, on the Whites Creek Pike, and adjacent to Roger Williams University, and that they prepare to open the semiory in the autumn of 1924.

Preparing for Organization

Your Joint-Commission has unanimously agreed that we organize two boards, under the laws of Tennessee, in keeping with recent legislation, to accommodate the needs of our Joint Commission; at all times safeguarding the interests of this Convention. One of these boards is to be known as "The Holding Board," and is to consist of twelve (12) men, eight from the Southern Baptist Convention, and four (4) from the National Baptist Convention, U. S. A. The purpose and function of this Board is to acquire by purchasing, gift or otherwise property for the seminary; to hold it in trust managing all its interests, transacting all husiness with respect to it. They are to be authorized to rent, and will rent the property to the other board for a nominal sum. This Board is to be known as "The Governing Board." It is to consist of thirty-six members, twenty-four of whom shall be members of the National Baptist Convention, and so organized that the Secretary of the Governing Board shall be a member of the Southern Baptist Convention, and a paid officer of the Board. The Governing Board is to organize, and conduct the seminary, and manage all its educational and internal affairs. These two Boards are to seek to carry out the will of the two conventions which cooperate in their establishment and perpetuation.

To Elect These Members

We therefore ask the Convention to either elect the several members who are to represent the National Baptist Convention on these two Boards, or else clothe your Commission with authority to select them. It is our purpose to incorporate these two Boards under the laws of Teunessee, but in such a manner as to always and properly safeguard the interests of the National Baptist Convention which are entrusted to us.

Seeking Assistance

Since our enlarged program calls for more money than we hope to receive from the Seventy-five Million Program it is the purpose of your Commission to use the Secretary and other agencies, to seek contributions to this interest, but always in harmony with the plans of the Southern Haptist Convention. We ask the approval of the Convention in this undertaking.

Providing for The Future

Your Commission realizes that it may not receive sufficient funds from the Seventy-five Million Campaign to complete the purchase, or establishment of the seminary. We also know that we shall need it assist in the maintenance of the seminary for some time to come. We ask, therefore, that in any plans which the Convention shall make for the future, they continue to finance this Commission as they have done. We ask that in whatever plans we may project for the work of the Convention after the Seventy-five Million Campaign while we are completing the establishment of it, and then that sufficient funds be provided for our part of the running expenses of the seminary until such time as the National Baptist Convention shall be able to cate for all its expenses. So in whatever plans we shall make as a Covention, we ask that the present fifty thousand ($50,000) dollars a year be appropriated to the interests of the Negro Theological Seminary.

Enlarged Sphere of Service

We believe it is possible for your Commission, through its Sectuary, to render a wider service in connection with his work for the semiliary. He has favored with both the white people, and is sell received among the Colored people. There is a wide field for help ful service in cultivating kindly relations and more fraternal feeling between the white and Colored people, by his service among all the people. Our Colored brethren have often expressed themselves as desiring that he might be permitted to render service in this regard We suggest to the Convention that there is here a possible field of service to the cause of Christ that we ought not to neglect.

Addendum

We call special attention to the following questions now facing your Commission:

1. That full authority be given to join with the Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention in becoming responsible jointly for the salary and expense account of Secretary Hailey, on a basis mutually acceptable and definitely agreed upon. His retention on full time service.

 Such plans should be made for receiving and handling the money that the two Commissions may agree upon a common treasury, both using the same man.

3. That a re-affirmation of the part the National Baptist Convention assumes in the establishment and maintenance of the seminary. The ratio already agreed upon of one to two, is fully satisfactory.

4. That the Executive Committee be composed of local brethren together with Dr. Mullins, Dr. L. K. Williams, and C. H. Parrish, as non-resident members. In a word we ask the Convention to clothe your Commission with plenary powers, so that the Southern Baptist Commission, having like authority from the Southern Baptist Convention, will become an autonomous body within the zone of our service.

Mail and telegrams called by Secretary. Dr. L. G. Jordan was elected Historian unanimously. The Board was empowered to recommend a salary subject to confirmation by the body. Dr. Parrish and the World's Alliance Commission submitted a formal report of their doings as follows:

A DECLARATION OF THE BAPTIST WORLD ALLIANCE TO THE BAPTIST BROTHERHOOD, TO OTHER CHRISTIAN BRETHREN, AND TO THE WORLD

Stockholm, Sweden, July, 1923.

The Third Baptist World Congress meeting in Stockholm, Sweden, July, 1923, and representing with few exceptions the Baptists of every country in the world, a constituency numbering nine millions of baptized members, and many millions of adherents in view of world conditions, and resolutely facing the problems of future makes this declaration of Baptist principles and purposes to the Christians and peoples of the world.

We are, first and always, Christians, acknowledging in its deepest and broadest sense the Lordship of Jesus Christ, and devoted to Him as the Son of God and Saviour of the World. We rejoice that the Spiritual unity of all believers is a blessed reality, not dependent upon organization or ceremonies. We pray that by increasing obedience to Christ's will, this unity may be deepened and strengthened among Christians of every name.

The Leadership of Jesus Christ.

There are various ways of stating the fundamental Raptist principle, if we indicate the source of our knowledge, we say the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments are divinely inspired and are our sufficient, certain and authoritative guide in all matters of faith and practice. As to the nature of the Christian religion, we affirm that it is personal and spiritual. We believe in the direct relation of each individual to God, and the right of every one to choose for himself in all matters of faith. A Christian elligion begins in the soul when personal faith is exercised in Jeans Christ, the divine Redeemer and Lord. As the Revealer of God to men and the Mediator of salvated, Jeans Christ is central for Christian faith. His will is the supreme law for the Christian. He is Lord of the conscience of the individual and of the church. Hence, the Lordship of Jeans Christ is a cardial teaching of Baptists. It excludes all merely human authorities in religion.

The Nature of Baptist Unity

We desire to impress upon our Baptist brethren in every part of the world the importance of Baptist unity at the present time. Accepting the voluntary principle in religion and regarding the nature of Christianity as a spiritual relation between man and God, we heritably take the same attitude on questions of taith and conduct as they arise within the church. We hold fast to the treedom with which Christ has set us free, and this principle implies that we must willing to love and to work with those who, agreeing with us on the main things and in loyalty to our distinctive Baptist principles have their own personal convictions upon nonessentials. All Baptist organizations are furned on the voluntary principle. None of these possess anthority over any other. All enjoy equal rights and autonomy within the limits of their own purposes.

Christian Unity

Baptists have ever held all who bave communion with God in our Lord Jesus Christ as our Christian brothren in the work of the Lord and heirs with them of eternal life. We have their fellowally, and maintain that the spiritual union does not depend upon organization forms or ritual. It is deeper, higher, broader and more stable that any or all externals. All who truly are joined to Christ are our brothren in the common salvation, whether they be in the Cutholic communion, or in a Protestant communion, or in any other communion, or in no communion. Baptists with all evangelical Christian, rejoice in the common basic beliefs: the incurnation of the San of God. His shitess life, His supernatural works. His Deity, His vlearious atonement, and resurrection from the dead, His present reign and His coming kingdom, with its eternal awards to the righteous and in righteous.

To Baptists it is entirely clear that the direct relation of the soul to God, or the universal priesthood of believers, is the basis of the New Testament teaching as to the church and the ministry. Christian unity, therefore, as Baptists understand the Gow Testament, is a result of the operation of the Holy Spirit arising from a common tall in Christ, enlightened by a common understanding of His teaching, inspired by a common vision of the ends of the Kingdom of God, and issuing in a free and voluntary co-operation in the execution of the will of Christ. Christian unity is thus a flexible principle, adapting fiself to every situation. It admits co-operation so far as there is agreement, and abstains from all coercion beyond this point.

The implications of the voluntary principle based upon the ariversal priesthood of believers in their bearing upon Christian unity are clear. Baptists cannot consent to any form of union which impairs the rights of the individual believer. We cannot unite with others in any centralized ecclesiastical organization wielding power over the individual conscience. We cannot accept the sacerdotal conception of the ministry which involves the priesthood of a class with special powers for transmitting grace. We cannot accept the conception of ordination made valid through a historic succession in the ministry. A Baptist understands the New Testament, all believers being priests unto God, the ministry can possess no sacerdotal powers. They are called to special tasks of preaching and teaching and administration. They remain the spiritual equals of other believers in the church. Again, the principle of the universal priesthood of believers involves the direct authority of Jesus Christ our great High Priest. Christian unity, therefore, can only come through obedience to the will of Christ as revealed in the New Testament, which Baptists must ever take as their soic, sufficient, certain and authoritative guide.

The Baptist Faith and Mission

As Baptists view it, the Christian religion finds its central truth in the incarnation of God in Jesus Christ, whose sinless life and heavenly wisdem, whose Deity, atoning death, resurrection from the deaft, and whose second coming and lordship in the Kingdom of God constitute and quality Him for His work as its Founder and Mediator. God calls all men to salvation through Him, in whom they are freely justified by grace through faith, and regenerated by the operation of the Holy Spirit. Regeneration, or the new birth, is a necessary condition of church membership, since in this way alone can the churches be kept spiritual and responsive to the will of Christ. Church membership of helicrors only is a fundamental Baptist principle. Each church as made up of the regenerate is competent to conduct its own affairs. It is, therefore, by its nature and constitution, a spiritual democracy, free and self-governing, and answering to Christ alone as its utilimate authority.

The New Testament recognizes nothing as baptism but the immersion in water of the believer in Christ upon profession of faith. In the Lard's Supper it recognizes no saccrated authority in those who administer it, and no sacramental quality in the bread and wine, by virtue of which it conveys grace through any change in the elements.

In the matter of the polity, the officers, and the ordinances of a church. Baptists seek to preserve the spirituality and simplicity of the New Testament and at the same time the proper proportion of emphasis. A group of great spiritual principles underlies their conceptions of a church at all points. As a self-governing spiritual democracy, a church recognizes the spiritual competency and freedom of the ladividual membera. Since it requires a personal profession of faith as a condition of haptism, it climbates the proxy element in laith and respects the rights of personality. Hence, infant baptism is unterly irreconcilable with the ideal of a spiritual principle of the New Testament.

The officers of a church are teachers and leaders, not ceelesiastical mulnifities. Thus at all points a church of Christ is the outward expression of great spiritual principles; the supreme value of personality, the inalienable rights of free choice and of direct access to God, the equality of all believers, and their common spiritual priesthood. No charge, therefore, can be more groundless than that Baptists are core monfallets or gacramentalists. They are the exact opposite of these things.

In harmony with the above principles. Baptists conceive their mission to the world to be moral and spiritual. Primarily, their duty us to make known the will of Christ and secure the willing submissions men to Him, as set forth in the gospel of the grace of God Evangelization and missions thus become prime factors in the pregram of Baptists. The command of Christ to preach the gospel to every creature is of permanent binding force. The necessity for education philanthropy and civic and social righteousness in manifold forms arise inevitably out of evangelizing and missionary activity.

Religious Liberty and its Applications

Baptists from the beginning of their history have been the arises champions of religious liberty. They have often been persecuted, but they could never persecute others, save in defiance of their own prioriples. Religious liberty is an inherent and Inalienable human right arises out of the direct relation of the soul to God. Man is constituted in God's image. He is a free personality. Moral responsibility is based upon this freedom. This is a fundamental axiom of chics a well as of religion.

Religious liberty, in its broadest significance, implies the following elements: First, no human authority of any kind, in society at large, in church or state, has any right to repress or hinder or thust any man or group of men in the exercise of religious belief or worsh Second, the right of every man and group of men to complete treedom in the search for, the worship of, and obedience to God. Third, freedom to teach and preach those beliefs and truths which men may hold as committed to them from God to be made known to others.

Religious liberty is inconsistent with any union of church and state, because the church rests upon the apiritual principle of free choice while the state rests upon law with an ultimate appeal to physical force. It is inconsistent with special favor by the state to wards one or more religious groups and toleration towards obers, because equality of privilege is a fundamental and inalienable religious right of all men. It is inconsistent with priestly and episcopil authority and infant baptism, because free choice and voluntary obecause to Christ are essential to the Christian religion.

Thus Baptists stand for the rights of the individual varus the close ecclesiastical corporation, the direct relation of the soul IO God versus the indirect, free grace versus sacramental grace, belistari baptism versus infant baptism, personal versus proxy faith, the priest hood of all believers versus the priesthood of a class, democracy in the church versus autocracy or oligarchy or other forms of human authority. Religious liberty is not license, it gives no right to the indulgence of lust or sin in any form. It confers no exemption from the authority of the state in its own sphere. It implies and requires loyalty to Christ on the part of every Contian. For non-Christians it implies responsibility to God religious beliefs and freedom from all coercion in matters of religious opinion. Baptists have ever insisted upon religious freedom for abbelievers and atheists, as well as Christians. However deplotable their unbelief, they are responsible, not to human authorities but

Religion and Ethica

Our religion is not only for the salvation of the individual, it is also ethical and social. The new life in Christ creates a new moral character and a new sense of social responsibility. The Christian ideal is God's Kingdom. He is to reign in all realms of life. His will is to rule in the family, in the church, in industry, in society, in the ats, in the state, and in international relations.

Family Life

Family life of high quality is tundamental to all human progress. Here especially should personality, its needs, its discipline and development, control. Here Christ's law of mutual love and service should rule. Children are free personalities to be reared in the nurture and, admonition of the Lord. The will is not to be broken, but disciplined and trained. The home should be a living fountain of religious life, where prayer and the study of the Scriptures should not be shifted to the school or any other agency. Divorce is one of the greatest evils of the day in many parts of the world. The duty of all Christians overywhere is to resist this evil. Christ's teaching on the subject should be respected and every proper means employed to resist and correct the tendency to divorce. The sacredness of the marriage vow, and the purity of home life should be safe-guarded in all possible ways.

Christianity and Social Questions

There is widely apparent in the churches today the growth of a new conscience in retailon to social problems and a new quest for the will of God in modern society. We are realizing afresh that the surpose of Christianity is the purification of the entire life of humanily, its end a community truly and completely Christian. The noble and self-sacrificing work of caring for the social wreckage of our time, the poverty stricken and the outcast, must not cease. But our duty does not end there. Not simply by doing an honest day's work, or by cultivating relations or hrotherhood with one's fellow workers, important as these are, can the Christian obligation be fully met. We must strive also to the end that the organization of society itself shall accord with Christ's will, as well as that one's calling within society shall he conformable thereto.

Baptists gladly recognize the Christian duty of applying the teaching and spirit of our Lord to social, industrial and family relations, while not committed to any of the varied and conflicting theories of economics, we affirm the Christian conception of industrial relations to be cooperation rather than competition. Life is a stewardship held for the enrishment of all, and not simply for personal gain.

We stand for world peace through international courts of justice. Industrial peace through obedience, to the rule of Christ, "Do unto others as ye would they should do unto you." domestic peace by acceptance of the sanctity of the marriage hand and the parental rejusibility to train children in the nurture and love of the Lord.

Christian Stewardship

Christian stewardship rests upon the toundation of Gods onto ship of ourselves and our possessions. "Ye are not your own in have been bought with a price," is the divine declaration. All web is to be held in trust as God's gift. It is to be used as He command The right of private ownership of property by the Christian does to mean the right to do as he wills with his own, but rather as Cod will The mere assumulation of wealth is not the alm of the Christian him ness man, but rather the use of wealth in the service of God as men. Under the old dispensation the Jews gave at least one lead of their income to the service of God. Christians are not under in but under the gospel. But surely their obligation requires gides upon a scale equal to that of Jews. One tenth, however, does not a haust the Christian's obligation. All that he has belongs to God at his giving should be in proportion to the needs and requirements the Lord's work and his own ability whether it he one-tenth or also tenths or even more of his income,

The Sabbath

We recognize and re-affirm with vigor the sancity of the Sabbuth all work except works of necessity and increy should be ardied of the Sabbath day. God has appointed one day in seven as a day of reand worship and it should be observed by all men in accordance with the Divine command. We condemn as unchristian the commercialistion of the Sabbath day in the interest of business or amusement dany kind. As a civil institution, one day in seven, observed as a day rest, has proved to be in the highest degree promotive of human sefare. The religious observance of the Sabbath as a day of worth is a matter for tree and valuntary action. Laws to compel such observances are opposed to religious liberty. But laws to protect in Sabbath as a civil institution are right and should be enforced.

We record our conviction that the modern movement to each task in strong drink for heverage purposes is of God. We believe the governments should recognize the movement, and that instead of kning support from it through taxation, should aboilsh this traffic.

Baptists and Loyalty to State

Baptists have always been a loyal and patriotic people. In attitude arises out of their fundamental principles. It is necessal result of their submission to the will of God as revealed in less Christ. It is seen clearly in the light of their view of the state asia to the church. Baptists believe that the state is ordained of God. It established to restrain and punish the evil doer and for the profest of human right. It is, therefore, essential to human welfare it not to be used in the interest of any group or class, but to prome the common good. Its duty is to safeguard the personal, economicity and religious rights of all.

It thus appears that the work of the church and the work of state lies in different spheres. In the one case it is a spill the other a political task. There is no antagonism, and there he no conflict. Each should freely pursue its own tasks in its partment of life by its own means and methods. Neither slot to thwarf or hunder the other. The members of the church shey the laws of the state as loyal citizens or subjects. The state should protect the right of all men of various religious heliefs. The spreme layalty of all men is to God. Disobedience to the state, therefore, is never justified except when the state usurps the place of God in tylog to compel the conscience in religious matters, or when it hecomes a transgressor of the law of God in requiring what is violation of Divine commands.

International Relations

Nations are morally bound to each other. The state like the individual must be regarded as a member of a larger community in which other members possess rights similiar to its own. This implies hat in ab orderly world there can be no real conflict of interests between various governments. Secret selfish diplomacy and intrigue are crying sins before God. National selfishuress is a terrible evil.

We record our profound conviction against war. It is destructive of all economic, moval and spiritual values. A war of aggression is a direct contradiction of every principle of the gospel of Christ, it violates the ideals of peace and brotherhood and is inconsistent with the law of tove. It alterates hate and dries up the fountains of sympathy. It sets power above right. It creates bardonsome debts. It is modified in its waste of life.

The true remedy for war is the gospel of Jesus Christ. The new birth by God's Spirit creates Divine love within the soul of the individual. The law of God is thus written upon the heart. [The greatest need of the world is acceptance of the Lordship of Christ, by men everywhere, and practical co-operation of His law of love.

We favor en-operation among the nations of the world to promote peace. No nation can live an isolated life. To attempt to do so institution of the many forms. The good of all is the good on each and the good of each is the good of all. Christ's law of service is the key to all human progress. Nations as well as individuals are bound by that law. By obedience to it shall we hasten the complete realization of Gol's will among men and the fulfillment of the ideals of the great prayer which the Master taught us to pray: "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth as in Heaven."

We believe that the world has come to a parting of the ways. It is another coming of the Son of Man. It is another Day of the Lord, Tanother coming of the Son of Man. It is another Day of the Lord, Tanother and goodness and faith, or whether it will go down into septicism and ruin. We believe that the simple message of the Baptists, with its minor of gospel ethics, of faith and practice, with its note of freedom, democracy, spirituality and gospel, will find an answering chord in this new world.

Resolution on International Peace Adapted at the Third Congress of the Baptist World Alliance

Meeting in Stockholm, July, 1923

1. The members of the Baptist World Alliance meeting in Stockholm, recognize with thankfulness that there are many signs of hope on the far horizon in spite of the fact that the war spirit is still at work among the nations. The sense of the horrors and wickedness of war has hurnt itself deeply into the hearts and conscience of all members of our churches.

2. The Congress arges the members of all Churches throughout the world to pray for peace, to counterwork everything that is likely to provoke Governments to act against each other, to foster kindly and just indements upon each other; to cleause the educational books of all nations of all racial and national antagonisms especially in their writings of history; and to kindle admiration for the leaders who devoted themselves to the deliverance of the oppressed, the bealing of the diseased, and the service of all. Further, the Congress belieres that the cause of Peace would be furthered by international Church Conferences and the meeting together of Christian people of different nationalities in the interests of brotherhood and good will.

2. The Congress cornectly desires that all the nations should be brought into co-operative effort to secure peace through a representalive Tribunal or Court for the Settlement of International quarrels.

4. This Congress, representing millions of citizens and belonging to different Governments, appeals to the Governments of the world to make the maintenance of peace their first aim, for the sake of each nation and people, and for the sake of the happiness and wellbeing of mankind.

Two Messages to the Congress From President Warren G. Harding

Dear Dr. Abernathy:

I should be glad if you will convey the greetings of a fellow-Baptist and to express for me the hope that we shall have throughout the world a continued growth in that religious devotion which makes a oner brotherhood of man in a conscientious worship of God. I behere with all my heart that nothing is more needed in the world today than the practical application of the spirit of Christ,

Very truly yours, WARREN G. HARDING.

From Mr. Lloyd George

Dear Dr. Shakespeare:

Please convey my warm greetings to my fellow Baptists gathered in Stockholm for the Third World Congress. I trust that their deliberations may promote the cause of peace among the nations so that they may see in time the rocks upon which civilization is being driven May a new faith and determination enable them to face the problems of the future.

Yours sincerely,

D. LLOYD GEORGE

The official declaration of the Aliance was read by Dr. E. Arlington Wilson, Texas. The King's program was presented to President L. K. Williams by the Commission and the ontline program. Members of the Commission were presented. Dr. J. H. Henderson, Tenn., Mr. J. E. Giving, Ky.: Asst. Secretary, Dr. E. A. Wilson, Texas. Dr. J. W. Bailey, Texas., made remarks that inspired us and made in glad that we were members of the one great National Baptist Convention.

Editor Crenshaw was re-elected to edit the "Voice." The report of the Commission was adopted and the commissioners extended a Social Service Commission reported through Rev. S. G. Lamplin $D_{\bullet}C$. The report was instructive and shows the helpful service that can be rendered through this new Commission. Referred as follows:

FIRST ANNUAL REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE SECRETARY OF THE NATIONAL PUBLIC SERVICE BOARD OF THE

NATIONAL BAPTIST CONVENTION

Mr. President. Members of the Convention, Ladies and Gentlemen: The keen sight and clear vision of the forward-looking men of this Convention, under the wise leadership of that eagle-eyed prophet, the sainted Dr. E. C. Morris, saw the great need of a sentinel with asthority from this Convention to stay in the watch tower every day in the year in the interest of the people in general, but our group and denomination in particular - a man who would be the official eyes. cars and month of the Convention when it was not in session. The late lamented President Morris was sagactous enough to appoint a commission at the 40th Annual Session of the Convention, held Chicago, Dl., Sept. 6-11, 1921, with our distinguished president, Dr. L. K. Williams, chairman, and Dr. Sutton Griggs, of Texas, secretar, The Commission was instructed to investigate and report on the vervice and other conditions existing between the white and the people of this country, with a view to improving the same. careful and prayerful deliberation the Commission report findings. They reviewed the general condition of the people of country and recommended as a remedy the establisment National Public Service Board with headquarters in Cuicag. Their report was adopted by the Convention. It was upon the and by the authority of this Convention that President our 42ml Annual Session, held in St. Louis, Mo., from December 6 to December 11, 1922, appointed the following Public Fer Road and recommended that the headquarters be removed from the party Washington, D. D.

Rev. George O. Bullock, D.D.; Rev. William D. Jarvis, D.D.; Rev. Aquilla Sayles, D.D.; Rev. W. H. Jernigan, D.D.; Rev. M. W. D. Norman, D.D.; Rev. George W. Brent, D.D.; Rev. S. Geriah Lamkins, D.D., and Brother John W. Lewis and Brother Lawrence Murray, all of Washington, D.C., and the Rev. Dr. Green, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Baltimore, Md. Dr. M. W. D. Norman was appointed superintendent and Rev. S. Geriah Lamkins was appointed executive secretary. The above appointments and recommendations of the president were unanimously adopted by the Convention at St. Louis. Mo. December 11, 1922. The Public Service Board met in the officers' from of the Metropolitan Daptist Church, Dr. M. W. D. Norman, pastor, through the courtesy of the pastor and trustee board of the church, and organized by electing Dr. William D. Jarvis chairman of the board; Dr. George O. Hullock, secretary, and Brother John W. Lewis, treasurer. In view of the fact that the board did not receive any instructions as to their duties, and owing to the fact that they could not or did not get together or agree to their respective duties as a hoard, the board, as such, did not do anything except to meet several times and appoint two or three committees.

The executive secretary did not feel that because the board, as such did not do onlything, that he ought to remain passive. I have the board and the pleasure, therefore, to submit the following report touching my activities as executive secretary since the last meeting of our Convention, held in St. Louis, Mo., December, 1922.

I visited Chicago, III., in company with Dr. Norman, at the call of Dr. Williams, President of this Convention, February 6, 1923. The object of the meeting was to try to agree upon an organic working basis between the National Baptist Convention, the American Baptist Home Mission Society, and the Northern Baptist Convention. gathered during my short stay in Chicago on that occasion a great deal of valuable information hearing upon the work of my office, by short interviews with the President of the Convention and others attending the meeting, as well as from some of the splendid speeches that were made during the conference. It is not my intention to report the proceedings of that meeting. That will be done, perhaps. y another whose duty it may be to make such agreport. I attended splendid meeting in New York City on the 23d of last February on the social service relations existing between the white and Colored people of some of the Northern and Western States, where many of our people have migrated in large numbers. The meeting was held in the Russell Sage Foundation building, 105 East 22d Street, New lork, under the auspices of the Research Department of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. The following religious podies were represented: Baptists, Congregationalists, Disciples of Christ, Methodist Episcopal, Protestant Episcopal, Presbyterian, and Reform Church in the United States. The proceedings were participated in by the Travelers' Aid and other organizations of the North and West engaged in social service and uplift work, generally.

Leaders of eighteen Northern cities, of eight States and the Disnct of Columbia, both white and Colored, men and women, took part in all of the proceedings. After a full and free discussion in an all-day meeting, recommendations were adopted and urged especially or the several states where a great many men and women of our group are migrating. There are no authoritative figures as to the exact number of our people who have left the Southern States and gone North and West since our last annual session but there has been many thousands of them who have left the Southern Sist and gone North and West seeking to better their condition financials and otherwise.

I had the pleasure of attending the pessions of the National Lau vention of Social Workers, held in Washington, Il C. for ten day, commencing May 21, 1923. It is estimated that more than 5,000 development of Social Workers, held in washington, it is estimated that more than 5,000 development of the convention, representing every State in the Union. The late President Harding stood for more than two hours shaking hands with the delegates of the convention as they passed beforehim. Group meetings of the convention where held in every section of the city in most of the large churches, theaters, Continental Memorial Hall, and other large auditoriants. It is safe to say that every point bearing upon social service work was discussed by the most expensional service workers in the United States. Time and space both forbid me to undertake to report in detail upon the deliberations of the convention.

It was the consensus of opinion of the leading delegates of all the meetings attended by me that there should be formed as rapidly as possible interracial committees in every community, for the purpose of working for the improvement and a better understanding believes the races where our people dwell in large numbers. It was also urged that the Travelers' Aid at rallroad stations, the housing conditions, and the employment of our people under the best environments should be zealously and faithfully looked after by such committees, and that the churches, both white and Colored, have a special responsibility in the prosecution of the good work.

The economic side of the life of our racial group that has been at long neglected is now being developed at a rapid pace. The true and solid progress of any people is determined very largely by their economic development. The strict immigration laws, which make? very difficult for the foreigner to land in America now, compared to what it was years ago, and the migration of our people in large numbers to the North and West, where they have better homing conditions and receive much larger wages contribute very materially to the improvement of our economic condition.

I desire in this connection to call attention to the far-reaching inportance of the educational bill to be presented to the next Congress The purpose of this measure will be to create a Department of Education in connection with the Federal Government, with a secretary in the President's cabinet, and the authorization of Federal Aid for the public schools of the country. All such funds are to be administered and controlled by the individual states according to their own laws. These appropriations are to be used by the states to combat illiteracy, for the Americanization of the foreign born, for physical education, for instruction in health and sanitation, for teacher training and for aid to the public elementary and accordary schools, especially in rural districts. Adequate funds are to be appropriated to such the Department of Education to carry on its work effectively, and will be provided in the bill that 15 per cent of such appropriations shall be devoted to training of teachers, 20 per cent for physical cation, health and sunitation, 71/2 per cent to the Americanizato foreigners, and an equal amount for the removal of illiteracy, and b per cent for the promotion of general education, especially rural cation. The equalization of educational opportunities, and the the payment of teachers' salaries. These are the provisions of the bill as at present drawn, but they are subject to modification or change to the committee room and on the floor of Congress. The Department of Education has been endorsed by the National Educational Association, the largest and most representative organization of educators in the country; General Federation of Women's Clubs; Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers Associations, Woman's Relief Corps, International Sunday School Council of Religious Education; Supreme Council of Scottish Rite of Free Masonry, Southern Jurisdiction; American Federation of Labor; National Council of Congregational Churches, and a great many other organizations, including Boards of Education, Chamber of Commierce, Rotary Clubs, Masonic Churchical Councel of Congregation will go on record in favor of the bill.

Dean William McCormick, of St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral of this clay has very wisely pointed out that popular ignorance is even more dangerous than false education.

The movement for a Department of Education should receive the support of every organization that is interested in our common school education.

Referring to the decisions of the courts, the decision of the United States Supreme Court of February 19, 1923, in what is known as the Blaine Riot decision, is the most important decision that has been rendered affecting our group since the last meeting of our Convention I blat the information service of the research department of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America correctly sums up the decision of the court, but I will not quote the decision at length in this connection, because of the limited time allotted me on this occasion.

The court decided to overrule the judgment of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Arkansas, which decision finally resulted in the release of the men, who were confined in prison awaiting execution.

The most important legislation considered by Congress, so far as we are concerned, since the last session of our Convention, was the Dyer Antilynching Bill. It passed the lower house of Congress, but failed in the Senate. The bill had a tendency to line up all sections of our people in favor of its passage more so than any other legislafion in recent years. I called upon Senator Lodge of Massachusetts. Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois, and Senator Shortridge of Califormia, in company with a committee of the National Negro Press association, of which I have the honor to be a member, in the interest of this bill. I also visited the Honorable John T. Adams, hillman of the Republican National Committee, to urge his support for the bill We went to the White House and talked with the late resident Warren G. Harding and asked him to use all the power of is great office for the passage of the bill. All of these gentlemen apressed themselves as being in hearty accord with the object of the and promised to do all in their power to have it enacted into law. but because of a fillbuster on the part of some of the Democratic enstors, the bill failed. It will undoubtedly, however, he re-introat the opening of the next session of Congress, and I recommend that every member of this Convention do all in his power to have the nill enacted into law.

The migration of many of our people from the South to the North and West, where their votes will be counted as east, has greatly increased the political importance of our group in the United States in several of the States we now hold the balance of power. It is hoped, therefore, that the ballot will be properly used, and that the people will be made to see and understand that the Colored man can not be bought off, unde to sell his political birthright for a mess of politics, but that be will use this great privilege in the interest of his more unfortunate brother in the Southland.

The Nation has been shocked since our last meeting by the suden death of President Warren G. Harding, who died in San Francisco. California. August 2, ofter the country had been reassured by the entinent physicians who attended him that he was out of danger. It can be truly said of him, however, as it was said of Samson, that he accomplished more in his death for his people than be did in his difftime. His last atterances on brotherly love, when the whole givilized world had their attention riveted upon him because of his reported illness, was perhaps the greatest stroke for true Christianty and brotherly love that has ever been utlered by a ruler of any me tion. He based his argument upon the fatherhood of God and the protherhood of man, as declared by the Apostic Paul on Mars Hill. when he said that God who made the world and all things therein had made of one blood all nations of men to dwell upon all the face of the earth, if happily they might feel after him and find him, though he be not far from every one of us.

President Calvin Coolidge, who succeeded President Harding, has not had time yet to demonstrate fully to the country the kind of timber that he is made of. We have been led, however, because his birthplace his political and social environment, supplemented with his liberal education, to hope for at least a square deal from him. We must cease to follow blindly any political party. We must like other people: we must vote for men and measures and learn to think and act for ourselves. The time has passed for us to expect special favors at the lands of any political party. He who would be free must himself first strike the blow.

May I suggest. In closing, that I hope to see the time when the National Public Service Board of the National Raptist Convention will occupy its own offices at the capitol of the Nation, where therepresentatives of all the foreign governments of the earth may ass, as they pass the streets of Washington, a huilding lowering lowering to the beavens to represent civic truth and rightenussess and the three million and a balf of Negro Baptists in the United States of America whom we have the honor to represent.

Respectfully submitted, REV. S. G. LAMKINS,

Afternoon Session

The Convention reassembled at 2:30. The chorus sang agreed inspiring songs. Dr. A. L. Boone, Texas, presided. Prayer was of by Rev. Jas. L. Washington, of District of Columbia. "I Have a big Interest" was song by the Convention, led by the chorus. But By Rev. J. R. Jamerson, Arkansas, "Since Jesus Came Into My limits."

was sung. Dr. S. E. J. Watson, Illinois, led in prayer. "Just Think of His Goodness to You" was rendered. Atty. C. M. Robinson, Convention Attorney, submitted his annual report. The report covered lodefail the disposition of matters referred to him for his attention. Among them the bond matter for the Publishing Board, the Church Extension Board, the Renefit Board, the McGlice matter, the National Training School, etc., as follows:

Shreveport, La., August 30, 1923. Office of the Altorney of the National Baptist Convention.

To the President, Officers and Members of the National Baptist Convention of America, Greetings:

It is with much pleasure that I herewith submit to you my report for the past year in matters referred to me for attention. Before going into this report permit me to thank my brethren for the honor and I hope that I have looked after matters referred to me satisfactorily to all.

I The first matter referred to me was the completion of the proper resolutions authorizing the Building Committee and Officers of the Convention to horrow $200,000 for the building of the Publishing House. This I gave my attention, had same duly recorded in the court records at Nashville and supplied the Building Committee with copy of same

2. The next matter referred to me was the matter at Yazoo City, where money had been taken by one of the representatives of our Convention with which to build a church for that congregation. A committee, headed by Dr. Isaac and myself, went to this point, had a conference with the officers of this congregation and arranged the maller in the following manner: We gave a note for $400.00, to be paid in the month of June, 1923, and closed the balance in a note to be paid on or before two years after June of this year. We set about to raise this amount by popular subscription, as will be seen by circular marked 1 of this report. You will remember that at our board meeting, held in Memphis, we raised $102.00 to be applied on his matter. These letters did but very little good. I collected by this means $10,00, as will be seen by the letters from the brothers remitting, which are hereto attached and made part of this report. At our State Board Meeting I collected $20.00, making a total colected on this matter $139.00, the same being disbursed as follows: ET. P. U. Board for printing, $4.50; stamps and envelopes, $4.50; remitted an note, $130.00; total dishursed, $139.00, the last mentioned dem being sent by registered mail as will be seen by postoffice receipt harked No. 2 of this report. Balance due on this note is $270.00, then I hope the President will allow us to take up at this session by popular subscription.

Matters respecting the law relative to the Benefit Board was to me for an opinion by Prof. Holloway relative to the laws of the several states concerning the operation of this Board. I reduced that opinion on this matter on the 20th day of April, 1923, as will be seen from said opinion marked No. 3 of this report.

able all orneys, relative In a note of the Church Extension Board given one Mr. Holmes. I referred this matter to the President, Dr.

Williams. This matter has been taken care of as will be seen from Dr. William's letter to me marked 4-2.

5. Training School Mutter. Dr. Williams forwarded me certain papers and reports from attorneys asking that I examine them and give him an opinion on the same, as will be seen from his letter on the subject. My first reply to Dr. Williams did not quite coper the matter: he again wrote me concerning the matter, to which I replied under the date of June 11, as will be seen by copy of my letter marked — of this report, which I would like to read. Nothing further has been done in this respect so far as I know.

6. At the meeting of the Board held at Hot Springs the Board referred to me the preparation of the proper resolution, authorizing the borrowing of $250,000 with which to complete the Publishing House. This I have prepared and will present at the proper time.

As to the McGee matter: I have written him several letters asking for payment or adjustment of this claim but have never received a reply from him. I have taken no further actions against him to the reason I thought best to await your further orders in the matter

As the attorney for the Convention I have tried to safeguard every interest of the Convention, relative to its property rights, elc. and I am pleased to say that so far as I know all is well and that the Convention is fully protected in all of its property rights.

Referring to the Publishing House, I wish to say that I have in my possession a copy of the contract entered into by and between the Convention and the contractor. I also have in my possession the mortgage given by the officers of the Convention for the purpose of floating the bonds, in order to secure funds to pay for the erection of said Publishing House. Both of these instruments have been care fully gone over by me, and it is my opinion that they are O. K.

As your attorney, there is one matter that I would like to call your attention to, that in my opinion needs some correction, namely the manner of employment of members of the Board and their official relation to the Convention and boards, as directors. Under the present system the members of the boards are also employes of said board, and as you know directors of the boards would have a right to regard the all the corporate affairs of said boards, including the expenditure of money and the fixing of sailarles of the employes; therefore in my opinion, it is not the best thing, nor is it in keeping with good business methods; therefore, it is my opinion that this condition should be changed and I expect to offer resolutions at the proper time that would cure this defect.

Again thanking you all for the honor conferred upon me and hoping that I have bandled the matters referred to me to your satisfaction and for the good of the Convention.

Yours respectfully. CHAS, M. ROBINSON.

Dr. Sutton E. Griggs Succeeds to the Position of Secretary and Treafurer of the Education Board, January 1, 1923

At the St. Louis session of the National Baptist Convention I handed in my resignation to the Educational Board as its Secretary and Trensurer, after fifteen months' service, but the report covered only ten months of that time, ending July 31st, the close of the fixed year. I had collected on an average about four hundred dollars in month, counting the board paid by pastors during my institutes. This showed a great increase over all previous reports, but still not what the work required. I had to go for nearly all this money and the expense was so great that little was left for other purposes of the Board. However, in electing me to this position the Education Board had in mind the fact that as Secretary I would do a great deal of religious educational work on the field, even if I should be unable to raise large sums for an institution. The fact is that the National Baptist Theological Seminary Commission had planned that our Conrention should provide an endowment fund while the Southern Baptist Convention should provide the school, and it is hard to raise an endowment fund before we had a school. The result is we made no special effort to collect money for the school at present, but confined out educational work largely to the work I myself did on the fletd. which the report shows was considerable. At the time I wrote the report in August, I had not planned to resign, and therefore I outlived a program for the coming year. Dr. Sutton E. Griggs has succeeded me and the Chicago office is already in his charge, and he states that he will endeavor to carry out the program I had outlined. Dr. Girggs is indeed an able man, and we are all looking for a great forward movement in the work of the Education Board during this

I resigned the Education Board to take charge of the religious education work of the Sunday School Publishing Board and my head-quarters hereafter will be at the Publishing House in Nashville. Dr. Townsend is indeed a man of vision and keen husiness insight, and he saw the need of such work on the part of the Board, and he felt I was the man to push such work. I have a strenuous job ahead of me and I ask the prayers of God's people that I may make good.

Yours eincerely, S. N. VASS.

Chicago, Illinois, August 15, 1922.

To the National Baptist Convention, U. S. A .:

On behalf of the Education Board, I beg to submit to the Convention a report of our stewardship covering the ten months I have been engaged in the work as corresponding secretary and treasurer, from October 1, 1921 to July 3I, 1922.

But first of all it becomes my painful duty to chronicle the death of the secretary emeritus of the Education Board, Dr. A. R. Griggs. fough whose earnest efforts, added to those of the chairman of this oard, Dr. Sutton E. Griggs, I finally made up my mind to undertake he responsibilities of this position. Dr. A. R. Griggs was one of the ost useful as well as most distinguished men of his time, having rganized some five hundred churches, four state conventions, and el about every position of honor in the gift of his brethren up to presidency of the original National Baptist Convention, and finally honored this Education Board by becoming its corresponding elery and treasurer. He not only worked with and within his race but he also worked faithfully for his people among other races, and his conservative statesmanship will continue to bear fruit for ears to come in the better understanding and mutual co-operation the two races in the South, and in the entire country. Dr. A. R. ingge has passed on beyond, but his public spirited and race loving son is still with us as the chairman of this board, and in this position we shall share with him the priceless legacy of his heredity.

For the past ten months the total receipts of the Education Boam have been thirty-six hundred and ten dollars and lifty-four cents and the expenditures thirty-five hundred and ten dollars and fits four cents, leaving a balance of one hundred and forty-eight dollars and thirteen cents. These figures furnish us no ground to boast but they do furnish as ground for hope in the future of the board, for the receipts for these past ten months only are nearly four times as much as we collected last year, and a little over five times as much as was received from the field the year before, and one-sixth more than was reported at the Houston Convention in 1912, when the Semi mary project was making a strong appeal to our people. Moreover as a sample of the growth of interest in the financial support of the work of the board, I call special attention to the fact that the Mount Zion Baptist Church of Little Rock, Arkansas, pastored by Rev. R. M. Caver, D.D., contributed to this work, two hundred dollars in the past ten months. Also the Baptist Sunday School Union, Washington. D. C., of which Mr. James R. Moss is the worthy president contributed two hundred dollars in the same time, while the Second Baptist Church of Kansas City, Missouri, of which Dr. S. W. Bacote is paster. contributed one hundred fifty dollars. In an institute at Selma, Ala hama, one hundred sixty dellars were given us, while the Alabama Baptist State Convention is the only State Convention that contributed as much as one hundred dollars, though several churches contributed as much, as can be seen by scanning the report of contributions in detail.

But the most encouraging sign of the future of this work is the thousand dollars less thirty dollars, or nine hundred seventy dollars net, which the Negro Baptists of Chicago have contributed toward the work of this board during the past ten months, as a special induce ment to secure the location of the Education Board in Chicago. The Executive Board of our Convention voted that the headquarters of the heard be temporarily moved to Chicago, and we are at present housed in most spacious and comfortable quarters under the roof of Pilgrim Temple Baptist Church, 3301 Indiana avenue, Chicago, Ill nois. Of course this great interest in our work is not shared by all the churches in the Windy City, but such strong leaders as Dr. E. T. Martin, of the Bethesda Church, Dr. 1. A. Thomas, of the Second Church, Evanston, and Dr. S. E. J. Watson, of the Pilgrim Baptist Temple became personally responsible at the Binga State Bast in Chicago for a loan of $1,000 as a donation for our board. While the great Olivet Baptist Church, under that prince of pastors, is pledged to do its full duty in support of the Education Board. The Northern Illinois Sunday School Convention, and the Bethlehem Association are behind these men, and others will come to their rescue. All honor is due these men, especially because of their self-sacrificing support of the Convention's work, for they are also hoping to strengthen the hold of our National Baptist Convention in the great Northwest, to in the North where there has grown up some feeling that a Northern Baptist Convention ought to be organized to meet the needs of the sections outside of the South. It has been charged that nearly all the boards of our Convention are in the South, and that we are fact a Southern Baptist Convention, and co-operating only on the Southern white Baptists. To prove to the contrary, our Executive Board ordered the temporary removal to Chicago. But after our removal had been decided upon, and before we could gearcely get boused in our new quarters, a new organization was effected to cover all the states outside of the South, but the new body refused to go further than work for the establishment of a school in Chicago. Your secretary was present in the organization, and was accorded opportunity to speak, when he assured the delegates the Education Board had come North to help and not hinder, and asked to be taken into the plan of co-operation to help in any possible way. Our Board is therefore doing everything we can on the spot to help the general case of religious education in the Northwest and North as elsewhere, and the churches are open to us to come in and help to religiously elections.

During the past year, for lack of funds, and because the Convention had already definitely committed itself to co-operation with the Southern Baptist Convention in the establishment and support of the proposed Theological Seminary at Nashville, Tenn., and because the joint commission in charge of the matter had expressed itself as not bound by anything we might do in connection with this temporary school for the training of preachers; and also because it was felt that our board ought not to set the bad example to the State and districts to play at running a school, knowing from the first that we could not adequately provide for the institution; moved by such considerations and others, we decided to discontinue the temporary arrangements made at Roger Williams to conduct the Theological Seminary for the present time at least, but that instead, effort be put forth to conduct a summer school of six weeks so as not to disappoint those who desire to attend. Our hoard is under a lasting debt of gratitude to Roger Williams University, and especially to its able president, Dr. S. A. Owen, and also to Dr. S. L. McDowell, paster of the First Church of Nashville, who has given faithful and efficient service at a great sacriare as dean of the school of Theology, and to the other faithful pastors who have labored to help establish this school, such as Dr. E. W. D. Isaac, Dr. E. M. Lawrence, Dr. Williams Haynes, Dr. W. S. Ellington, and the late lamented Dr. A. D. Hurt, and others. The summer school was not all that we hoped it would be, but those who sitended expressed themselves as greatly beloed. We have decided not to report property as belonging to the board unless the title is vested in the heard in fee simple. That will greatly simplify matters, and stimulate confidence in our worth and efficiency. For instance, when the present incumbent took charge of the work, nothing whatever was turned over to him but a typewriter valued at twenty dollars, and a seal, and two account books that had been audited in 1921, showing a deficit of three hundred seventy-one dollars and sixtythree cents, which represented a balance due Rev. S. L. McDowell, and listed by him at three hundred ninety dollars. Dr. A. R. Griggs especially requested that he be allowed to settle this indebtedness nunself since he incurred it, and hence I made no effort to pay this amount. But now that Dr. Griggs has answered to the call to come up higher, we shall pay this bill as soon as we are able to do so.

In the report as audited last year, it is stated that the assets of the Education Board were then two hundred thirty-two thousand dollars, but of course the Convention no doubt knew that these figures 230 simply represented a promise to the Convention from the Southern Baptist Convention and the people of Nashville. But the two thou sand five hundred dollars property which it was claimed the Board owned in the city of Dallas, Texas, and which is certified to in the auditor's report, because he listed it as assets, we did expect to receive from our predecessor for our board, and we took up the mat ter with him in person and by correspondence, with the result that we had satisfactory evidence furnished us that this property has never been deeded to our board, but was deeded to Dr. A. R. Origes before his connection with this board as trustee to dispose of as he saw fit. He represented it as belonging to the board while be was our secretary because he at that time intended to so deed it. But when he left the position, he decided to dispose of the property personally as allowed him under the deed, and decided not to deed it to the Education Board, much to our regret. No one questions the hosesty of Dr. A. R. Griggs, but it is the full intention of the present ad ministration of the board that no such error shall ever again be made in reporting as our own property not legally held by us. While we received no property at all from our predecessor except as indicated. during the year we have fitted up a first-class office in Chicago that is a credit to our Convention, but It still lacks a first-class typewriter and adding machine, but what we have purchased is worth two hudred and forty-three dollars.

During the past year we have done some real constructive work in religious education in sections remote from each other in a dozen different states, and we have delivered addresses in still more states. There is no better work this board can do than to conduct these institutes of religious education out among the masses who are out of touch of our best schools. This work has all been personally performed by the corresponding secretary, and a large part of his time has been spent thus out on the field and away from his office. I feel that this work should continue, but the secretary ought not to be compelled to go out on the field to collect money to keep the work going. The work of the Education Board ought to be placed upon such an independent basis that the secretary will be free to go where he is most needed and not where he knows he can secure the largest contributions. But the field work in institutes is here to stay and is one activity in which the board ought always interest itself.

We have labored under many disadvantages the past ten months, in not knowing definitely what is expected of us. We therefore looked up the minutes of our Convention to see what had been done and what was intended to be done. The charter was secured in 1902 in the city of Washington, District of Columbia, and provides that it shall conduct schools, hold the property of the Convention for education legally, and also hold any other property that philanthropically inclined persons might bequeath for the general work of the U vention, and it provides that the schools established and support shall be owned, controlled and managed by Negro Baptists. It wo seem that the proposed National Baptist Theological Seminary, U.S. A., should be related from the first to the Education Board, and was it might be provided that a holding board shall be appoint a sisting of a dozen persons, two thirds of whom shall represent Southern Baptist Convention, then our own one-third members a that holding board ought to be made up of the executive committee !

the Educational Board, or the Education Board to elect the four memhers representing us from within its own membership, subject, of course, to the approval of the Convention. Again if a controlling Board is to be appointed for the school with Southern Baptists represented by enethird and our own Convention by a two-thirds vote, then our own Educational Board should constitute our Convention's two thirds nembership, thus requiring a total membership of something like seventy-five members on the controlling board, which would be all right as the controlling hoard has not been yet limited in number. Indeed. unless the Convention has already finally passed on the matter, even the holding hoard could have the same membership coming from citbin our own Education Board perhaps. At any rate, it is evident the Convention intended from the beginning that the Education Board should function in all its educational work, and to proceed otherwise is to weaken our own work and undermine the usefulness of the -Education Hoard.

There is indeed a wide place of usefulness for the Education Board. but it can not fill its mission as long as its secretary has to take to the road to secure running expenses. In some way or other this board ought to be adequately financed, for even if it is desired that it should serve as a mere collecting agency for educational institutions, the secretary could not render the best service even then unless he is furnished sufficient money to organize the effort. But to use this heard as a mere collection agency would never prove a profitable investment by reason of the wide territory involved and the competition with states and districts. We cannot ignore the state and district schools, nor can we control their work, nor take from them their support. The legitimate work of this board is co-operation with these school efforts, and to render them whatever help in our power, and thus secure their favorable consideration, and co-operation. This must be secured in the good old Baptist way only, and that is of their own free will, and they will never will it until we appeal to their self interest. They will never regard us as helping them as long as we help one school at the expense of the other. That is one of the strongest reasons why we felt we had better discontinue the present arrangement with Roger Williams, because of the dissatisfaction of other interested states and schools. We are after belging and not competing with our existing schools. We should be in a position to have our secretary visit all the leading colleges and high schools to deliver feetures on religious education, and to come in close touch with aspiring young men who may be fuclined toward the ministry and mission work, to encourage them and help them in any way possible, and try to enlist others in active Christian service. This work that we ought to do is now being largely done by the Y. M. C. A. or it is not done at all, and we certainly ought to do our own work.

Again this hoard might serve the cause of religious education to promote the study of the right books on religious education in our colleges, and to secure a larger place for such work, for some of the colleges are doing but little proper work along this line, for just to study the Dible once a day is not sufficient.

The secretary of this board sent an invitation to the presidents our Nogro Baptist State Colleges and one or two others to meet a conference at Roger Williams University during the session of the summer school, and we had a fair attendance under the circomstances. We discussed many matters of vital interest, and decided to organize with the secretary of this board as president and President Curtright of Florida Baptist College as secretary, and we decided to meet again at Selma University upon the invitation of Pres. R. T. Pollard who was one of the presidents deeply interested December 6th next is the time. There is no telling what good man result from this conference. One question we will discuss is what is the minimum requirement to constitute a real Christian college or even high school. When the time comes that we understand each other better in education, and when we begin to place more emphasis upon real work, and seek to measure ourselves by the highest stand and of general education as represented by the Government itself then others who are watching our progress will take notice and will come to recognize our own Education Board in passing upon the merits of our institutions of learning, instead of referring to other who are not of our people and who know but little of our work. For instance the Negro Baptist educator finds the North organized against him so far as Baptists are concerned, when he travels North to seek help, and if he works among white people at all he has to work among those who are not Baptists, and not a part of the organization against him. Negro Baptists have greater educational needs than any other element of our varied population, and we have as much right and reason to appeal to the philanthropists of all races as any other group. and we need organization so efficient that it will in time be recognised and when it is desired to know the merits of a school, let information be sought of us as well as others, and when others see we are organ ized for business upon an efficient basis, then they will throw business ness our way.

Finally, this Education Board representing the largest group of Christians in the Negro race is really representative of the entire race in a sense different from any other denominational group, and what we do affects the race more. That means that we Baptists are more responsible for and to our own people than others. It is up to this Convention through its Education Board to seek to conserve the educational help of the public schools of this country in such a way as to make them mean the most to the cause of Christ and the moral up lift of the people. While religion as such may not be taught, all morality can be and should be taught, and there can be no effective moral teaching except by moral men and women, and moral men and women will usually connect up with the churches. The time is near at hand when more religious instruction will be given in the public schools, and there are too many of these schools composed almost wholly of Baptist young people for us not to be able to relate out religious work with the public schools. There are many ways h which this can be brought about, and this board ought to be loosed and let go to get busy on that job. Then again the United States Government itself ought to assist in the education of the Negroes who live in the South, for it is a notorious fact that Negroes are openly and flagrantly discriminated against in the appropriations for our people, and those who do it feel they are rendering the country a service. This means that it is now high time for the United States Government to come to our relief, for the people of the United States as a whole do not approve such discrimination, but are as powerless to help us as we are. The Government can help by way of approprations which are intended to bring all schools up to a certain average to apply without regard to race, thus making the legislation stand the test of the constitution. Under such legislation some few white schools would receive supplementary help but still more Negro schools. The South uses this method today against us. They usually make a ner capita appropriation of their funds, but employ only a very small proportion of the funds in this way, leaving the great bulk of the money to be used to supplement the appropriation of such schools as would not be able to maintain a certain standard without it, and is that way they hand out nearly all the money to the white people. Nothing in this plan conflicts with the constitution, and hence if they can thus evade the constitution, Congress can pass a law that will stand the test, and if they see they can do so, I have no doubt in the end they will gladly do so, and many of the Southern representatives will join them in passing it, for the South tells us today that they are not able to do better by us, and no doubt would in most cases welcome Congressional aid. This is a most worthy cause that this board could help, and ought to help, and it is our purpose to start about this work at once, but how little we can do along this line as long as we have to take the road to get running expenses!

Again race co-operation and comity will seek educational expression more and more, and the solution of the race problem will come along educational lines, and our future as a people is involved in our education as a people. It is educational help that has done the most to make us the people we are today, and the North has materially helped us and placed us under lasting obligation, but they now think they ought to quit, and leave the future to ourselves and the Southern white people. The reason why the South has not undertaken more was because they realized it a problem of education, and they did not have the money, but they are now getting to the place where they can and will help. The lessened help that has come to us along educational lines from without the race in recent years is keenly felt, and it is here the race needs help and needs it badly. And it is here we night to concentrate our efforts more and more, and bring our people up to the support of their own schools. Formerly it was home mission work in the sense of organizing churches and Sunday schools that most appealed to the far-seeing, but now what we need is education of the right kind, and the most enduring home mission work is educational work, and a part at least of home mission money ought to go for religious education, and that is why the Home Board of the Southern Baptist Convention is expected to help maintain our Theological Seminary.

In view of all these considerations, the time has come for this Convention to take action that will put this board upon such a basis that it will be free to render the denomination the service so badly needed at this time. Since the Convention itself is now incorporated, let the Convention itself assume the entire expense of administration of the Education Board. Or if that plan is not approved, then let one or more of the strangest of our loards pro rate the expense between sen. President Morris expressed that as his purpose in baving the Educational Board located at Nashville, where the two boards could not be a first interposable for the Education Board to render such help to these two boards, and perhaps to the Foreign Mission Board as well that they would feel they were wisely using their funds in such way? We simply throw out those suggestions. But we feel that not the Convention itself gets behind this board it will fail to do what it might and ought. We suggest the establishment of an Educational Day to raise money for education, and the second Sunday in June, which is usually called Children's Day could be merged with this day through a proper understanding with the Publishing Board, and the money from that day applied to the cause of religious education since that board has a source of stated infome from the sale of literature to our schools. The original idea of Children's Day was to raise money for religious education, and there should either be established such relation between these two boards as would guarantee the expenses for the Education Board, or some rearrangement ought to be made in the matter of Children's Day. One thing is certain and that is we are really neglecting the most important of all our Boards steed from the home field standpoint. If we have done so well without sequete support, what could we not do it only properly financed and cared for?

In conclusion I call attention to the fact that we have traveled in the interest of the board twenty-seven thousand six hundred and twenty-six miles in the past fen months, visited one hundred and pinteen churches, attended twenty-one conventions, preached fifty-two sermons, delivered two hundred and sixty-nine addresses and seest eighty-eight days in strict institute work, addressing thirty Sunday schools, lifteen Young People's Societies, and visiting eleven colleges. This is not a little work when it is known that one man did nearly all of it. Our board elected a field secretary with the understanding he was to devote his cutire time to the work, but he only gave a part of three months and left the work to accept a church, and he is now the pastor of Pilgrim Baptist Church, Saint Paul, Minnesota, Since this report was audited showing total receipts of Rev. L. W. Harris. as field secretary, to total one hundred seventy-live dollars and tea cents, he has sent me a report of a special trip be made at my request in March, receiving on the trip $60.00, thus making his total collections to July 31, amount to two hundred forty-one dollars and ten cents. Our hoard also engaged the services of Mrs. B. A. Beally, of Alexandria, La., a most talented speaker, to represent us on the field, and we indulged high expectations of the results. But she was hardly able to make a start in the work before her mother's extreme Bluess made it necessary to give up all the work of her hands and go at once to her bedside to comfort and help her, but she collected one hundred and fourteen dollars and sixty-seven cents during the seventeen days of active service. The Board has realized but little help from these two workers, but fortunately we wisely arranged to keep from involving the board in further debt.

Since January, 1922, the Board has commissioned Mrs. Edna E. Vass, the wife of the corresponding secretary, to do field work among the women in connection with the institute work of the secretary, and she has traveled with him and labored by his side when an helping is the office. The reason why so little is paid out for office work is because Mrs. Vass has helped. Thus far the board has an been able to compensate Mrs. Vass, but her traveling expense are included with those of the secretary, and she has kindly agreed to donate to the heard her salary up to July 31. Thus while the traveling expense for the secretary is somewhat increased, we close the year without indebtedness except four hundred and sixteen dollars and sixty cents incurred the past ten months, and three hundred and ninety delications.

lars previously owed by the board to Rev. S. L. McDowell, asking a total indebtedness of eight hundred and six dollars.

Before closing this report I wish to call attention to the fact that in all cases where the secretary conducts an institute the pastor arranges to entertain him and his wife free of charge and thus the board is saved that expense. It is only when the secretary goes to conventions and on other work for the board that he is called upon to pay expenses except for meals on the road. If the entire amount thus paid for hoard by the pastors should be added to receipts it would show receipts for at least four thousand dollars the past year.

With faith in the future of this Board and hope that the Convention will at this session make provision to adequately finance this needy work, we submit a minimum budget necessary to carry out the program we have here outlined.

Suggested Operating Yearly Budget.

For Printing and Stationery and Postage 300.00
For salaries of Corresponding Secretary and Field Secretary 5,000.00
On purchase of a huilding for office and general headquarters for the National Baptist Work in Chicago 1,000.00
For Secretary in charge of office work

Total $7,500.00 If the Convention will guarantee this hudget for each year the Education Board will soon be able to get on its feet, and we will be able to come into possession of a building in Chicago suitable to house the work of the board and also to accommodate the general officers and boards of the Convention when in that city. We will be able to make a first payment on the building and yearly payments afterward out of this budget. It is time for us to arise and do our work upon a business hasis and undertake great things for God expecting great things from him. If this budget is arranged for at this session we promise great results by the next session of the Convention.

In conclusion, the Education Roard desires to return thanks to the Convention and those it represents for the confidence reposed in the past, and we especially desire to return sincers thanks to the pastors and leaders in all parts of the United States that have made openings for the institutes of religious education as conducted by the Corresponding Secretary and his wife, and we urge upon the churches and Sunday schools and young people's societies and the missionary societies in the churches to co-operate with the pastors to have these institutes the coming year in all parts of the territory of the Convention. While the churches thus help the work of the Board we will also help the work of the churches.

Respectfully submitted for the Education Board,

S. N. VASS,

Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer.

The principal speaker of the occasion, Rev. J. D. Bushell, D.D., New York, spoke from the subject: "Keeping Our Dead Alive." "For I know that my Redeemer liveth," "We have a building of God, a house not made with hands," and "I am the resurrection and the life," were the Scriptures quoted as the basis of the address which was eminently fitting and inspiring. He spoke in part thus: "Our dead are kept alive by keeping in contact with the giver of life. Jesus Christ had an absolute nature. Man's contact with Christ makes eternal life a possibility and a reality. Death in its real sense is life. It is the putting off of a coat, the laying aside of a mantle, the moving out of a house. There would be no such thing as keeping our dead alive, unless Jesus Christ had lived."

"It is Well With My Soul" was sung by the congregation. After singing "In the City." Rev. A. J. Stokes, D.D., closed the Memorial Service with a fitting admonition to ministers.

Rev. W. H. Griffith, D.D., of the Local Committee, announced the Sunday preaching appointments. Mail was announced. Dr. Griggs made an announcement. Dr. Stokes introduced Mr. Booker T. Washington, Jr., who spoke freely out of the fullness of his heart.

Adjourned with benediction.

Evening Session

The chorus conducted song service. "Just Think of His Goodness to You" was led by Rev. Skipwith, as the opening number. After a number of selections had been excellently rendered, Rev. W. M. Taylor, presiding, announced the illness of Rev. Griffith, of Louisians. "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung as the picture of the beloved and immented Dr. E. C. Morris was flashed upon the screen. A splendid shibit of donors and doings of the building program of the Publishing Roard and B.Y.P.U. Board was shown, to the delight of a large concourse. "Just Think of His Goodness to You" was sung.

President L. K. Williams presented Rev. A. Wilbanks, D.D., Super-intendent of Evangellant, to conduct the Evangelistic Service. Dr. Wilbanks sang to the heart from the heart, "The Lend of Uncloudy Day." Rev. S. E. J. Watson, D.D., Illinois, was presented and delivered a matchless, soul-stirring, sinner-winning sermon from "What Then Shall I Do With Jesus?" He was caught up in the spirit and made a great appeal to the church and to the unsaved.

"Almost Persuaded" was sung by the chorus. Rev. Wilbanks requested all to stand and told a very descriptive story of a sinner who trified with the spirit. He led in singing the old hymn, "There's a Fountain Filled With Blood," and an opportunity was given for sinners to confoss. Thirty-three came forth declaring their intention to enter some of the local churches by experience and by baptism.

Prayer was offered by Dr. Wilbanks, expressing thanks for the great service and demonstration of the power of the gospel to save anywhere and anytime. "Shine On Me" was sung.

Morning Session.

The chorus sang, "Watting For Me," as a thrill swept through the Convention. Rev. G. L. Thornton, D.D., Alabama, led in prayer that stirred the Convention. The chorus followed with another charming selection, "I Am Going Through," Rev. D. A. Holmes, D.D., Kanssa, read Heb. 12: 1-13 for the Scripture lesson. Rev. W. M. Taylor, D.D. Louisiana, presented Rev. E. W. D. Isaac, D.D., Tennessee, to introduce the preacher of the hour.

In eloquent and fitting words Dr. Isaac paid a glowing tribute to the head of the Baptist forces under Jesus Christ, Dr. L. K. Williams, who arose to preach the Doctrinal Sermon according to the program. The speaker and hearers stood and joined with Rev. S. E. J. Watson, D.D., Illinois, in singing the marching orders of the Christian ministry: "Go preach my gospel." The speaker selected for this occasion to tell of the heavy and weighty responsibility of the office and the duty to obey the majority or depart led him to speak. "Every sermon must contain doctrine, the gospel contains doctrine, things to be believed and duties to be done, and Baptists believe some things that other people do not know God has; to depart from the Baptist church is to go hackward instead of forward," were some of the opening formarks of President Williams. He took as his text Heb. 13:8: "Jesus Christ the same today," subject, "The Christ of Today."

The preacher was lost in glory of his Lord and swung out into the mysterious and fathomiess depths of grace and brought souls in for the Master. It was a message that will live through all time and bear fruit to eternity.

Rev. J. H. Smith, D.D., Georgia, led in a very fervent prayer. Dr. S. J. Walson. Illinois, made it possible for betievers to confess. Many responded to the call for the glory of God.

An offering for aged ministers, according to custom, was taken while the charts sang "Just Over in the Glory Land" and other selections. The Sunday school report was rendered, showing a collection of $788,31. The collection for the morning was announced as $122.74. Repediction, Rev. L. K. Williams, D.D.

After a service of anog, which set the assembly aglow with holy fire, Dr. R. A. Austin, chorister, was presented and the chorus gave a splendld rendition, when the audience bowed in prayer and Rev. R. H. Bowling, Jr., Virginia, led to a throne of greec. A solo was rendered by Miss Griffith, of Los Angeles, and Rev. M. F. Washington, D.D., Alabama, offered prayer. "Let My People Go" was beautifully sung by Dr. J. D. Bushell, New York, Rev. J. C. Austin, D.D., presented Mrs. Josephine Straghn, a field worker. The audience was swept heavenward by Calvary's cross through the charming voice of Mrs. W. Augustus Jones, Pennsylvania, in a solo, "Alone."

Rev. J. C. Austin, D.D., made an excellent address as presiding officer upon the purpose of our coming and African missions, the chief concern of American Negroes and the only assurance of their freedom. In words scintillating in beauty and expressive of the highest appreciation of the worth and character of the present efficient sections and of the ancient and majestic retired secretary, the tallest take in the forest, Dr. Austin presented Dr. James E. East, Corresponding Secretary, to address the meeting.

Dr. J. E. East, the humble Christian minister, who has lost himself in the service of his Lord in Africa's redemption, opened our eyes to what the Lord has done and where the Lord has brought us from and to what height he has lifted us. "Too much shouting and too little doing fail to prove our sincere love for Jesus." said the speaker. He also said: "Lift up your eyes and look on the field for aspiration, then go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature, is the work of the church. Subtract our shouting from our religion and the remainder is zero."

Rev. W. F. Graham, D.D., Pennsylvania, made the closing address an anneal was made for a liheral contribution. A prayer was offered by Dr. J. C. Austin to be eaven for Africa and for funds given in to be given. "Just Think of His Goodness to You" was sung white the contribution was taken. Motto—And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.

He that believeth in me and is baptized, shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned. Mark. 16:15-16.

To the President, Officers, and Members of the National Baptist Convention, in Annual Session at Los Angeles, California, U. S. A.:

This Convention under the wise and Christ spirit of that stalwart and magnetic character, a ripe scholar, a pulpit orator, a produced thinker, a Gibraltar in the church doctrine of this Convention's denominational faith and ideals of the Christian religion, Dr. J. W. Bailer (my predecessor), founded and prosecuted the department of Erapelism. This department has been a success and not a failure, not withstanding the limited resources by which it has been operated. The yearly reports have shown the increased possibilities and great need of the perpetuation of this phase of the Christian church work by the Convention through succeeding generations.

Why This Department?

First—It is the mission of the church—the church founded by Jesus Christ. It has a work to do, it has a duty to perform, a message to carry, and life to give. This work is to clear the way for the coming of the Lord, our Saviour, by the proclamation of the gospel. Our duty is to give our fellow man the knowledge of this great event and the all importance of his being ready for that day, when his Lord cometh. The message is the story of God's love for the world. His means of salvation, and the world's need of such love and redemption.

The life which he has given to us, we are commanded to give or reflect to the world; that the world may have a chance to accept his love that they perish not in their sins. To do this the church must evangelize; to evangelize, it must have evangelists; hence this department—"National Evangelism."

Second—Moses could lead the people out of Egypt, but Joshua had to take them to Canaan; David could gather the material, but Solomon had to build the Temple; Paul could plant, but Apollos vatered; yet God gave the increase. As it was then, even so now. The daily responsibilities of a busy pastor often make it impossible for him to successfully conduct the revivals needed in his own field to say bothing of going into strange and desolate territory. Someone must go, who then?—the evangelist. He it is, that teels constrained to go regardless of price and conditions: hence, the Lord alone is his projision. Therefore no appropriation is made for the support of this work; it must move like the tractor, gather as it goes. It must have like within to emit life to those without.

Third—It is therefore a religious, spiritual stimulant bringing or carrying vigor and encouragement to the hard worked pastor and struggling church. And they together giving life, life eternal, to the perishing community.

This department also furnishes a great opportunity for the development of the latent powers in the sluggish minister or Christian, who would do service for the Master. No "down and out" person can thrive with this department for the soul without hope cannot survive; neither can it another hopeless soul revive. I have not atriven to make this work a financial power, but a soul saving and life giving angel. To prosecute his one aim, brings us to the mext subject.

Qualification of Workers.

- (a) Every applicant is required to have a reputable membership
- in a recognized Baptist church in accord with our Convention work.

 (b) Must have credentials from this department, bearing the official stamp of the seal and the names of the superintendent and secretary.
- (c) Must have a common school education much needed for public appearance, delivery of The Message and filling out of report blanks.
- (d) Must be able to support self on the field, not a parasite on the department nor the public, and pay $2.00 for credentials; and to make small donations to the work of the headquarters for office expenses quarterix.
- (e) Must make reports as required, on blanks furnished from the department's office, without fail. This office must know its workers; and what they have done each quarter.
- (f) Each member of this Department is required to keep an annual membership in the National Baptist Convention, under which this department is helps operated.
- (g) Each number in the report blank turnished is required to be filled out properly, or marked with an X, signifying that you have done nothing along that line of work.
- (h) Each member of this department is expected to comply with every requirement of the department's office, or it in neglect of same, to forward his or her credentials to the headquarters as a forfeiture of all claims, to the privileges and rights of this department.
- (i) This department will be glad to furnish letters of commendation to its workers for their efficiency when merited.

(j) The department requests that, as our annual session is always held during the first part of the month of September, that our Eran gelistic year will begin the first of July, making our quarterly reports as follows:

First Quarter, to be reported October 1st, Second Quarter, to be reported January 1st, Third Quarter, to be reported April 1st. Fourth Quarter, to be reported July 1st.

This gives the headquarters ample time to compile all reports lote one, get them to press and in booklet form for reporting and distribution by the annual session of the National Convention in September. All workers are most earnestly requested and desired to govern themselves accordingly.

Our Year's Work.

As you may know, since our last session was held in St Louis. Mo., during the first week of December, 1922, it is impossible to give a report for a period of one year; hence, this is only what may be considered a partial or half report of the actual work done through this department. Notwithstanding (much to the regret of the super intendent) that only about one-third of our workers have rendered any report, as this report will show, many of our best qualified workers fall under this ban for reasons to us unknown.

We beg that the workers for the ensuing year will be more tallful and energetic; realizing the call of the Master, the need of laboren and your ability to serve His cause.

We also ask, as our workers are instructed, to be constructive and not destructive; that the pastors and churches will recognize and use them whenever possible, and thus further the Kingdom our Lord on earth. The conditions surrounding our racial group in this country, in every conceivable way, the congested city, life and need of education, industry, economy, and Christianity, to say nothing of the claims of the world for a better life, certainly demand that we bestir ourselves to the full power of the church.

May I add a word of gratitude to those faithful workers of or department for their aplendid service rendered, which has made this report possible. We also trust that it will stimulate those of our still who have not been able to do as well. We shall look forward as much larger harvest during the coming year, through the power of the Lord. But take heed lest by any means this liberty of yours become a stumblingblock to them that are weak. I Cor. 8:9.

May God ever prosper your way. Amen.

It was an excellent report and made a splendid survey of the work done, and closed with "The Uncloudy Day." A motion prevalled adopting the report. Rev. C. H. Parrish, D.D., submitted the statitician's report, which was adopted.

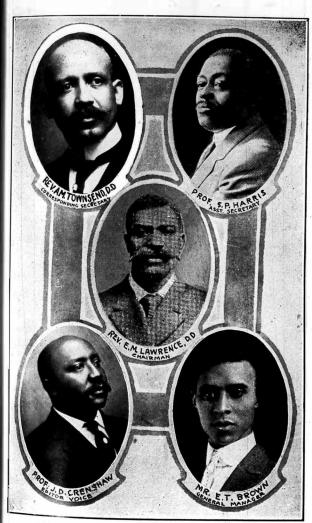

To the Officers and Members of the National Baptist Convention: I beg leave to submit the following report as Statistician: From the printed report, covering 110 pages, we present some interesting facts, page 3; aocieties, page 11; state organizations page 14; Explit schools, page 26; ordained ministers, page 31. All of which may prove interesting to those who wish to know where we as Explisis stand.

We often question the real value of collecting and analyzing statitical data. Sometimes we feel that the time and energy we spead in gathering facts might be spent more profitably otherwise. A ten minutes' reflection, however, dissipates these doubts, and more than ever we realize the absolute necessity of an accurate analysis of denominational facts. Such a study reveals our strong polats and our weaknesses, and provides the proper groundwork for substattial progress along denominational lines.

Some complaint has come to us from the brethren who went out from the National Baptist Convention stating that we include in the National Baptist Convention, a number of Baptists that belong to their Convention. We have tried in our estimate of the number of Baptists to subtract as far as we were able to know the supposed number of Baptists not affiliating with the National Baptist Convetion and are claimed by the brethren who went out from us. The Federation of Churches has just published their estimate of Baptish composing the National Baptist Convention, 3,253,733. The American can Baptist Year Book puts our number as 3,116,326. This leaves difference of 137,408, which according to our reckoning may represent the Baptists not affiliating with the National Baptist Convey tion. We were not able to secure any published record of the number of Baptists affiliating with the brethren of the unlastporated. So accepting the figures of the American Baptist Year Book Negro Baptists of the National Baptist Convention make up about 31 per cent of all the Baptists in the world. And 40 per cent of to Baptists in the United States. In this country one out of every tou persons of color is of Baptist faith. And twothirds of all who affiliate with any religious denomination whatever, are affiliate with the National Baptist Convention.

It would be no exaggeration to assert that between five and in million people are within the zone of Negro Baptist influence is an awful responsibility and wonderful opportunity. Faw of the convention of the have realized how great the responsibility or how magnificent the opportunity. Are we doing all we can do? Are we doing all that our membership warrants?

We are giving in the printed report how the Negro Baptists rank in the United States, by states, per capita of wealth and ratio of membership to baptisms in each state. The per capita of wealth was found by dividing the total value of church property by the total membership of each state. The rank of the state is given next, the siste with the largest per capita of wealth, being ranked first and so on. The column marked members for baptism, means that the indicated ratio is between membership and haptisms. 38 to I signifies that approximately 38 members were necessary to bring into the church one convert. This may be taken as a rough index of the state's sout saving effectiveness. That state is most effective which requires the least number of members per convert.

We ask that you read this statistical report and find other interesting and strengthening facts for comparisons. By an order of the Convention some years ago, the statistical report is to be given free to the members of the Convention.

All of which we submit for your consideration.

Text—Ye are come unto mount Zion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an immunerable company of angels. To the general assembly and church of the firstborn, which are written in heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirit of just men made perfect, and to Jesus the Medintor of the New Covenant, and to the blood of sprinkling, that speaketh better things than that of Abel. (Hebrews 12: 22 24.)

Subject-"The New Testament Church."

When we read these words, we are naturally led to inquired whom speaketh the apostle these words? Is he describing the star and circumstances of the church on earth, or of the church in beared

Some of you are aware that theologians and expositors after he ing bestowed much learned labor on this passage, have arrived a different conclusions, and that to the questions which I have groposed, they have furnished different answers. By some, awar whom was the late learned and critical Dr. McKnight, we have been informed that the text is descriptive of the state of the church unificant under the gospel dispensation. Again, we are told by a third class of writers that the passage refers hold the church below and the church above. Now amidst the diversity of interpretations, everyone must perceive at once how exceedingly desirable and important it is that we should be fully persuaded to own minds, of the proper design and legitimate application of and other passages of the Holy Scriptures before we attempt a mainute and detailed explication of the subject.

minute and detailed expirention of the subject.

To me it appears most manifest that the lext is descriptive the church of Jesus Christ as it is existing on earth at present, we have here a statement of its superior privileges, especially a evangelical dispensation, as contrasted with its constitution and privileges under the Mosaic economy. The following reasons statisfy and justify this conclusion.

First, because this view is in perfect accordance with the whole defit of the argument throughout the Epistle to the Hebrews. Those of you who have read this epistle with deep and prayerful attentionand it must be thus read if you would understand it-will have nergived that the main design of its inspired writer was to preserve the Helicow converts to Christianity from relapsing into Judalam. To this tenintation they were strongly exposed by reason of the "Cruel Mockings" and severe persecutions which now attended their Christisn profession. He therefore labors to show them that there is a great deal more excellence in the gospel dispensation, much richer provision, and far more glorious privileges, than there ever could he in Mosaic institutions. And inasmuch as they had gained so much more spiritual honefit by embracing Christlanity, they were consemently hound thereby to hold fast that whereunto they had attained. This view of the Apostles' design agrees with the very striking anlitheses in the passage before us. Describing the state and circumstances of the fathers in the wilderness when the law was delivered Sinai, he reminds these Hebrew converts saying: "Ye have not come anto the Mount that ye might be touched and burned with fire, nor unto blackness and darkness and tempest, and the sound of the trumpet, and the voice of words: which voice they that heard entreated that the word should not be spoken to them more for they could not endure that which was commanded, and if so much as a heast touched the mountain, it shall be stoned or thrust through with a dart," and so terrible was the sight, that Moses said, "I exceedingly fear and quake" but "as an inducement for us to stand fast in the faith and liberty of Jesus Christ." He says: "We are come unto Mount Sion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem." In the former case there was blackness and darkness; in the latter case there is the glorious light of the Son of Righteousness. Under the Mosaic economy, justice was set forth in awful majesty and righteous terror; under the gospel dispensation we have condescending mercy, shining in mild rudlance, full of grace and truth. He infers here that the farmer instance simply had the law with its condemning sentence and its avenging power. But in the completed plan of Salvation we have a gospel with its pardon for the guilty, life and salvation for the lost and those who are dead in sin and trespasses. The first was a dispensation, carrying with it bondage and feat. The present dispensation grants a glorious liberty to the children of God, Again we believe that the Apostle refers to the gospel church because the fitles and designations employed are more applicable to the early church militant than to the church triumphant. Hence we need not refer to the heavenly world for their interpretation, for we that Mount Sion, the city of the living God and the heavenly Jerusalem are all titles given to the gospel church.

Another reason which confirms our view that the text relates to the state of the Christian church is that the things spoken of here are not set forth as future privileges but are said to be privileges now. He is not describing anything that is in be distance, nor yet to be desired, for he does not say ye shall—may reare come. Thou art still in the world suffering the many triale and persecutions, yet he says ye are come to the actual enjoyment these privileges.

Again we believe he refers to the gospel church for he says near come to the general assembly and church of the firstom which is written in heaven. It is then evident that the meaning hy though we as Christians are yet in this world suffering for Christians, yet our names are enrolled in heaven as citizens of the heaven Jerusalem.

Again the last and strongest point that makes the matter clear as to Paul's reference to the church is he adds, "Ye are come to Jesu the Mediator of the New Covenant and to the blood of sprinking that speaketh better things than that of Abel."

Now all Bible students argue that the earth is the scene of open tion where the sprinkling of blood took place under the Momie dipensation, and where it does take place in the mediatorial linguous of Jesus Christ, that it is here where we partake of the media and efficacy of the precious blood of Jesus applied to our souls preparing its for the realms of eternal joy.

Now let us first consider the privileges set forth here to all believers and members of the Gospel church. First, ye are come use Mount Sion. Some of the most hallowed associations of the Jewish people were connected with this name.

David said, "Glorious things are spoken of the City of God." It was called the heauty of the whole earth for joy and situation.

"Here Jehovah recorded His name and established his wombly. It was in the location of King David's residence, surrounded by left towers, and massive bulwarks, the different courts were there when the people assembled for worship. There stood the sitars erected to daily sacrifices. There stood the altar of incense where the saxed fire never went out. It was there that the vell was enclosed, the methody place in which sat the ark of God with its sacred content, the golden pot of manna, Aaron's rod, the two tables of the Corennatthere could also be seen the cherubim overshadowing with obstretched wings the mercy seat." There the Levites served in regular it was there that the High Priest entered the Holy of Holles, wi the blood of the sacrifice and sprinkled the mercy seat for all of the neople.

It was there that the Shekinah, the cloud of glory, the symbol of divine majesty, filled the sanctuary. It was upon Mount sha that the people assembled with holy fear to inquire into Gods at temple and to behold the beauty of the Lord.

In fact no spot on earth was regarded by the Jewish word per with more profound veneration than was Mount Slon. But all of display of glory and objective worship only pertained to a liminaterial temple or a worldly sanctuary which was but a shadow of better things to come or an emblem of the pure itual constitution of the Gospel Church—but ye are come in the living, built on the foundation of the Apostles ets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone." Itual temple in which all true believers are living stones the 2:4-5). To whom coming as unto a living stone, disalled of men, out chosen of God and prectous. Ye also, as any are built up as a spiritual house, a holy priest-hood, to of itual sacrifice, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ.

This surpasses all the gorgeous splendor of the material cence ever witnessed in Jerusalem, and the temple main by

Mount Sion for the Gospel church is a spiritual church not made with hands, when every Christian is a living stone, constituting a spiritual building filly framed together groweth into a holy temple in the Lord,

Here God the spirit is worshiped in spirit and in truth. While the ministers exercise the function of their high calling, preaching the glad tidings peace, proclaiming the great gospel sacrifice offered once for all, the Lamb of God that takes away the sine of the world, here the Holy Spirit descends giving power and efficiency to the minister, and at the same time kindles a flame of love on the altar of the heart of every true believer. Here the sinner comes with a guilty mind and a contrite spirit to receive pardon and grace to help in a lime of need. Here in the Gospel church the sorrowful heart finds consolation, and the wears soul finds rest. The weak are made stronger, the hackslider can be healed and the wanderer reclaimed. Here the believer can enter the Holy of Holles for himself or herself and behold the King's glory as if looking into a glass with open face, or changed into the same image from glory to glory even as by the spirit of the Lord.

Secondly, the apostle says, "Ye are come unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, which signifies the habitation of peace." And when He recorded His name there it was called the city of the living God, the seat of governmental power both spiritual and temporal. This made it a fit type of the universal kingdom of God on earth.

The emblem of that gracious and happy state of peace and right-cousness which all true believers enter by faith in Jesus Christ. Hence we see here the Christian church set forth as a city of the great King, a city whose foundation, builder and maker is God. Jesus calls it a city that is set on a hill that cannot be hidden.

The Apostles describe all believers as being fellow citizens of this city. The Gospel church is a spiritual, cosmopolitan city. Its ina are from every kindred and every tongue being born again, of the will man, but of the will of God, not of corruptible seed. It orruptible seed by the word of God, which liveth and abideth forever.

Paul says "in one of his epistles." Jerusalem which is above is the mailer of us all." Hence all believers are children of the apiritual Mount Sion, and citizens of the city of the living God.

n has city they are divinely taught. They are trained in the sch 1 of 1 m who said. "Learn of me for I am meek and lowly in beart" It is 'nre that they are taught Christian economy, Christian divines, Christian doctrines, Christian privileges and blessings growing in grace and in the knowledge of God, into spiritual woman and manhood in Christ Jesus.

The are inhabitants of a spiritual commonwealth; the population of this city is increasing daily coming from the East, West, North and South From every nation they come, every individual becomes a fellow liven of the saints. They all speak the same language, have the carrie laws, and the same interest. Having different gifts for one Lord.

in climans are supplied with provisions according to the riches in glory. The initialitants are fed with the bread which cometh down from heaven, the Bread of Life, and they drink from the rivers of

His pleasures, for there is a river, the stream whereof makes glad the city of God. This city is defended by an army led by a Captain who has never lost a battle. She is founded on a rock, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. God is in the midst of her and she shall not be moved.

This teaches us that the Church of God is indestructible. Pull says, "Unto the Hebrews here who come to Christ they had not come to a temple city as was the earthly Jerusalem subject to change and diesolution, whose glory had long since departed, and whose temples and walls had laid waste, but to a heavenly Jerusalem, the city that John saw coming down from God out of heaven, with its imperishable beauty and resplendent glory.

Thirdly. Ye are come to an innumerable company of sagals. Paul knew that the Hebrews greatly valued the ministry of angels. and pointed with pride to the different times when angels had figured conspicuously in their deliverance and protection and it would be natural for them to consider it a privilege glorious and superior to the Mosaic economy unless accompanied by angels. In this He kis them know that they had lost nothing by embracing Christianity for while the heavenly host visited and assisted their Fathers from time to time, they were brought into a closer relationship with them for as helrs of salvation angels are now ministering spirits.

They are not only our ministering angels, but they are our fellow servants. Their Master is our Master. He who appoints them to their work appoints us to ours. His will is their law. They worship Him in heaven as we worship Him on earth. When John beheld one of these exalted creatures in his Patmos vision, so giorious and powerful was his aplendor that the anostles fell at his feet. But the angel said "Do it not for I am your fellow servant." Angels labor with us in & fusing the tidings of redeeming love, and spreading the giory of our common Lord. Angels are our fallow soldiers. They with us comnose one army of the living God. They are our lilustrous alles and have often fought great hattles on earth in behalf of the church. When the myriad host of earthly foes encamped around ferael, angels the stars in their courses fought against Sisera. There is another in stance: In the case of the proud Sennacherib, king of Assyria who came up with his army to lay stege to Jerusalem, how terrible do the angels of the Lord go forth against them and they smole the Assyrian camp slaying 185,000 men. Through all the plain could be seen the dead horses and their riders lying on the ground, cold, breath

Angels are our fellow students. They desired to look into the less and dying. suffering of our blessed Lord, and the glorious results of his inter nation. They watched his life, ministry and death with marked at tention. They crowded around the scene in the Bethlebem stable. visited him in Gethaemane, and followed him to Calvary. They let their native heavens, and in their flight they overlooked sun, most and stars and all the glories of the firmsment and in shining thront came to the church of Jesus Christ to study the development an perfections of this divine character.

Angels are our witnesses. They witness all our counicts triumphs. They congregated at the completion of the works of tion, and sang together when the Sons of God shouled for joy. when Jesus our second Adam, made his advent into a sleeping a multitude of these heavenly hosts formed a choir in mid all sang, "Glory to God in the highest, peace on earth, good will toward men." Angels rejoice in the witnessing of a penitent sinner, for leans tells us that there is more joy in heaven among angels over one sinner that repenteth than 99 just that need no repentance. He watches over the Christian's dying hed. It is they who wait around the Christian's dying bed, as in the case of Lazarus. The hand of poverty and disease had played havoc with all earthly possessions and rendered him a beggar at a rich man's gate, yet he was a saint, angels were his associates, and when his soul left that diseased body. augels hore it into Abraham's body.

Fourthly, Ye are come to the general assembly and church of the firstborn. The apostle here alludes to that great assembly of the tribes of Israel who gathered at the foot of the mount at the giving of the law-a vast congregation and a solemn event. He may have alluded to the annual gathering of all the males in Jerusalem to celebrate the religious festivals of the nation, but he assures all who have embraced Christianity that they have a far greater and more illustrious assembly. For that was but the assembling of one nation, but now by faith you have come into association with all the saints of every age and nation throughout the world. Having fellowship with them all, as far as the gospel has reached, there are multitudes following the name of Jesus. From America across the Atlantic to the Asiatic continent, go from thence to Britain, visit Scotland, Ireland and Wales, thence to China and Japan, as you pass take in the isles of South America and Africa. Sum up these and then add all the saints of the early church plus all of the angelic host and you will have a conception of the general assembly which no man can number. The church of the firstborn, the word church being often employed by profane writers before the New Testament was written to desigpate that a company of persons called out and assembled together by authority for the transaction of business is the correct meaning of the word church. The Holy Ghost sanctified the word and it is in the gospel to signify that a number of persons who by the gospel of Jesus Christ have been called out of a world of aln and darkness into His marvelous light and liberty, and who are associated together for the purpose of maintaining His worship and honor, for the promotion of His glory and their own mutual instruction is a church, Find them wherever you will, no matter how many or how few, they are churches. Hence all of those who believed in Jesus from the beginning to the end of the Christian era constitute the church of the firsthorn. He himself the firstborn among many brethren. Under the early dispensation the firstborn was always expected to be the most perfect of its kind. So are all evangelical believers. They are the first fruits unto God and the Lamb. They are the choicest and most excellent of the earth. They are mighty in moral strength and power. Again the firstborn in the families of Israel were also to be holy unto God. It was their privilege to be especially consecrated for the service of the Lord and their country. So it is with the believers of the Christian church, we are called with a boly calling; by our dedication to God in the ordinance of holy baptism we are relatively holy. We are renewed in the spirit of our minds and have put off the old man for the new, which after God is created in rightcousness and true hollness. Again the firstborn had a desirable portion of the Father's property. This is another privilege of the courch of the firstborn under the gospel dispensation. Their portion includes the promise of the life which now is and that which is to come an hundredfold in this world to come, treasures of grace here and glory hereafter. Paul says, "All things are yours." Again the firstborn is supposed to exercise authority in the family, rested with certain influence. Christ says to the church, "Ye are the salt of the earth, the light of the world."

The Christian is the highest type of man and womanhood. They are God's free men and their names are involved in heaven. They are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens. They are numbered with the patriarchs and prophets, apostles and mattyra whose names are written in heaven.

Fifthly, Ye are come to the Judge of all. How awful were the tokens of divine majesty when Jehovah came down on Mt. Sing in the character of a lawgiver, even then the people could not renture near the mountain. And on the day of atonement the people had to stand off with fear while the priest alone could enter the boly place nor could be without the sprinkling of blood, "but now, says Paul all who are afar off may come nigh by the blood of Christ, for June has broken down the middle partition, opened the way to the nercy seat by His own blood, the veil has been rent asunder and we are erhorted by the apostle to come boldly to a throne of grace for he who sits thereon is our friend. We, "come to God" and what is religion but an approach to God? Man by sin has wandered away from Him, and has forsaken the source of truth, holiness and happiness. At every additional act of transgression the distance is increased. The design of all real religion is to bring back the wanderer to God in Christ for mercy and salvation. But says the Apostle "Ye are come to God the judge of all." That is, you come to Him as still sustaining under the Gospel, His judicial character. He does bestow mercy at the sacrifice of justice. It is God that justifies the God of truth and holiness the judge of all, and He is just, while yet the justifier of all who believe in Jesus. Then who is he that condemneth?

In the court of sinner's conscience, the believer need not fear in meet God as the presiding judge. But then all should be clear there for "Our hearts condemn us. God is greater than our hearts and knoweth all things, but in our hearts condemn us not, then have we confidence in God." and "There is now no condemnation to them that are in Christ, who walk not after the flesh but after the spirit. For the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus has made them free from the law of sin and death."

"Hence also we come to him regat character, "For God is King in Sion." Here he rules and reigns in righteousness and true Christia are the scrvants of his government. I grant that there is an inportant sense in which all men and all created intelligences are sigect to his rule, but there as it regards wicked beings, it is a rule terror. "He holds the power of hell in chains." But with respect the faithful it is a government of faith and grace and to such thappiness in being governed.

"Happy are the people that are in such a case. Again, "Ye are come to God the Judge of all in His capacity of universal 10 is a shall decide the destinies and doom of all. I believe the experience to those agonistic exercises to which allusion is madopening verse of the chapter. They had an officer designated whose duty was to inspect the exercises of the competitors, who had won the race, and to adjudge the prize. St. rau refers to this custom when he says, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith, henceforth, there is laid up for me a crown of rightcousness, which the Lord the rightcousness judge shall give me that day." Now says the apostle to the Hebrews, "Ye are in the arena of condict under the inspection of your judge. So run therefore that you may obtain." We, too, are running our race of Christian duty, and preasing on our course of service, and perhaps of suffering also. But still we run under the immediate eye of our judge who will assuredly do right in adjudging the prize to the Christian races. We may rely upon it, he will take care that that man who wins the crown shall wear it.

"Ye are come to the spirit of just men made perfect. It is certainly a very unnatural and far-fetched interpretation that would apply this language to the adult Christian in the present world, though some learned have done so, and have tried to bring their learning to beer upon it, but with all deference to their learning and talent, I humbly ask, where in all the Sacred Volume, men, during their probation on earth are called Spirits? I know not where to find it, and certainly such a designation would be improper. The true and proper rule of interpretation is to fix the meaning of a text by its connection.

Observing this rule in the present case you will see who are only intended by "The spirits of just men made perfect." They are those who have run the race and won the prize. Accordingly the Apostle gives a list of them in the proceeding chapters, beginning with Abel and Enoch, then Ahraham and David, also Samuel and the prophets who are now among the great cloud of witnesses by whom we are encompassed. They were justified through faith in the atonement of Christ, sanctified by the nower and grace of the Holy Spirit. While in the body, they walked in righteousness of life, now they are blessed heautified spirits forever "Perfect." One other thought on the spirits made perfect, we see here set forth by the apostle that it is not true as some writers have said that the departed dead renose in the grave with the hody until the general resurrection, . . The Apostle Paul has said nothing about soul sleep but tells us plainly that the spirits of the departed dead in Christ are made perfect. Each soul of the redeemed that has left its house of clay has entered into a vigorous and perfect life of immortality and need no purgatorial state. The soul does not go into a state of embroy, being latent until the final day when it hursts forth and develops into perfection. Spirits of just men are made perfect now. Enoch, Moses and Elias and all the plous dead are living now.

Moses and Elias on the Mount of Transfiguration.

Death does not dissolve the compact of the family or sever relationship. We are all one family in heaven and in earth.

Seventhly. Ye are come to the mediator of the New Testament or Corenont. In this as heretofore the apostle is still seeking to prove the superiority of the New Covenant over the old, showing the advantages of the New Testament believers over the helievers under the Old Testament. The Old Testament though in operation a long time could not make the comers thereunto perfect, the law being but a schoolmaster bringing us to Christ. The New Testament is perfect and permanent. The Old forms were but shadows but the New is complete and real. The yoke of the Levitical rites has been done away with and Christ, the Mediator of the New Covenant says, "Come take my yoke upon you and learn of me for I am meek and lowly in heart and ye shall find rest unto your souls. My yoke is east and my hurden is light."

Moses and Aaron were mediators of the old covenant. Ah! they were simply servants and men and they are dead. Jesus the Mediate. of the New Covenant said, "I am he that liveth and was dead and behold I am allve again forevermore."

He is the Mediator that not only was able to bring God and min together, but all intercourse between heaven and earth is carried as through him. He said. "And we are come to the blood of apricking that speaketh better things than that of Abel." This is the blood of Jesus, which is called the blood of the Covenant. The blood of Christ is foundation upon which the New Covenant rests and the source from which all blessings flow, by it we are redeemed, justified and washed from our sins, and by this blood we will conquer our last inning which is death and enter into the gates of heaven in robes made of white by the blood of the Lamb.

My friends, this blood must be sprinkled. Under the Levittal sacrifices the victim was slain and the blood sprinkled. The blood of the Paschal Lamb was sprinkled on the lintels of the door and the side posts. That was a sign to the destroying angel to pass over.

Christ the Lamb of God was slain and every Christian has bad the blood applied to their sonis and this applieding saveth the aposte speaketh better things then Abel.

The sense here is not hard to understand, for after Cain slew Abd his blood cried unto God for vengeance to overtake his guilty warderer. When Christ was slain by his enemies his blood cried for mercy saying, "Father forgive them for they know not what ther do," and it ran down in David's house forming a fountain for all sia and unclearliness.

Again it may be seen in the light of the hinod of the sacrifice of fered by Abel, which was the firstling of flock, but that blood typiled the blood of the Lamb of God. The blood of Abel's sacrifice was for Abel alone. While the blood of Christ was for the world. Abel brought a lamb, but Christ gave himself as a ransom for the gully sinner.

He was wounded for our transgressions, bruised for our iniquity. the chastisement of our peace was laid upon him and by his stripes

All Christians are come to an actual participation in these blessings and privileges and to the enjoyment of these invaluable treasures of the gospel dispensation. Then let us not return to the foundation of the dead works, but let us go on to perfection, marching on victory in His name. Let us stand shoulder to shoulder and with an unbroken phalanx let us press forward to the mark of the high calling of God in Christ Jeans.

Amidst great spiritual fervor the speaker closed with great show of joy from the vast audience.

On motion a vote of thanks was tendered-the choir and many ... pressions that this Convention was the greatest in the bistory the National Baptist Convention. After words of praise for the nitable emertalnment, the Convention adjourned for the special pie-

Statement Submitted by the Several Secretaries of the Boards of the National Baptist Convention to the Executive Roard, January, 1923.

The success of the several Boards depends wholly upon the confidence of the brotherhood, and no one person should be in a position to impair this confidence. A withdrawal of confidence ought to come only after mature deliberation of the parent body. But the practice of allowing the auditor to present printed reports containing statements calculated to injure the work of the Board, pust too much power in the hands of one man. Even if the judgment of the Convention is that he is in error that does not correct the harm of the printed report. We recommend that the auditor be instructed to confine his activities to the matter of ascertaining the degree of accuracy of accounts, and to the presentation of suggestions designed to improve hookkeeping methods, leaving matter of administration to be dealt with as may appear best to the Convention or the Executive Board.

If the auditor is to be expected to do other than pass upon the accuracy of the accounts and the efficiency of the bookkeeping methods, the secretaries should know it, so that they may place before him their plans of operation. Heretofore, we have expected the reviews of the kind made by the auditor to come from the President of the Convention, and we think that this function will continue to be left in his hands.

We call attention to the error in the auditor's report stating that none of the funds raised for educational purposes during the past year were so applied. This is directly contrary to the facts in the case. Educational work was done by the Secretary, Dr. S. N. Vass, during the year, and his services in that direction far outweighed the value of the money expended.

While we recognize our constituents, as a whole, as our overseers, we beg to call attention to the fact that no overseer is just that demands of his toilers "bricks without straw." We ask of each member of this Board, and through the Board we ask each member of our Convention, to develop a keener sense of personal responsibilities for the success of the work of all our Boards.

I, hereby certify, that the shove was adopted by the Executive Board in session held in Nashville, Tenn., January 24th—25th, 1923.

R. B. HUDSON, Secretary.

A committee from the National Baptist Convention came forward and extended us an invitation to the general Convention to hear President L. K. Williams' address.

A motion to adjourn at 4:00 o'clock p. m. and go to the general National Baptist Convention, carried.

Mrs. Winters, on behalf of the North California Federated Clubs, hade us welcome, and expressed her joy to have us here. She said that our women of this section were wide-awake and showing interest in all the movements for the uplift of the race.

Miss Ballad, of Pasadena, California, representing the Woman's American Baptist Home Mission Society, was glad to be present in our Convention; ours was a great opportunity, and God was loudly calling all his children to serve, that His Kingdom might come and His will be done on earth, even as it was in Heaven.

Response by Mrs. V. T. Hill, of Florida. Mrs. Hill expressed he joy to be present and have the privilege to respond to the many kind words of welcome extended. Although, through disappointments and hindrances and at great cost, we came, we were glad to be here, and to be greeted with so much cheer and hospitality. She said that America was a great country notwithstanding all the trying conditions to which we are subject; she believed the Gospet of Jesus would solve all our problems. We are witnesses for Jesus, and where'er wege in all this country, we endeavor to hold up Jesus and strive to extend his Kingdom. She spoke complimentary of our pioneer workers and of their work of the past twenty-two (22) years. She made apile for the National Training School and concluded by complimenting the cordial greetings and hearty welcomes extended us by the good neoule of California.

Solo and chorus "I'm Rich!" was sung, after which the program was read by Secretary Broughton and upon motion it was adopted.

President Layten, in her usual pleasing manner introduced speaker of the evening, Rev. Mordecal Johnson, Charleston, ... pastor of First Baptist Church. Rev. Johnson expressed happy to be in our presence, and to have the privilege to p Gospel of Jesus Christ; as men had tried everything else to carry the world forward; and since nothing had brought the desired success, they were now willing to hear what Jesus said. Luke 6:26-28 was the basis of his discourse. He said those verses were the sum and substance of Christian religion.

First—The Social Situation Confronting the Negroes of America.

Ours was a peculiar and distresting condition; The Anglo-Saxons' dominions extended to the ends of the earth and they have rule over the natural resources of the world; inconceivable mastery over nature and incalculable wealth.

We are a subordinate factor in world affairs; we are an impotent nearly, greatly suppressed and spiritually isolated. One time, during the World War, the black man was called into the council of the Great, and given consideration. How can we deliver ourselves from this spiritual smothering? Our youth see little for the future of the race. Our business men say, we haven't money enough to get consideration; so they are going to get money. Others say "This is the white man's country, let him have it." Others say, we must have equality-others, revolution; and still others say, we must fight. Our young people are not coming to the church to solve their problems. but rather to criticise our preachers and our methods of worship, This is the social condition confronting us. Our condition, at this time, similar to that of Jesus, when Jesus was born. The Romans were the rulers of the world and the Jews, as many other nations. were subject races, as we are at this time. The Jews were terribly agitated over their condition, even as we now are. They had religious liberty as we, but were politically and socially subject. Historical reference made to the saying of Sadducees, Pharisees and Herodians, showing that they were effected by Roman domination, as we are efferted by the dominant race of our day. The Zealots' Insurrection, also referred to. Jesus was a racial and political leader, as well as a religions leader of His people. He was mobbed because he accepted the name of Messiah, the title of the Race Leader of the Jews.

Second—What was Christ's response to his discouraged people? He repuditted their sayings and said to them—"Bread alone is not be thing needed." Material greatness is not only needed. He spat the Herodians out of his mouth, because they thought the Jews should do as did the Romans. He denounced Herod as "that fox." Jesus statement and John's "The Kingdom of Heaven is at Hand," stirred the hearts of the Jews and alarmed the Romans, which led to John's imprisonment. Quoting Josephus—and finally to the crucifixion of Jesus. Christ opposed violence on the part of the Jews against Romans and urged his people to subjugate themselves and accept the spirit of God. Christ Prached the Gospel of non-resjetant low—"Father forgive them they have not what they do." Jesus was killed by the political leaders of

MRS. S. W. LAYTEN

President of the

WOMAN'S CONVENTION

Auxillary to the

NATIONAL BAPTIST CONVENTION

Dear Coworkers:

"Westward the course of empires takes its way; The first four acts already past,

A fifth shall close the drama with the day;

Time's noblest offspring is the last."

The world never saw in any age before such devotion and zeal for an invisible power as this new and Spiritual Empire westward in its course, kindling hope and enthusiasm in a world engulfed in despair and unbelled. The life, teaching and death of Jesus, the mission and ministry of Paul, converted, persecuted, mobbed and driven from Palestine into Europe became the vehicle for transmitting westward the Christian Empire; which led to the Puritan dispersion, thence to the new world, and from the barren and bleak New England shores has crossed the Western continent-inspired and vitalized it with the glory and renown it possesses because of the western course of the Christian Empire.

> "In Christ there is no East nor West, In Him no South nor North, But one great Fellowship of Love Throughout the whole wide earth.

"In Christ now meet both East and West, in Him meet South and North. All Christly souls are one in Him Throughout the whole wide earth."

Las Angeles

Los Angeles is a new world wonder in growth, alluring in its ideal dimatic conditions for productions and resources. In new and rapidly growing sections there is a great demand for all kinds of labor (especially such as possess the physical powers of endurance for hardships) including the odd jobs, domestic and personal service, workers. such trades as harbers, seamstresses, hotel work, etc. Negroes have held a monoply. Then the unjust treatment of Negroes in the South has caused a heavy and continuous migration to California until now there is a large population in Southern California. It is most important that the influence of religious and social institutions be strengthfeed. In my message of several years, reference was made to this seclon. ("Negro population in the west, intermountain section and Pacific Coast, is rapidly increasing. There are few strong, well organized churches, with well prepared pastors capable of leadership, many sections are prey to roving ministerial parasites, whose persist-

Race Question, one of the greatest in the world. The world is now stirred on this question. America has its greatest opportunity now with 12,000,000 black people in its borders. Political equality, not chough, economic equality, not enough, nor social equality. The spirit of Jesus, of non-resistant love, of justice, peace and righteous ness. That alone can bring desired results. Modern Europe and America, like the Rich Young Man of the Bible, because of their wealth, will not accept Jesus. Our very blackness and our varied adverse conditions make it possible for us to accept the spirit of Jesus and help save the world. (A wonderful, historical, eloquent and Instructive discourse.)

Amidst cheers from the State Delegations, President Layte | | | and delivered her Annual Message. It was instructive eleque helpful. The account of her trip over-seas was especially interested It fellows:

The majority of the Colored people there are Haptista, Shall the National Baptist Convention leave them to struggle unaided and without its fellowship and the inspiration and contact one of our Convention meetings would give them? We should go into the field and strengthen it. The Methodist Church is to be commended for its work and efforts in both. It has not permitted distances nor cost of travel, nor mountain fastness to interfere with coming into personal contact with the least or last hamlet within this vast territory.) To California we bring nothing new, but ask you to join in the refrain of the old, old story of Jesus and His love. Let us strive to leave here a story worthy of Him in whom was Life and that Life was the Light of men.

I repeat to the far West we have come. For years, I have urged and hoped to secure a meeting of the National Baptist Conventor somewhere in the far West, preferably Los Angeles, because of its importance in city growth, population, denominational prospects, at owhich will indicate it to be the center for a religious propagands. Also have lived here, it was formerly my home. I came in the boom days, there were few Colored folk in Los Angeles at that time. You would walk all day without seeing a Colored face, and twenty-five years agolthink there were only 1500 Colored voters in the country. I among the original members of the Second Baptist Church—which was the first Colored Baptist Church organized in Southern California. I was the organist of this church, and helped to organize its for choir—Mr. T. A. Harris was its chorister.

Among other members of the choir were Mr. and Mrs. Young, Mrs. T. A. Harris, Mrs. McDowell, Mrs. Willie Reed, Mr. Roberts, and Mrs. Moulton and others.

The church was organized in 1887 with Rev. R. C. Pierce as its first pastor. From the best information obtainable I find the following among the original members; Brothers O. Stallaworth, G. Baylor, A. Tonnison, Barr, Galloway and Joe Green; Sisters Todd, Amanda Green, Simms, Sargent, Buford.

Rev. C. H. Anderson was called to the church in 1888. Rev. Anderson worked at his trade and gave his time to the church until we were able to pay him, a small salary, he was earnest and consciention and much is due to his efforts in sustaining the denominational light in the early history of Negro Bantist churches in Southern California Year in and year out, he with Rev. Mitchell and Mrs. Strickian. Brother Harris and a few others, have indeed been pligrims to the National Raptist Convention mecca, and have kept in contact when great Convention and its work, and we owe it to these loyal supplito make this visit. I hope our coming will prove an implestion and blessing to them in many ways. In the earlier years in Calling Negro Baptists had been meeting in associations with the brethren, who always welcomed them and I never remember as occasion other than the most cordial and Christian at itule and the lationship—but as the population increased, somehow the teeing that we should have a seperate association—so in the year was issued for such a meeting to be held in San Jose, and there are effected the Western Baptist Association of Southern Californ 1 was elected president of the Woman's Auxiliary, and we have the dation of the present State work. There are many interesting in of the early days I wish I could write you-but time forbid. There are many aweet and pleasant memories of life here in Los Angeles in the early days, some too were hard and trying, but they were only days of training for after years of work that were to follow.

Our Second Day

The second day is given to reports—President's Annual Address, Corresponding Secretary's Report, Treasurer's Report, Statistician's Report and committees, etc., these are considered the policy or guide of the Conventions work. We endeavor to lay accurately and plainly to put before you the work of your organization, its possibilities, its needs and our knowledge of the field and our stewardship for the past year—Advise us—Command us—Question us—Hold us—but be honest and just in whatever you do.

Executive Board Meeting

The meeting of the Executive Board, May 31 was more largely atleaded than in furmer years; this is encouraging. The presence of Vice-President Mrs. Edna Strickland was noted with pleasure. As is characteristic of her, she again assumed the responsibility of trying to secure the payment of State pledges to meet the Convention's indehtedness to Miss Burroughs. We need improved methods for work, for the financial support of Convention expenses, for support of missions, (Individual State conventions receive more money than the National Organization) for the concentration of missionary efforts and training, for such service, for Educational work (correlation), for better system in local organization work and connection with the National, and for closer cooperation with other Baptist organizalions. These are among the important matters for the consideration of the Executive Board, and should be borne in mind during the entire year. If we think of these things we shall be able to present practical and workable plans, that have been known and tried in our States, or known to have been used by others with success. Such things can be considered and if approved recommended to the Convention. This kind of service will improve and promote Convention work and is the real purpose for the existence of an Executive Board. We either do not seriously consider our appointments, or we are indifferent-wherever the discrepancy lay-we must remove it. States should give us for the Executive Board their most capable and best prepared women for this most important committee, and then see to it that these women attend Board meetings.

The following were present May 31: Mrs. Edna Strickland, Texas: Mrs. Mrs. V. Parrish, Kentucky; Mrs. Vtola T. Hill, Florida; Mrs. Ida Pope, Michigan: Mrs. Anna Winstead, Indiana; Mrs. Z. D. Lewis, Virgina; Mrs. C. D. Trice, Illinois; Mrs. Violet Johnson, New Jersey; Mrs Jesse Mapp. Illinois; Mrs. Williams. District of Columbia; Mrs. Alica Tucker, Fennsylvania; Miss N. H. Burroughs, District of Columbia; Mrs. Amanda East, Pennsylvania; Mrs. S. W. Layten, Pennsylvania

Foreign Missions

At the St. Louis meeting we approved the request and plan presented by Rev. J. E. East. Secretary of the F. M. B. Dr. East reports that the plan of giving one cent a week by each member of a church or missionary society, is being adopted by many churches and State organizations. Through this plan the F. M. B. is increasing its fund and becoming able to meet its obligations on the foreign field the does not mean the foreign work is flourishing or being adequately ported—but that the past year he has been able to pay some ore due salaries and meet the meagre salaries due missionaries The pitiable condition of present Africa with its millions of souls in deri ness should make a strong appeal to our giving, else there will soon follow the inevitable, if Africa is not soon redeemed to Christ. Africa will be divided and commercialized to satisfy the greed of powerful nations. There is also to be reckoned—the great inroad Mohammedaism is making in Africa. This should arouse the whole Christian world to a speedy enlargement of missionary efforts there. In my humble judgment the National Baptist Convention-would best center its efforts on some one section of Africa, do its work well there is stead of scattering its energies over the continent, by permitting each missionary sent out to select and start a new place of operation. Great care should be taken in the selection of such a field, it should be where the greatest good may be accomplished, including the plan for a training school for native teachers and missionaries. In doing this ve would erect a monument to our credit.

I am apprehensive as to results we have secured from some of the natives trained here. A native educated and trained on African sell. will appreciate and preserve native characteristics and arts (that are worth retaining), will be in closer touch and sympathy with his work and see Africa for Africans, rather than if he be educated in a land that sees Africa in a very low state of development. I would like to see Liberia selected as the special place for the missionary efforts of our Convention. It is the only Negro republic and is the open door. it poses as inviting immigration of American Negroes. I vividly re member the visit of Hon, C. B. D. King, President of Liberta to on country and he asked our intelligent young men, who desire an opportunity to develop to come to Liberia. For a while we shall have be continue our educational work among the natives in our own last but here we must be more careful of the kind of training they receive where they go for training and their supervision while here, and see to it that there is preserved a desire and pride to retain whatever is good and characteristic in Airican life, rather than absorb the superficial and frivolous of our American life.

The National Training School

Our school is always with us and merits our approval and support. Leaving America in June, I had not the opportunity to review us recommendations from the Board of Trustees as I usually deknow the Chairman Mrs. C. H. Parrish and the report of the Coresponding Secretary, Miss Burroughs will in the course of time plefore us the vital matters we should consider.

From Labor to Reward

We come now to the bter—figuratively, to-day we place and exotic on the bler or graves of our loved ones who have guithe same ones who yesterday walked with us as frien and workers but they have been called to answer the same such one swaling us, awaiting all mankind; they have gone from earthy sorrow and strife, to the reward of the faithful—so we lay 180

Sowers of love and tender memories, with sorrowful hearts, yet with a great hope filling our hearts, like David—we know that they cannot come back to us, but we can go to them.

For some divine reason (the Bible tells us there is a time to be born and a time to die) in the past year—several of our strongest—most familiar and loved leaders have been removed from among men and called to a higher service.

Almost on the close of the St. Louis meeting the whole country was shocked by the information of the death of our beloved Dr. W. G.Parks, of Philadelphia, former vice-president of the N. B. C., and who automatically succeeded our lamented Dr. E. C. Morris. In a very short time followed our own pastor, so well known and loved—chairman of the F. M. B., Rev. A. R. Robinson of Philadelphia—our city has been deeply bereaved. Then followed the distinguished brothers, Rev. E. C. Fishback, of Cleveland, Ohio, Rev. E. T. Fishback, Wichita, Kansaa—mique and strong in character and unflinching advocates of the N.B. C. policies. Those were all shining marks. Grand Christian men who had for years been outstanding examples of great personality, and the identification of great lives with the progress of our noble cause.

President Harding

While overseas came also the sad and shocking news of the death of President Harding—a prominent and active member of our denomination. He, too, illed in the harness. An earnest Christian, a conscitutions and unsclish servant of his country, and for the cause of the tensional understanding and peace. "Servants of God, well done."

The Baptist World Alliance

June 29. New York City—The Walker Memorial Baptist Church leadered delegates to the B. W. A. a reception. This very beautiful and appropriate occasion was an expression of the big soul of Dr. J. D. Bashell, the great singer and eloquent paster of Walker Memorial. Mrs. Bushell, his talented wife, worked with him to make this occasion what it should be. Mrs. E. Arlington Wilson and Mrs. Madakee Layten Tillman were among the prominent guests present.

The following is a list of N. B. C. delegates:

Dr. C. H. Parrish, chairman of delegation.

Mrs. F. R. Givens, Miss Fannie R. Givens, Kentucky; Mrs. S. W. Laylen, Penn.; Rev. F. T. Sandefur, Arkansas; Rev. J. W. Balley, Texas; Rev. E. Arlington Wilson, Texas; Rev. W. H. Rozier, California; Rev. J. H. May, Louislana; Rev. D. S. Klugh and Rev. O. T. Waller, Massachusetts; Rev. R. A. Adams and Rev. J. P. Robinson, Arkansak, Mr. C. H. Parrish, Jr., Kentucky; Rev. C. F. Brown, California; A. F. Graham, Virginia; F. B. Brown and O. J. Allen, North Carolina; W. Williams, Virginia.

June 30 we sailed from New York City on the S. S. Olympia. The voyage across was unusually calm and pleasant—not one of us was easick. By the grace of God we landed safely in Loudon, August 6. where the party divided—some going to Rome and the Holy lands. delegates following our previously planned routes through continental intops to the far northland Sweden. Stockholm had been selected as the place of the World Baptist Alliance, which assembled only 21-29. "Stockholm is one of the most beautiful cities of Europe."

Built partly on several islands and partly on peninsulas cut of from the mainland by deep flords it is justly celebrated for its unusual beauty as a city, its many fine parks and physical environments at the capital of Sweden, the city naturally has numerous governmen and public buildings, including the Palace of the King. The city was founded in 1250 and is nearly 700 years old. Perfect arrangement were made for the meeting and all details carried out in the big hearted and hospitable spirit of the Swedes. They are a handsome and ware hearted people. Meetings were held in Immanuel kyrkan (church which has a senting capacity of 2,500. There were many out-of-dog, meetings and services in parks and other places. This was the third meeting of the W. B. A. The first was held in London in 1906, at which time many other representatives of the N. B. C. attended and ou Woman's Convention was so ably represented by our corresponding secretary, Miss Durroughs, and Mrs. Whitfield and Mrs. Givens. The second meeting was held in Philadelphia, 1911. The 1923 meeting say one of the most significant gatherings in the history of the Christia Church since Pentecost.

The Stockholm meeting was truly international in atmosphere and cosmopolitan in personnel. Baptist scholars, leaders, missionalis, educators, laymen from all over the world were there. Practically every land on earth in which there is a Baptist Church was represented. We were there from Czechoslovakia, Poland, Estbooia, Ismania, Russia, Lapland, Germany, France, Italy, America, India, Afria, China, Japan, Durmah, Portugal, Spain, Norway, England and of course all parts of Sweden. We were there all nations and recee of nation native consumes of varied colors and descriptions—all to tell to tworld the old, old story—to work for peace—for human brotherbook for closer fellowship and rendering more efficient service in extenting the Kingdom of God and His Christ.

It was worth a trip to have been present at the roll call of comtries and introduction of delegates from all parts of the world. Ber. Klugh, of Boston, responded to the call of Negro Baptists of America and introduced us and our work with great force and credit. I new before knew the real meaning of "Nearer My God to Thee" until heard that morning the commingling of languages intermized with to quent sobs of thanksgiving in song. We did not know the lought but we all knew the spirit of the heart. Sisters, a new meaning . Christ's love and power, of our own American opportunities and price lege came to me there. I wonder now if we really comprehend the power of God's liberating love, the courage and boldness it gives a when Russian, Rumanian, Italian and Sczho-East Indian arose and told the story of how it had lighted up a dismal prison, how it had her alive the spirit of mirth and childhood in scourged and trightees children, how it had soothed the wounded and bruised body best and stoned as they are being punished today in their respective comtries like Stephen, simply for proclaiming the name of Jesus. Man, of them have been whipped in the open streets, Imprisoned, en for their faith and practice. Yet they remain faithful and loys Christ. I resolved then and there to try to stop complaining, and return home and tell you that with all our handicaps we are blest than those persecuted peoples. There is no race prejument strong and unjust that the power of Jesus caunot remove. What it need is a fresh dedication of our hearts and powers to the of Christ's Kingdom and uplifting of ourselves. We must get cross the Cross. live the true life and men will righten men's hearts and them to treat each other as brethren. Such was the keynote at the whole meeting. Dr. Truitt, of Dallas, Texas, representative of the Southern Baptist Convention, said, "We will never have a human brotherhood that will abide, unless it is based upon the love of God."

"We cannot demand liberty for ourselves and deny it to others." This was the atrongest note from Dr. Mullens, now president of the alliance, and other Southern white delegates. Let us trust God and ord. The N. B. C. delegates were ably cared for by Dr. C. H. Parnish (chairman of delegation), who as a member of the Executive Cammittee, worked faithfully at his post and gained for us what we have not had before, a secure place and recognition. Dr. Parrish is a strong man, a scholar and was a peer among his associates. He was most ably assisted in his work by Rev. E. A. Wilson, of Dallas, teras, secretary of the delegation, who saw to it that we were given recognition and publicity in the press. Dr. Wilson taxed himself to show many courtesies to the members of delegation in transportation matters, etc.

Among the most acceptable addresses of the conference were: "Native Churches Saving the World," by Dr. C. H. Parrish. "Negro Baptists Facing the Future," by Rev. E. Arlington Wilson.

These related, amplified and emphasized the historic heritages of the faith of our people in God, their achievements and hopes. They were among the most heartily applauded at the conference.

Your president spoke at platform No. 1, Haga Parken, subject "Baptist Opportunity."

Rev. Adams responded in place of Rev. Sandefur. Mrs. and Miss Glees-Negro spiritual-received great applause.

Wamen's Organization

A reception to and meeting of women delegates held July 24, at 3 p. m., at Betel-Kapplet First Baptist Church. By ananimous request Mrs. W. C. James, president Southern Baptist Women's Union, presided. Mrs. Anna Stalding, president Baptist Women's Union, of Sweden, welcomed the delegates. Responses were made by Mrs. Coleman, of the H. M. S., U. S. A., and by prominent women of other countries. Your president spoke for the Negro Baptist women of our Convention and was most heartily received and applauded. Mrs. F. Civens and Miss Givens rendered Negro spirituals, which awakened great appreciation in the audience, because they interpreted the spiritual and soul of the Negro slave. Mrs. W. A. Montgomery (Northem Baptist Convention) stated that at the 1911 meeting B. W. A. it sas decided to form a woman's organization and that the proceedings that meeting with plan for organization had been sent by the arman, who could not attend. She offered resolution that the plan be presented and that a permanent organization be formed. offered and meeting called for July 26, I appointed Mrs. F B Ci ens to represent our Convention on committee on plan of organization. The following were selected as officers of permanent organization: President, Mrs. F. C. Spurr, England; Secretary, Mrs. ontgomers, U. S. A.; Treasurer, Mrs. Coleman, U. S. A. Your president on executive committee; Mrs. F. R. Givens as correspondent. Negro Baptist women are recognized and included in the organization and effort of Baptist women of the world. The refer indused this meeting will be reflected in every phase of our denominations like and in our racial contact at home. None can serve the cause of friendly race relationship, justice and right as can Baptists. A consecrated and united ministry can soon change the views of America people in this matter, turn sentiment for fair play and constructive righteousness in behalf of these 12 million Negroes of America, are half of which are constituents of the Baptist church.

Consecrated and courageous ministers need no support as much as they do the cooperation of white Baptist women and they can serve not by the testimony of Christian love as by the presistent witness of their lives in this cause. And throughout our meetings in Stockholm, there was everything to make us hope and believe that the spirit shown there will bear fruit in America. Let us remember we too have our share in this great movement. To Dr. Mullens, Negro lap tists are looking with great hope.

I believe our going to Stockholm is of God and that through it in America. Negro and white Christians will more faithfully work and secure justice and an imparital execution of the law in our land, by development of a Christian democracy, the extension of God's hist down to the uttermost parts of the world.

Exhibits

Exhibits of the N. B. C. were in charge of Mrs. F. R. Givens, Ketucky. Mrs. Givens deserves great credit for the display. It conpared most favorably with other departments of like characte. We might have excelled in this display had our leaders and Stat workers responded to requests made of them. I was very proud of the collection we had and was never embarrassed to refer to we space. Exhibits consisted of papers, periodicals, reports, pictures of churches, school buildings, class groups, convention groups, residence churches, school buildings, class groups, convention groups, residence hanks and business, Sunday school pastors, officers of our Couvetion and State Organizations as many as we could secure. Or F. M. B. had a fine collection and was the only Board to be represented.

Recommendations

Contributions for convention purposes must be increased. This can be done by system in a way that will not interfere with other obligations of our local work. A very small mite—regularly sizes with the thought of its purpose, will bring to our National Treaser; relief. Your president therefore recommends that each individual member of local societies lay aside regularly—(in a sealed box, or velope, or receptacle for this purpose alone)—one penny a week, its money with the individual's name to be reported at our next Annal Meeting.

There is a general expression all over our country that women's State organizations raise money, often the largest among, but are not given the right to appropriate the use of such mon. This is not right nor in accord with Eaptist democracy—it is a ation without representation" and robs the support of missions. of spirit and effectiveness. Women are not willing to longer schuling of raising the money and men bossing the job of distributions of the support of missions.

I state Organizations and other women's auxiliaries will confer on this matter, straighten out policies that will realize the worth of somen's efforts and accord to them the power of appropriation. Besides there must exist a clearer and more sympathetic feeling between the principal and auxiliary organizations of our churches. This latter applies to our National Convention also. We should work more understandingly and barmoniously for the great good of our common cause, for Christ, for missions, for education and racial progress.

Our new president, Dr. L. K. Williams, has shown during his very short term of office a disposition to confer with and have the representatives of our Women's Convention included in all Board meetings and programs of work. I hall this as a sign of closer cooperation, harmony, general development of our denominational work and possible accomplishments. Let us pray for our president, and ask Him shose roice has called unto His service the great workmen of every age, to inspire him to plan and direct the work of this great organization to heights of Christian service and excellence not yet anticipated

Observation

It is a fact that you never know what you think of your country until you leave it. And I am told it is a general custom for reuming Americans to greet "Miss Liberty" with joyous exclamations. know it was my experience. I found myself ginging "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow"—when I remembered the great expasse of sea we had covered and of the nights when in His care we were racked in the cradle of the deep. A solourn in Europe accompatied with all comfort and pleasure somehow enhanced the pleasure of home life, even to the point of longing. I wondered about those denatured Americans who prefer America and live abroad so muchbut they are not in the majority. I find so much to prefer in my land if it is only that inexplainable sense of being at home. One thing is 35 before stated with all its proscriptions and handlcaps. America is the place to work out our race problem. At present Europe presents small hope for development of the working classes—its millions of common people to which we so largely belong. There is much, howerer, around this class and in fact other classes that is worthy of study and emulation—that is group cohesion and national pride. An Englishman loves an Englishman-a Frenchman a Frenchman, and 50 OD. The dirtiest, ragged urchin on the street feels he is the superfor of any other nation. It is nursed from the breast-it is trained in the home, it is drilled in the school. And therefore when the call or crisis comes they move enmasse, they largely get their demands Of course in some respects the parallel is not equal. But if we will burse it in our children from the breast and teach them to believe in our traditions and racial powers—If we will put God and epiritual lings first, there will soon come a great awakening, a revolution in sentment. It must come through the home and church. From observation, the European family life is closer than bere. There is platently a closer bond and sympathy between parents and children hey work together, they worship together, they play together, they tudy together.

M there and fathers of our race, realize the sanctity and power of your b. for the training up of your children and preparing them for service of a goily life and influence in the home.

Conclusion

As Baptists there looms much hope, responsibility and opportunit through our homes and churches, to give the world peace a lead ership through the proper understanding and acceptance of Gafrinessage; through the practice of righteousness we shall become a peculiar people whose spiritual ideas and practice, shall according to God's promise make us inheritors of both this world and eternal lie.

Address was considered the best ever delivered to mip President Layten. The motion to adopt the address and refer reconnendations to the committee on recommendations, prevailed.

Following the example of our brethren, Mrs. McDowell, Missoni, made a motion to suspend the rule and reclect President S. W. Layta, as President of the Convention for the ensuing year. The motion prevailed, and Mrs. S. W. Layten was declared duly elected President.

Mrs. A. J. Abington, arose and said that she arose to make a motion, and desired to preface it. She made a good talk, complimeding the work of the officers during the past years, then moved that the rule be suspended, and all the officers reelected for the ensuit year. Mrs. M. Bledeoe, Illinois, seconded the motion. Mrs. Hartis Ga., and others arrested the motion, not ready; as the officers in not made their reports. Mrs. A. J. Abington withdrew her motion.

Roy W. S. Ellington, Tenn., was presented. He expressed himself happy to have been present, to enjoy the excellent message of ou President. He gave us an inspirint address on "Loyalty." He one results. In early the state of the Bible characters that illustrated loyalty in the highest degree. He said that "loyalty in woman, her charm; man, his diadem." John the Evangelist, an example of loyalty. John said "Little children, love ye one another, for they that love are born of God." For loyalty, that aged apostle John was banished to the Island of l'atmos. He counted not his life dear, but surrendered to remans to become an exile, rather than deny his Lord. Oh! How. blessed was John on that lonely Island. He was in the spirit, on the Lord's Day, saw a wonderful vision, was hidden to be faithful until deth, with the assurance, that a crown of life awaited him and all the would be faithful until death. He urged us to be loyal, in our bomes; he true to each other; and specially loyal to our leaders; even as we had manifested our loyalty to our President. As a race, we have this great trait of loyalty, even to those who despitefully use us. Closed with an carnest plea, that we be loyal to each other. Music-"Shine On Me"-Quintette

All enjoyed the rendition of this choice selection. President Layten presented Miss Naunie II. Burroughs, our efficient Corresponding Secretarry, the twenty-third time to make her Annual Report. Amidst applicate and rounds of cheers, Miss Burroughs came forward and began her report, in her usual emphatic, impressive manner. She proceeded to read her excellent, broad, comprehensive report that showed much work had been done, something was being done and we were endeavoring to do more. Read carefully this report, as here eiven:

TWENTY-THIRD ANNUAL REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE BOARD AND CORRESPONDING SECRETARY OF THE WOMAN'S CONVENTION.

Whatever You Are

"If you can't be a pine on the top of the hill Be a scrub in the valley—but be The best little scrub at the side of the rill; Be a bush, if you can't be a tree.

"If you can't be a bush, be a bit of grass, Some highway to happler make; If you can't be a muskie then just be a bass But be the liveliest bass in the lake.

We can't all be captains, we've got to be crew. There's something for all of us here; There's a big work to do and there's lesser to do. And the task we must do is the near.

If you can't be a highway, then just be a traff; Be the best of whatever you are. It isn't by size that you win or you failIf you can't be a sun, be a star."

Coworkers:

We begin our twenty-second message to you with a part of the prayer of John Hale:

"Look down, O Lord, upon Thy poor dismembered Church, rest and torn with discord and even ready to sink. We will hope, O Lord that notwithstanding all supposed impossibilities. Thou wilt one day in mercy look down upon Thy Sion, and grant a gracious interfer of friends so long divided. Thou that wroughtest that great reconcilition between God and man, is Thine arm waxen shorter? Was it possible to reconcile God to man? To reconcile man to man, is h impossible? Direct Thy Church, O Lord, in all her petition for pear."

We come to-day praying "for the manifestation of unity" through out our denomination. "Christ prayed for it. So must we. It is easy to talk about it. It is easier still to cry hurnh, and clap or hands when others talk about it. But we must get beyond the talking stage into the praying stage and doing stage. In this case praying will be doing. Take it to the altar with you. It is around the akir that unity must be manifested. It is at the foot of the altar that we shall learn the will of God. When Christians the world over roke their passion for unity. . . something wonderful will surely happen Nothing less than this will win the day. The spirit of separation is that kind of a spirit that can be cast out of the Church (this organization) by nothing—save by prayer." Let us pray and work for mix. United we succeed. Divided we fail.

Gone Home.

Sixty hours after we left the St. Louis Convention, last December word was flashed over the country, "Rev. W. G. Parks is deal." The entire denomination was shocked. Strong men bowed their best and asked, "What meaneth this?" The answer has not come. We can only say, "Thou, God, knowest." Doctor Parks served well acceptably as Vice-President of the National Baptist Convention for a number of years. He was paster of one of the best and larged churches in America. Under his leadership, Union Baptist Churtistood in the forefront as a contributor to Foreign Missions and Christian education. Doctor Parks was a tower of strength in the denomination.

Philadelphia lost another one of her great pastors, the Chiman of the Foreign Mission Board. Rev. A. R. Robinson. For number of years he had devoted much time and attention to the come of Foreign Missions.

That grand old man and stalwart defender of Negro ideals, Do Harvey Johnson, fell at his post in Baltimore during this year. was Indeed a mighty oak, and when he fell, he left a great raculy space against the sky.

Our own Emma B. Delaney went home from Fernandino. From January. She left a rich legacy to the denomination in really Africa and hundreds of African trophies saved through her miration. No American Negro woman has done so much as Belaney for Africa's redemption.

We should memorialize her achievements and contribution way that will teach each succeeding generation that it pays to the supreme sacrifice. Her life, given up for Africa's redemption, did note to inspire this organization to larger service between 1900 and 1905 than any force that has been set to work to make friends for Africa. Let us not forget her whole life inspired us to attempt great things for God in the Dark Continent.

What form of a memorial will this organization build in appreciation of Emma Delaney's service?

One of the desires of her life was to have Clara Walker, her african daughter, colucated at the Training School. The young woman is in our institution and is making a fine record. The Ohlo women paid her expenses last year. We will see to it that the girl is properly taken care of and that she is fitted for service in her own land.

Perhaps the best memorial that we could erect would be a Memorial Home at the station at which this girl will work.

Underwriters

At the St. Louis meeting, two recommendations designed to help local leaders passed unanimously. The first was a plan to conduct in connection with our annual meetings, a School of Methods, and the other was in keeping with a common demand on the part of our women that we bring to this meeting some of the students from the Training School, as had been done in former years. The expense in connection with these two recommendations is necessarily enormous, but we have tried to carry out the request as far as it was possible and practicable.

We could not conduct the School of Methods according to the original plan, for the reason that the distance was too great for those who were requested to Instruct in the School to assume, personally, the expense of the trip, but we have by no means abandoned the plan. The Convention will, doubtless, meet more centrally next rear, and the capable teachers who would have come this year but for the expense, have promised to serve and are prepared to do some very intensive and effective work. The local leaders will go back to their homes prepared to put new life into their organizations.

The program this year will be helpful and interesting if all who nave been asked and are expected to cooperate in nutting it over will devote themselves enthusiastically to their tasks.

We have brought to this meeting five young women from the alg School. You realize that the money so generously and the pledged by the following underwriters at St. Louis is not sufficient to cover the expense.

Mrs. A. H. Gaines, of Missouri, gave $3.00.

The following contributed $5.00 each.

We thank those who have paid their pledges and we hope that those who have not will do so before the close of this meeting.

In order to get the girls to the coast, your Secretary was compelled to leave the office long before she should have, and at a time when she felt that she should have remained at the school.

Why the Secretary Did Not Go to Sweden

Your Corresponding Secretary will never be able to express her gratitude and appreciation to the women for offering her the opportunity to attend the World Baptist Alliance at Stockholm. She knows the condition and needs of the work and, after thinking the matter over very carefully, decided that, for the following reasons, she should forego the pleasure and oven the hencest that would come from a trip to Europe:

First—The Convention is heavily in debt. I would have begged the money for the trip from my triends and the regular condinency. I would feel like a highway robber if I were to take the moon that is needed for the work and spend it to go to Europe.

Second—I am among those to whom the Convention is in debt.
I have had to do without my salary for several years in order to build my the work.

Third—The meeting of the Convention in California means callivation of new territory and tremendous expense for railroad fare. Some one had to stay here and plan and work in order to make a creditable showing at this meeting. The fear is that the railroads will get all the money this year unless our workers have tried to do more than usual

Fourth—The Training School is in dire need of money with which to pay current bills and to make some very necessary improvements I could not go to Europe with these debts unpaid.

Fith—I would not add another straw to the heavy burden I could not have enjoyed the trip, because I know the work needs the money. It would be selfish to permit the Convention to make mas present of a trip to Europe when you are not able to pay me what you owe me. It is far better to be just than it is to be generous. I can more for the work and its success than I do for myself and my pleas ure. The trip to Europe would have been as helpful to me as a set tence to the penitentiary.

Our work is at the place where somebody must make the supress sacrifice if it is to live.

There will be an important meeting of women from all parts of the world in Europe during 1925. If the work is in such shape as to stand the strain, and if your Corresponding Secretary is so related and situated that she can be spared, she would like to be sent as your representative.

is speaking of great occasions, it is not too early to suggest that, if organizations like ours are asked to take part in the Sesqui-Centennial Celebration to be held in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, during 1925, that we prepare to present our work in a highly creditable way.

The Trip to the Coast

We are indebted to a number of our friends in the West for having aranged for the entertainment of the Quintette, in many places albout any expense to us, and in other with very little.

Our trip to the coast is in interest of our Trades Hall and Central Healing Plant, the cost of which will be two bundred thousand dollars ($200,000.00).

The Corresponding Secretary stopped first at Gary, Indiana, where one of the best friends to our work, Rev. Charles E. Hawkins, had arranged a meeting and delightful entertainment. His brother, paster of Trinity Baptist Church, gave us our first hearing at Chleago and, as is typical of the Hawkins, he put his heart into it and gave us a splendid hearing at the opening of the Sunday morning service.

at Chicago, the first stop with the Quintette, the people were most hospitable and responsive. The Pilgrim Baptist Church, under the leadership of Rev. S. E. J. Watson, threw open their doors for the Union Mass Meeting. Splendid meetings were held with the following churches and organizations: New Mount Moriah, Rev. Coleman, pastor; Original Providence, Rev. Carter, pastor; Bethesda, Rev. E. T. Martin, pastor; Rev. Johnson, pastor; Second Baptist, Evanston, key, I. A. Thomas, pastor; First Baptist Church (white) Evanston; Woman's Auxiliary to Bethlehem Association. Joliet, through the infuence of Rev. J. T. Spivey, gave us a fine audience. All of the Chicago engagements, except those with Woman's Clubs, were planned by Rev. I. A. Thomas, Trustee of the institution and Secretary of the Trustee Board, and Mrs. C. D. Trice, member of our Executivo Board. These two friends were untiring in their efforts to make the visit a success. We made a number of new friends—white and Colored-for our work. It was the good fortune of the Secretary to be entertained in the home of our own Kathryn Johnson, assisted by ber aunt, Mrs. Laura Anderson. Right royally did they do it. One of the most valuable contributions made to the work on the trip was made by a Chicago business woman, our friend, Mrs. Clifford Johnsen, who not only contributed generously to the work, but for every hour of the time put her limousine at our disposal. It was a tremendous help to the cause, because it enabled us to reach people and places on time and without effort,

We had to rush from Chicago to fill a Chautauqua engagement heiore the Nebraska Assembly, Lincoln, Nebraska. In referring to lat engagement, the Lincoln State Journal, a white daily, said, "A gro woman, Miss Nannie Helen Burroughs, of Washington, D. C., gave in chief address at the Epworth Assembly, Friday afternon, proved to be one of the finest orators ever heard on the Assembly platform." Our Quintette made such a splendid impression that they were invited to give a special program Sunday afternoon and did so with credit to their institution and to their race. We spoke twice to Colored audiences, at meetings arranged by Rer. If W. Botts, whose church assumed entire responsibility of the explase of the Quintette.

Our next stop was at Omaha, where the Reverend W. F. Bott not only gave us a great and distinguished audience, but arranged for our entertainment and did everything that was humanly possible to make the visit pleasant and prolitable. Rev. and Mrs. M. H. Whinson shared with him in all of the arrangements and thus the three gave us a mighty good time. The local paper, "The Modifor in referring to the visit to Omaha, said, "As a speaker, hiss be roughs stands without a peer. Her diction was elegant; her command of chaste, classical English is masterly; her delivery is force that and dramatic; her eloquence is compelling; she is not a dreame, but a doer. No one who heard her clarion call to service and sarilice could remain unresolved to address himself or herself, in his own sphere of usefulness, to the great task before us in this land or our nativity with a determination to do his or her best."

We had planned to go ou to Denver, but at the suggestion of Doctor Botts, we decided to stop at St. Joseph and Kansas City. This report is being written at the latter place. Through the Interest of Reverends McNeal, Bowren, Holmes, Bacote, Wilson and Booket, the Executive Board is entertaining us at Western Baptist College. This institution is presided over by the capable and self-acrifting Prof. Clement Richardson, who is ably assisted by his most efficient wife. The Baptists of Missouri have, in these two people, unusual leaders around whom they should raily, because they are not solveapable but willing to put Western where she belongs.

But we did not tell you of our stop at St. Joseph, the most quetal town in the whole state—and it showed its royal blood by the way in which it entertained our company. Most of the places excelled in size, but not one in quality of spirit and entertainment. Rev. C. Prince Is a prince in all that the word implies in a democracy land his capable wife left no stone unturned to make the will a success.

As we prepare this report, there is but one thought in our that and it is a song of gratitude and thanksgiving. As we have sand across the country, we have met thousands of people—many of our former friends whom we have not seen for several years—and to have made thousands of new friends, and have said again and again. "Thank God for our new friends, and thank Him a heap more for the old ones, whose interest has not abated, whose faith has developed, and whose determination to stand by us and to stand with so in the stringgle is greater to-day than it was ten years ago.

We shall spend a day with one of our Trustees, Rev. W. I. Voung, of Topeka, Kansas, and his aplendid wife, our triend and former associate worker.

Friends in many of the Western states were greatly disappointed because we did not plan our ftinerary so as to visit them. They are urging us to make another trip and we here promise to do so lust as soon us we possibly can.

To all we are grateful. The need sown will bring forth much fruit. Our list of white and Colored friends has been greatly increased.

Mrs. E. E. Whitfield

Eterpity alone will reveal the value of the service that Mrs. E. F Whitheld has rendered this Convention. She closes this year as full of faith, enthusiasm, optimism and determination as she was fiteen years ago.

It has been our pleasure and privilege to listen to the testimon es of a number of outstanding men and women in the denomination. They have been unstituting in their praise of the value of her message to the churches, and with one accord, though in different places. they have said, "she is a wonder!" And she is. Her spirit of devotion is a thing divine. She has lost herself in the service.

No woman of this generation has a clearer vision of the needs of our people. You have but to read her monthly reports to see that she is a close student of social conditions and the needs of our people weigh heavily upon her heart. Again and again she tells the office that we must put on the kind of program that will do something to get our people up out of the mire.

She has visited hundreds of homes and an average of one church a day for the 365 days. She reports to August first, $3,372.94.

Mts. Whitfield is insisting that we get out the kind of literature that can be distributed freely, without money and without price. She suggests that this literature deal with home and community improvement, better service, and above all, she feels that we should do more to teach our people how to act on the streets and in public

Her appeal for the Negro girl has been heard in every state in the Union and from hundreds of platforms. She plead for the Laundry so that we could give deserving girls a chance to earn their edu-

She should have a full month's vacation at the close of this meeting. She has earned it, and to give it to her is but a feeble way in which to express our appreciation for her valuable service.

To ministers, workers, churches, and organizations that have belped to make our work, through her, a blessing, we are sincerely grateful.

Our Gift Shop

This Convention inaugurated the Needle Work Exhibition and Sale some years ago. For several years, it was conducted most satisfactorily. A number of states took up the idea,

We discontinued it for two reasons: First-For two consecutive years we did not receive the patronage and encouragement sufficient to warrant its continuance. We worked hard to secure gifts and a number of delegates would waste money for a good time and trifles and would not encourage this phase of our work by taking home a small token Second-The War came on and prices went up. People were not able to make gifts as they had in former years. We have been requested to ary it again. This year we are conducting the Giff Shop. It is not large, but you will help our cause by patronizing it and taking home a souvenir.

Next year, the Shop will be larger and more attractive. We are now soliciting Gifts for the 1924 Shop. Gift collectors will be appointed at this niceting. We need your cooperation to make this tubre of our work again attractive and profitable.

Sig. 11.

Sale of Literature Increasing

Office records show that we have doubled the sale of literature during the present year. Thousands of pages of printed matter him been distributed. The continuous call for plays and programs for special occasions is increasing. We have preed capable women of this Convention to write plays and pageants. Mrs. M. H. Wilkinson is the only woman who, in response to our appeal at St. Louis sen in a story to be put in tract form. Her "Glorified Back Yard" will be available for missionary societies early this Inil.

The Pledge Charts have not been printed because the fultial rest was greater than we have been able to stand. The women are in sisting that we give them some kind of a chart. The original multicolor engraved chart was gotten out before the War. The chan that has been planned by your Secretary will not be as brilliant in color but will, we hope, be just as attractive,

The national Topic Cards are gaining in favor. We are supplying thousands of them to the local societies.

The Constitution for Red Circles will go to press the early parof October. It would have been ready for this meeting but for the fact that we were compelled to be on the field.

The "Worker" has not appeared regularly, but it is still being issued. We are soliciting subscriptions. May we have five hundred new ones at this meeting?

The Study Book, "The Child and America's Future," price for cents, is on sale at the literature table. Our records show that we had an unparalleled sale of Study Books last year. It is very evident that more and more the women in our local eccleties are he giuning to realize the value of information.

The secretaries of the local societies are using our splendid record book. It was made to insure correct record keeping. If you are not using the book, you should examine it before you leave this convention and see that your organization is supplied with one. Itsale of these books is increasing most satisfactorily. We want to supply five thousand missionary societies with them during the nest year. "A Record Book in Every Society on Our Roll" is our sloger

You will find Guides and other literature on sale. We have been able to help thousands of women in missionary so cieties in small churches. Women who have never been to these netional meetings write us every day asking for information as to how to organize and develop their work. In fact, we have said again and again, the Macedonian cry comes to our desk every day from even section of the country; one continuous cry for help in some direction. The requests are so varied that you would think we were rusping a Bureau of Information, dealing with every subject under the sun.

These requests for information are not confined to women, but they come from men, and represent every class in America.

Men in the penitentiaries who read Negro papers, tell us how much they appreciate the work we are doing. Unnumbered requests come from men who want us to find work, wives, or give them instrutions by mail on every subject from "How to Become a Railway Mail Clerk" to "How to Make Plg Raising Pay." They write telling how they have lost money on all kinds of investments and asking bow to redeem their lost fortunes and how to build great enterprises. They are constantly asking us why we do not start a school for men at hors It was very difficult to satisfy one man who wrote for a catalogue He had heard a great deal about the Training School and was exceedingly anxious to enter. He simply requested us to send him a catalogue. We sent it. He returned it stating that we had made a mistake and sent him the one for women and girls instead of the one for men and boys. He wanted the latter by return mail.

MINUTES

Letters from women cover every subject under the sun in which ant sex is interested. They want addresses written, jobs secured. daughters educated without money and without price, information as to how to build hospitals, children's and old folks' homes, how to on the missionary societies, how to put out a president who cannot read the Bible and who does not know how to spell her name but insists on being president in spite of the fact that there are canable women in the church. Others want to know how much authority the meter should have over the missionary society, what should be done with mission money, how to start hairdressing pariors, who is the president of the state convention, can the officers of a missionary society be elected for life, how to raise children without trouble. Many ask us to send plans by which they can teach Negroes who are coming up from the South how to take care of themselves, buy homes, and stick to one job until they have made a success of it.

We are constantly called upon to act as umpire in the settlement of differences in churches and local societies. Leaders disagree impossible, they send us an S. C. S. call. Cases of this kind have and try in every way to settle their differences, but when they find it to be handled very diplomatically and prayerfully.

You might think that such letters come occasionally, but our mail is loaded down with them. These cases would be amusing but for the fact that our correspondents take their troubles and needs most seriously. They mean business and we are compelled to handle them with sympathy and dispatch, and in a businesslike way. But, after all, variety is the real spice of life. There is nothing humdrum or sordid about our correspondence. We are conducting a Big Variety Business and carry on our books hundreds of satisfied patrons.

The 1923 Study Books

Both races are indebted to Mrs. L. H. Hammond and Mr. George Haynes for the light which they threw on the Negro question in their hooks, "In the Vanguard of a Race" and "The Trend of the Races." two books on the Negro question have ever had a wider reading nor rendered greater service in a single year. Thousands of women in every section of the country studied these books with appreciation for their literary quality, invaluable information, illumination and spirit.

hooks started more than a million white women thinking in definite way on the Negro question. Verily, these books were sown at the right time that will do more than anything that has een attempted during the past fifty years to give both races the right millude of mind and to force the inevitable conclusion that cerisin physes must stop since the two races are living here together and can and must help each other.

The 1 Hooks lifted the race question out of the realm of feeling and sentiment, where it does not belong, and put it into the realm of reason, where it belongs.

In addition to this contribution, scores of our great magazines gave space for an unbiased discussion of the question. Negro newspapers carried some splendid editorials full of sense, sound advice and sanity, and that without bias. In thousands of churches the question was presented by Negro and white speakers. Negro mask was given place on attractive programs. All of the Chantangua and Summer Schools of Missions had the question brought aquarely before them. People were anxious to hear the truth.

Your Corresponding Secretary addressed scores of white andences of all denominations in every section of the country. Aside from that, she spoke in every white church of prominence in Washington and met personally thousands of open minded women and me. She is convinced that American Christians are beginning to learn that the Negro needs and must have, in every section of this country, a fair opportunity to enhance his powers and a fair chance to show, by deeds, what is behind the curtain of black.

That the Negro has never had a real American chance was revealed in the two great Study Books of the year. One thing about the Study Books that impressed the real student was the fact that while the authors gloried in our marvelous achievements and made us feel proud of them, they did not blind us to the things yet to be attained. The result is that thousands of women who had not considered the question seriously are at work trying to do all they can to abate existing prejudices. These women are convinced that America cannot evade the responsibility of creating an atmosphere of respect, protection and justice for the Negro.

The Negro, on the other hand, has been reassured that, regardless of prejudice, rampant and unreasonable, there are friends and forces in America that are dedicated and consecrated anew to the fine task of helping to get the Negro on his feet and helping him to establish his going.

The Study Books for 1923-24 are on sale at this meeting. They deal with child life in America. While the author has not gone into an etaborate and detailed presentation of the needs of the Negro child he says enough in a few sentences to make missionary and social welfare workers realize that the welfare of the Negro child is just as important as the welfare of the children of all the other handicapped groups of our country.

Our women in their local circles must study this hook and, in the meantime, get valuable additional information as to the needs and conditions of Negro children of the rural and urban section of the country. Put this question squarely before your church and community.

The problem of the Negro child is serious and important and in this year of study, we must marshall the facts and put to work the forces that will greatly improve educational living, playing, and working conditions for children of our group.

We hope that Mr. Haynes or some other capable person will contribute, during the year, a series of articles on "The Negro Child and His Needs"

Here is an opportunity for women who can write pageants to make a strong appeal For children By children. This is the year in whise can enlist our young people for effective work. The Directors and Organizers for the Girls of the Red Circle will be able to a list thousands of young people and children if they are intelligent and alert.

Let us make this, in deed and in truth, the Children's Year, Pageants, Plays and Pictures will help mightily in putting the job over.

Memorial Fund.

We have started the Memorial Endowment Fund, recommended in our 1822 report. The plan is to use the interest from this fund to resist poor but ambitious country girls in the continuation of their education. Educational opportunities in the rural districts are limited. Some of our finest girls go as far as the schools provide and, for lack of funds, are cut off from pursuing high school, secondary, college or professional training. We are losing some of our very finest young women in the rural sections where school facilities are limited. Contributors to the Memorial Fund are asked to pledge ten dollars a year for ten years, in memory of a relative or friend. Have you a mother, father, husband, child or friend whose memory you would like to perpetuate in the education of a girl who, in turn, will become a blessing 46 her race?

This Memorial Fund will be invested and only the interest used to pay the tuition and board of the beneficiaries. The name of the relative or friend memorialized will be put on the Memorial Endowment Fund Tablet in our new Trades Hall.

Are you women who have been active in this Convention going to allow your work and interest to end at the grave? Are you going to rest from your labors without seeing to it that your works follow you, that your memory is perpetuated, that you leave a lasting evi-Memorial Fund and live as long as the work of Christian education is dence of the fact that you passed this way? You can invest in this fostered by the Convention.

You can keep the memory of some loved one green by always having a representative in the Training School. Think of what it will mean when we have hundreds of young women carrying on the work for us when we are gone. The life and perpetuity of our institution depend upon this.

Work for Local Societies.

Too many of our local societies are dying of old age and inactivity. It is impossible to keep a society going without a definite and a new and attractive program every year. Many of the leaders are trying to keep life in their societies by simply using the topic cards and giving the regular Bible lessons. These are necessary, but other material must be used.

Modern societies, with wide-awake leaders, are using the Study Books. Sometimes the Study Books are not suited to our group. They were admirably suited last year, because they dealt with the Negro Question, and we were surprised not to find every Negro acciety in the obiled States studying them. Every white missionary society in the country studied the Negro Question, but there are thousands of Negro that do not even know that the study course last year dealt with the Negro Question. This was due, of course, to unenlightened leadership.

At this rate white people will know a great deal more about us, in a definite, concrete way, than we know about ourselves. We think that, because we are Negroes, we know all that there is to be known about the race, its needs, conditions, hopes, dreams, aspirations and achievements. We do not! At the end of twelve months of study, Negro women are far more ignorant on the race question than white women. White women took the time to sindy us—to study every phase of the question, and, as a result, millions are enlightened. Our leaders in local societies must read more and exert themselves more to make out a yearly program that will callighten and inspire their group.

This year, we study Child Life in America. The book is within the mental reach of women who have not had school advantages. It can be put within the reach of all, if the leaders will take the time to study, get full of information, digest it, assimilate it, and pass it on. This year, our societies should study Child Life, needs and conditions, organize Red Circles and, as suggested in another part of this report, organize a Compaign against Loafing. The latter would give opportunity to be of service in the civic life of the community.

"Learn Something Worth While and Teach Others," is the slogan.

Foreign Missions.

This organization has more women, graduates of our Training School, on foreign fields than any other organization engaged in educational work among Negro women. Our graduates are working under the Lott Carey and the Foreign Mission Boards. All are readering splendid service, but need money for the work and for themselves. They are making great sacrifices.

We are now educating African girls to go back home and join the forces in the evangelization of their own people. The Holy Tribity Baptist Church, Brooklyn, New York, Rev. T. S. Harten, pastor, has pledged to be responsible for the education of any one of the Africangirls that will be sent over within the next two years. Educating Africans to send back to Africa is a more valuable and practical place of Foreign Mission Work than educating Americans to send to Africa. Let us see that African students—girls and boys—are put in our best schools, properly educated and returned to their native land for

The Training School.

The institution is in its fourteenth year. The 1922-1923 lerm showed a high water mark in attendance and in the development of a fine school spirit and real team work.

The enrollment, as usual, taxed our limited quarters. We crowded and are still marking time because we need room.

Students were enrolled from twenty-seven states, Africa and tentral America.

Twenty-seven received certificates and diplomas.

There are now eight buildings on the campus and they are to repair. This is the year in which we must put one or two cost of paint on them. We must keep the hill white and green. The buildings must not be neglected. For that reason, eare asking each individual friend or organization to give one gated the content of the

be done this fall. Will the women at this meeting pledge to paint the hill white before the end of October? The workmen are ready to begin. All we need is the paint.

The Trustees in their June meeting voted to raise money for the coal for the coming year. Our coal bill for 1923 has not been naid in full.

We wish to express our thanks to several women who promised at the St. Louis meeting to pay for a ton of coal and have done so. There were others who piedged to contribute to the Student Fund. Several have paid their piedges and a number of others have not.

For our dormitories, we need twenty-five (25) comfortables, fifty (50) unbleached sheets, and one hundred (100) pillow cases. All of these gifts can be supplied if the women who attend these meetings will bring the matter to the attention of their local organizations. We beg you to do so.

The Laundry.

Th Sunlight Laundry, built to help deserving students, is the most practical and sensible thing we have ever done. We are doing work for accres of the most distinguished families of Washington, including senators and cabinet officers. We need ten thousand dollars more to put into the machinery. The business is growing so rapidly that the investment becomes absolutely necessary. We have a force of forty women and men. Machines will cut it to thirty and do ten times as much work.

The Laundry has made many new friends for us, and it has also strengthened the faith and interest of our old friends. They have not only sent us enstoners, but have made it possible for us to add accessary equipment.

One line friend in Syrucuse, New York, who knew how we had been strained to build the Laundry, decided that, since he could not make a big contribution outright, he could contribute in a way that would bein us to help ourselves. He instructed the manufacturers to ship us a new model pressing machine. He placed it on his own account and wrote us that he was very glad to help us in that way and would give us three years in which to pay him for the machine. That contribution is invaluable. It immediately cut out the wages of litre women.

Our work has grown, and we must install a larger boiler, add several more pressing machines and wheels. The outlay will be large, but at the present rate we will be able to pay for all of our machinery within the next two years, and after that, we propose to make the laundry take care of our teachers' salaries.

What we need now is help from you with which to put in the necessary equipment. The sconer we do it, the faster our business will grow. Money that is now, going for outside hand labor can go into machinery and eventually into our treasury.

The friends who have contributed to the building and equipment has Laundry have done more for the institution than we can estimate unless we are permitted to follow the girls out into the world and be account of their contribution to their communities and to civilization students a chance to earn while they learn is an opportu-

The Laundry offers another opportunity. It gives us a chance to practice what we preach. It gives us a chance to prove that we can conduct business according to the same fine standards set by those who are doing the work in a first-class way. It proves that in sflictent service there is no prejudice.

We propose to make the laundry open the door of opportunity to hundreds of Negro girls, and in the meantime prove that Negro women can conduct one of the hig industries of our country according to high standards set by the leaders in the laundry business.

Foreign Students.

Our Foreign Students are giving a good account of themselves. Most of the organizations and friends who pledged to help are keeping their word. We do not receive half enough money to cover their expenses. Again we appeal to local societies to pay at least one month's expenses ($20.50, including inusic).

The Frances Harper Club, Ithaca, New York; the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, Mineteenth Street Baptist Church, Washington, D. C.; and the Ohio State Convention, Mrs. Johnson. President; have kept their annual pledges for the support of Foreign Students.

We received several pledges at the St. Louis meeting. Of this number, Mrs. Brockway sent in her pledge of one month's support and Mrs. Broughton paid her Memorial Fund Pledge. Alabams, through Mrs. R. E. Pitts, sends $100.00 for Foreign Missions.

Several of the organizations have already joined the Systematic Givers' Club and are keeping up their monthly payments. The women must realize that twenty dollars a year from a state convention, and live dollars once in a while from a missionary society, is not the kind of financial support that must be given to huild ap a national organization.

The influence of the Convention, and the tangible work done by it is sufficient not only to challenge larger giving, but to demand and except it.

Systematic Givers.

Many of you have received letters asking you to make monthly or annual contributions to the work, instead of glving spasmodically. The amount is not stipulated. The plan is to secure a large number of givers.

There are thousands of men and women who could give a dollar a month. There are many who can give more, and there are many more who are not able to give a dollar, but they can give something

The plan is to make the systematic Givers' Club very popular and very large. We are soliciting members at this meeting, and will keep up the appeal until we have enrolled at least five thousand people who will give regularly to the support of the Training School.

Pantry Week.

October 20th to 27th will be Pantry Week.

It takes over $1,00,00 to supply our sugar, flour, meal, polates, cereals and canned goods. We want to save that money to put into our Building and Central Heating Plant Fund. For that reason, we ste calling upon circles, clubs and individuals to fill our storeroom during Pantry Week.

We shall be grateful for any of the above mentioned articles. Do not feel that your contribution, bowever small, will be despised. It will be added to others and thus count in reducing our hill for staple groceries. If you cannot send but one pound of sugar or one can of corp, beans, peas or tomatoes, send what you can.

If each friend will respond, we will receive enough to run the insitution during the entire year. You have no idea what a tremendous saying this will be. Smail gifte like these might seem insignificant to you, but they are an expression of interest and of willingness to cooperate. Then, too, they represent a saving of nearly two thousand Bollers.

Articles may be sent by Parcel Post, Express or Freight.

There are many of your friends who will be glad to contribute. Call upon every woman in your block for a gitt. You will be surprised at the response.

Join us in making Pantry Week a two thousand dollar success!

A Chance for Promising Young Women.

Many girls who do not desire or cannot afford to take up professional nursing have a natural bent towards some line of the profession. For that reason, we have added a splendid course in Practical Nursing. Young women of sound health, eighteen years and up, who have had at least two years of high school training, are eligible. We can secure positions for those who complete the course (one year) satisfactorily.

There is an increasing demand for home nurses and health teachers. One of the foundations working among Negroes is interested in keeping us well. They have studied the health problem in rural communities and are anxious to help improve conditions.

The Negro loses over two hundred million dollars a year from preventable diseases. A half million Negroes who do not know how to keep well or how to get well when they are sick, stay in bed the year round. A quarter of a million Negroes could be kept out of their graves every year if they knew how to live. We spend over fifteen million dollars a year for funerals. It would pay Negro lodges and raternal organizations to hire practical nurses to teach their members how to keep well and how not to die, for, after all, the way to keep well is not to swallow something but to learn something—then live

Thousands of bables and children can be saved by health teachers. Do not forget that health has a moral value as well as a money value. It makes for dependability and poise. It implies a stable earning capacity.

The Negroes moving northward need definite and regular instruction in the art of living? Perhaps the greatest need is in the rural sections. Thousands of our poor people could be saved long and intense suffering. Thousands of others could be kept well and at their work, but they do not know how.

The first class will open at the beginning of our school year. We are looking for twenty-five (25) of the best young women in the country. Put us in touch with one in your community.

Bank for Us.

We must raise five thousand dollars ($5,000.00 on our heating plant. We have ordered a supply of pocket banks folding five dollars, to be used in the November Raily. They will be placed in the hands of friends to be filled during the month of November. The money will go into our Central Heating Plant Fund.

The banks must be filled and returned promptly.

Please leave your name and address at the literature table it you can fill a bank during November.

We Must Enlist the Young People.

Our churches are in imminent danger of losing their most valuable and vital force. The young people in the white churches the country over are becoming more and more interested in Christian work. Young people of all ages are being attracted and enlisted for service at home and abroad.

The question naturally arises, "What is the matter with the young Negroes?" The church has made them what they are. The churches have given them or their parents the opportunities for education and leadership. Call the roll, if you will, and you will find that nine-tents of our young people, who are in positions of influence and opportunity, are where they are because of the direct influence of church agencies. To allow them to ignore this fact is to encourage base ingratitude.

While we will stop long enough to call attention to some conditions that have caused indifference or antipathy to religious work on the part of our young people, we must make it clear that no race can advance rapidly nor safely without developing its spiritual power. No life is secure nor successful that does not acknowledge the value of highly developed spiritual powers.

The question why Negro young people do not take an active part in religious work can be easily answered, but that they are lacking in dynamic influence must not be overlooked. They are not active. First, because few parents set the right example by intelligent, enthusiastic consistent aervice. The interest of Negro parents is too superficial and spasmodic to inspire and enlist observant, investigating and enlightened young people. Second, there is too much wrangling in religious organizations. Such conduct does not appeal to intelligent, forward looking young people. They do not understand what it is all about. Third, young people must be given some definite work to do. They will become interested if their money is used for definite, constructive work. It is fair to them to state the facts as they are. Their position, predicted on these facts, is tenable.

The forward looking ones of this younger generation will not be easily exploited for religious nor commercial purposes. On the other hand, if we do not enlist our educated, capable young people, the Negro race will be left far behind other races that are making the development of Christian life and Christian institutions their main objective. The new civilization is going to be highly spiritual and, unless the young Negro prepares and enlists, the Christian forces of his day will develop and dominate a civilization in which he can have no part-unless, like others, he has something to contribute.

The call is here made to the women in every church to organize two Red Circles—one composed of children between nine and twelve, and the other for the teen age girls. We shall organize, during this meeting, the National Red Circle. In the future, every local society will be asked to see that the Girls' Circle sends at least one delegate to the National each year.

Our Young People's Day must be made the Mountain Top Day of the Convention—the Day of Decision for the young people. The constitution and literature will be sent to those who desire to either gut a new dress on the old time Children's Band or to those who desire to organize new circles. The work must go forward. We need a Secretary for this department of our work. She should be a well prepared, keen and clear visioned young woman with all of the ideals necessary for the development of a healthy, growing and glowing young people's organization.

We suggest that we change the title, "Superintendent of Children's liands," to "Organizer and Director of Red Circles."

Leaders Who Are Bleeders

"Hold the ladder while we climb," is the audacious motto of a Negro organization bidding for members throughout the country. "Hold the ladder while we climb." sounds like a joke, but the organization is functioning and is, doubtless, being financed by a group of white people who insist on picking our leaders for us instead of allowing us to pick them for ourselves. These hand picked leaders should be congratulated for baving the moral courage to tell their followers what

The race has as leaders entirely too many parasites, deadheads, dead weights, and horse leeches to insure steady and safe progress. We are in imminent danger of being morally and spiritually bankrupt unless we repudiate the army of race "bleeders" who pose as race leaders—those who work in everything, from the church down, because of what they can get out of it, without ever thinking of what they should put into it. As a result our poor people are losing faith

If your ears are to the ground, you can hear them even now asking piteously, "Who shall deliver us from the body of this death?"

"Who shall deliver us from the body of this death?"

That organization with its motto, "Hold the ladder while we climi," states the situation in a nutshell. The pertinent and burning question of the majority of our latter day leaders is, "What is in it for me?" On the answer hangs all the law and the prophets. It there is bothing in it for these leeches, it matters not how much good it will do the masses, they are as indifferent as the dead or as antagonistic as

The Negro ship is overloaded with big little leaders and little big leaders. The ship will sink unless they are thrown overboard. The poor massos are being strained and drained to satisfy the ungodly ambition of those who are excited over their meteoric rise from penury to places of power and influence. Our poor, hard working, ignorant men and women are feeding hundreds of bouse leeches whose everlasting cry is, "More, more, more—more clothes, more houses, more automobiles, more food," while their poor victims continue to drudge, live in sbacks, grow up in ignorance, live from hand to mouth, and die in ignorance and neaury.

It is time to stop bleeding the people and help them. In large numbers, to get on the road to devent living and frugality so that they can enjoy simple but ideal home life. They will never do it until the leaders make the supreme sacrifice to help them. One-tenth us and nine-tenths down will never win for us a place of respect in a civilization like this. We have too few people living on the mountain and too many living in the valley. In a spiritual, moral and social sense, "Get them out and get them up," should be the slogan of every leader it is the slogan of the handful of constructive, unselfah leaders.

Education and Begregation

Students of conditions in the South put down the lack of educational opportunity as one of the reasons for Negro exodus. Social workers in the North who are making surveys are calling attention to the fact that thousands of the newcomers are not taking advantage of the unsurpassed educational opportunities offered in Northern schools.

It was thought that Negro young people of school age would revel in their new privilege, but several investigations in several cilles show that hundreds of young girls and boys of school age have gone to work instead of going to school. The young Negro must not serifice his future for the chance of earning a few dollars with which to buy finery and gewgaws. The North will neither wink at, excuse, nor condone ignorance. In a few years, the young Negro migrant will lose out unless he takes advantage of every opportunity and prepares himself for efficient service.

Education is the only agency that can secure and hold for the Ne gro a place from which he cannot be dislodged. Now is the time for the migrant to entrench himself in the economic life of America. Intelligence and skill will do it.

The Negro migrapt is spending entirely too much money for clothes, house rent, and pleasure. While it is true that many are buying homes, the majority are wasting their substance in rictous living.

As the Negro moves North, the question of segregation looms up Laws and custom weaken under the pressure of public sentiment. The only way for the Negro to hold what he has in the mixed schools of the North is for Negro leaders to set in motion social welfare agencies to leach mothers and fathers that the only way to win in the North is to live up to Northern standards.

If the schools are crowded with Negro children who are physically offensive, under grade, and uncouch, the situation is going to change and all the king's horses and all the king's men cannot preven it.

Negro children must be properly fed, and sent to school clear and combed. They must devote their time to study and not in attendance at cheap movies and on the streets. The only way to heat segregation is by living up to the standards and ideals of the community. Books studied, bath tubs, combs, brushes, brooms, and yard implements used religiously will do more to keep down or to break down segregation than all the protests and laws that can be made. This phase of the problem is ours to solve.

The hallot, if wisely used, can clean up Negro communities. Negro leaders instead of using the ballot to get themselves jobs, should use it to get better streets, lights, housing conditions and protection for Negro sections like Wylle Avenue in Pittsburgh, Decatur Street is At-

in spite of material progress, the Negro leaders have not started seriously and sensibly on the great task of getting the masses on a higher plane of living. To the credit of the masses, it must be said that they pussess the potential energy and willingness to move torward. The leaders are at war among themselves and are too seincentered and self-seeking to get together and put on a practical program that will insure the educational, economic, social and religious progress of the masses.

Alvairy and friction, together with waste of time and money in selfab ventures are the evils from which the whole race is suffering. Negro organizations headed by nobodies capable of doing nothing constructive, waste enough money to run a half dozen welfare organizations properly managed. But "What can we do about it?" is the question. Public sentiment is a compelling thing. We must educate through press and platform. We must cry aloud until Negroes have sense enough to stop, look, and "Let 'um alone."

Our future depends upon two things: First, Cessation of internal friction. Second, Elimination of waste of time and money. The leaders keep up friction and are also responsible for the waste or money and time by the masses. The race is in dire need of an unselfsh and constructive leadership.

Then, we have weights that must be laid aside. The Northern Army of Riffraff has been increased tremendously during this migration, and we now have a National Army of Loafers. Go to New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cleveland, and other large cities and see young Negroes by the thousands, looking desperate, dirty and dangerous, happing out all day and all night. They constitute a social menace and an economic burden. Somebody is being robbed, burdened and beaten to feed and clothe them.

Leaders in these cities, instead of fighting each other and exploiting the masses, should devote their time and influence and money to breaking up any political machine that protects this element and, regardless of the tolerance or indifference of the white community, should get in motion a Clean Up Campaign that will make these parasites work or leave town.

We women should join in this campaign, because these social loafers destroy thousands of young Negro girls every year. We must organize to not this National Army of Loaters to work. The race is too poor to carry them, and our reputation is too shady to have it blacked by them.

Work for Voters to Do.

We must stand with the Probibition forces in their fight against hootlegging and hootleggers. Negroes are doing their share of the business, but they are not doing as much as they are getting credit for. Thousands of them have gone into partnership with white men who but up the money and the Negro peddies the poison. The Negro gets caught and we get the credit for being a race of bootleggers. It is high time that we stop allowing curselves to be used to pull the chestnuts out of the less for other people.

The bulk of the money that is being put up to finance the International Association of Bootleggers is not put up by Negroes, but under

During the winter we addressed a Men's Club A white man marked, sarcastically, "Well, it seems to me that Negro man decided to quit work and go late the bootlegging business. The are running through our neighborhood like with people and it aem to me that you have a pretty big job on your hands to try to lift people who enjoy defying and breaking the law every minute in the duy. They must make a great deal of money," said he. "Do they give you any of it for your work?"

To this question, I replied, "Well, they are only partners in the business, but I know several rich white men who are financing then and I am going to ask them to set the example by heading my list so that, when I go to their ficutenants, I can say that their chiefs have already contributed."

The vote of Negro women will help clean up this situation Voters should support men who are pledged to clean up their wards of joint-louters and bootleggers. In working on this question, bear in mind that Negroes are, comparatively speaking, doing only a jiney business compared with those who finance them. Get office seekers to help find the source of supply. Cutting that off is more important than catching a few lieutenants.

The Dyer Antilynching Bill will be introduced in the next session of Congress. Negro voters of this country are expected to support that bill to a man. The women of this organization are urged to use their influence in creating sentiment in layor of its passage Write or go to see your Senator and Representative and find out have they stand on the question. If they are not right, see what you can do to get them right. With the Negroes of the country solidly behind the hill, it will go through both houses sailing.

We are nearing the national campaign, and our influence is lecreasingly powerful. Let us use it, not to get a few politican jobs, but to get legislation that will be helpful not only to our entire group but to all America.

Lynching is an indictment against Christian divilization. No American can evade the responsibility for it, and this government caunal stand balf savage and half civilized any longer than it could have stood half slave and balf free.

Financial Report.

The Financial Report is not printed here, but is issued as a supplement, because we recently installed a new system of bookkeping. The auditor did not come at the time scheduled and we were compelled to leave the office to take up our Western itinerary before the books were finished and audited. We were compelled to get this report out on the field (at Kansas City, Missouri), and it might be necessary to go to press before the financial statement reaches us. It is such a long way to Los Angeles that we are afraid to take chanes by holding up the entire report for the financial end of it.

This is the first time (and, incidentally, we might say the last) that we have been on the field instead of in the office at the close of the fiscal year. The desire to carry out your request to his girls from the Training School at this meeting made it necessary to us to leave Washington the latter part of July. We have worked under tremendous handicaps in handling the business end of our work but we believe the general cause has been greatly benefited.

Vision and Spirit.

The success of the work of this Convention depends upon the vision and spirit of the local and national leaders. Vision is at abstract and rather vague word. Schools, homes and welfare institutions give vision. Let us examine the word a little more closely to see its spiritual and moral significance.

Our organizations need people who can see life steadily and see it whole-leaders who can see the needs of the whole field. It is casy enough to see things that lie right in front of us in our chardcommunity, city and state, but organizations to be effective need leaders who can see still further. It is easy enough to work for things in our home town, but we need women who can lift up their eyes and see the whole field white unto harvest.

Then, too, vision implies times as well as place. It is easy enough to get people to work for quick results, but it is not easy to get those who can see over the hill of the years and catch a vision of the value of nespectacular, long range work. But such work is far more important.

What we are doing at Washington for Negro girls will tell in the development of the Negro race a hundred, yea, even five hundred years hence. That is long range vision—the kind that is needed to build a race and to build a civilization.

To short-sighted, narrow, blind leaders, the big question is whether it is going to help us right here and right now. Leaders of that calibre are unfit and unworthy of any trust. It is easy to see the value of a big rally to pay off a church debt, but it is quite another thing to get a Missionary. Society to see the value of selecting little Baptist head and Methodist body Sally Ann and educating her or putting her where she has a better chance to grow into a fine woman. Thousands of unpromising looking boys and girls, if educated, would become towers of strength in the building of a race. But who sees the work that way?

What we need is leaders with long range vision who can see fity or a hundred years bence and plan to that end. Shortsighted people cannot do it. This Convention needs a half dozen prepared women to conduct a Campaign of Education to help our people understand "what we are driving at," and why.

Then, too, the devil has sown seeds of discord, distrust, antagouism, suspicion and division in our ranks. Unless we get out and put the right spirit into our constituency, it will take twenty years to get this organization back to its place of influence and value where it was several years ago

We have lost momentum and spirit. Our material loss is nothing compared with this. When a group working as we are loses faith and spirit, it loses its most valuable asset. We must set ourselves to work resolutely to regain them.

The leaders in this organization should either work together and make this Convention the thing, in spirit, that it was ten years ago, or give the reins over to women who can and will do it. We must be welded together again if we wish to become a conquering unionhave before you the work to be done, and we close you 1923 message with the aunouncement that God wants (a woman you to do it. He wants "A woman who can see things; who can feel heeds: who can he stirred deeply by lacks; who will refuse to be complatent where chaos reigns; who suffers when good causes suffer; who says it is too had about had conditions and who means to her earts core what she says; who believes with all her might that had ags and dead organizations and lame methods and indifferent peose and languishing enterprises and untouched opportunities need not main such; who never despairs over any situation, where what ought to be a not; yho hopes, always; who has insighte; who sees the way is seeking the way; who dares to say, I know, on the basis of her lath, who is always sure, though never dead sure; who apreads ontagion of hopefulness wherever she goes.

"Wanted a woman to see and feel and believe in things.

"A woman can do things, and does them every time she gets the chance; who, having seen a worthy end, works towards it, though it be ten thousand miles away; who cannot stand the reproach upon herself of good things left undone; who believes that anything worth believing in is worth working for; who marshalls forces, and produces forces where they are not at hand; who has a knack or is hunting for one; who, charged with energy, charges others; who puts ginger into all she sels at and leaves out the mustard and vinegar; who is all on fire, yet never scorches people; who is humble enough to accept 'nobody's business' as her business; who says: Come on, let's do ti and then does it, whether anybody comes or not: who takes hold and lets go only for a new hold; who undertakes all she ought, peg lecting to ask whether she can.

"Wanted, a woman to do things, to do them hard and long and to-day.

"One such woman or something like her in each Church! What could not the Church get accomplished? One is a host. There is no Church so dead that one such cannot bring it to life, and set it upon a divine ministry.

"How is it in your Church? Perhaps the ranks are not so crowded but that you yourself might slip into this place."

Slip in and

Stand not in fear thy adversaries counting. Dare every peril, save disobey: Thou shalt march on, all obstacles surmounting. For I, the Strong, will open up the way. "Wherefore go gladly to the task assigned thee, Having my promise, needing nothing more Than just to know, where'er the future find thec. In all thy journeying I go before."

Respectfully submitted. THE EXECUTIVE BOARD.

True it is that it did not come forth as the musbroom or he so short-lived, but was the result of the foresightedness and page of many of our ministers and laymen. Long ago had the walleen organized into State and District Conventions.

The Convention of Western State and Territories had a war auxiliary. These movements gave rise to the hope of a war national organization that the work of kingdom building might done on a broader scale.

Prominent among the societies that had given tangible assiste to the Colored women were the Woman's American Baptis Hossian Society and the Union Mission Society, auxiliary in Southern Baptist Convention and prominent because of her with founding the Fireside Schools is the sainted Miss Joanna P. Personal pleasure has been the last consideration. Through a sacrifice and labor this Convention has to its credit the nos a gible results of its twenty-two years' service of any organization Negro women in the world, regardless as to its purpose.

The first efforts put forth tended toward Home and Foreign sions. So well has this mission been performed that thousand tracts have been distributed, hundreds of homes have received ligious visits, Bibles distributed and the womanhood of the ?ace been uplifted. The woman of the city has been brought in conwith the woman of the rural district and both have been helped.

The influence of this Convention has been felt in Africa. As the first foreign students to be received into our Training St were Misses Mary Buchanan and Delia Rudolph. Since this many have been trained for service in Africa, prominent as whom is Miss Jeannie Somtunzi.

A six acre tract of land was purchased in the city of Washin D. C., on Lincoln Heights, and on this a school, ideal for lea magnificently stands as a living monument to the sagacity and dom of its founder. The efficient faculty, strict discipline, on with the well equipped buildings and beautiful lawns, make the ideal school for women and girls in all America.

A priceless addition to the work of this organization has the Social Settlement work which was at first under the vision of Miss M. Helen Adams, a foreign trained worker, but under Miss Etta Versa, a Texas young woman trained in the hing School. By this means hope and cheer have been carried many lives. The "Shop" has also done much by way of apress the helpfulness of the school.

During the twenty-two years of the existence of this Contents sum aggregating $300,000.00 has been raised.

A form of systematic giving was inaugurated in "Stamp But day set aside for the collection of stamps for correspondence of office. New Year's day was first set aside for this purpose, being changed to the 12th of February.

The character of the programs has materially changed sat later years our women have listened to some of the most promen and women of our day. Women Lawyers. Physicians, be a Bank President, other business women, the President of tional Association of Colored Women's Clubs. Representation, N. A. C. Each epoch of history produces some characters preeminent and also make that epoch illustrious. The of our Convention. Some of our officers have had growth with the Convention. The foresight of the be commended for the fact that the women who during the entire life of the Convention are women perience whose qualities have been ripened and who satisfaction and brought this body before the notice of the forest convention are women.

beath has claimed two treasurers of this Convention. First, Dr. dikerson, of Kentucky, a physician passed on and was followed a few years by Miss Susie Foster, a public achool teacher, of homa. Mrs. D. Abner, a minister's wife of Texas, was elected resurer and was succeeded in office by Mrs. C. H. Parrish, of entucky, a minister's wife, former college teacher, and a leading tor in the Children's Home Finding Society of her State.

Another of our general officers, elected 23 years ago, has answered is find symmons. Mrs. S. C. J. Bryant, our Vice-President, a sinisters wife, Founder and President of the Bryant Preparatory shool, President of the Georgia Baptist Women's Convention, a sman of sterling worth, has met this Convention for the last time, or nineteen consecutive years her great force of character and shall disposition were decided assets in the forming of this Conmittee.

Her home going gives us an added interest in the "Home Over here." When we think of her we think with Tennyson—

> "Twere better to have loved and lost, Than never to have loved at all,"

Some of the most valuable assets to this Convention have been a feld workers, the most prominent of whom is Mrs. E. E. Whiteld, theorem is birth, a minister's wife, a woman full of zeal, to has delivered more addresses, visited more homes and raised one money and influenced more women than any other woman on a feld.

be music of the Convention has played a vital part in creating athesiasm. The beautiful solos and choruses of the Training School augmented by the efficient accompaniet, Mrs. W. F. kKinney, of Atlanta, Ga.

e are a few women who have attended each session of the bosoning. There have not been able to attend, but have helped maximity, thereby gaining for themselves divine approval.

Work has been the keynole of this Convention and each woman's orth is 'een measured by the work that she has done and the eight of the ambition of each is the privilege to—

After the strikes on the railroads had caused an indefinit a ponement of the Convention last year and just one day prior to regular opening day the final summons came for Dr. E. C. 10 the beloved and much honored President of the Convention. The half century of public service was brought to a close. Outstoo or his education, culture, board experience and statesmanille of tas, he had stood at the head of the Convention for twenty-Years.

Arrest the named of Dr. Martin is was deemed necessary to h the meeting refore the close of the year and St. Louis was said as the meeting place and December 6-11, the time.

The issue of paramount importance was the election of a cessor to Dr. Murris. In the vote of the Convention Dr. L. E. liams, of Chicago, Ill., proved to be the choice. For years a promi figure in the Convention, superlatively endowed both as to new spiritual ability, a wizard of organization, pastoring the larget! gro congregation in the world, all are sanguine as to the future

Two days after the close of the Convention, Dr. W. G. Park, Philadelphia, for a number of years its Vice-President, west let his Father. An able executive, a copartner with God, a his to man, his going has left a vacant pince in many hearts.

Last year our Convention elected as delegates to the Baptist Well Alliance in Stockholm, Sweden: Mrs. S. W. Layten, the Press Miss Nannie H. Burroughs, the Corresponding Secretary, and I E. E. Whitfield, the field representative.

Mrs. Layten, in company with Mrs. Fannie Givens and petal a score of ministers, made the trip. It means much to come is the sonal touch with persons and places differing from those to we are accustomed and she has returned far better prepared service.

We must be proud of our race, then organize and cooperate, and we shall be fully able to solve our problems. Migrants meet new conditions in the new homes. Friendly relations should obtain, to help our migrants adjust themselves to those new conditions. Miss Burroughs entered heartily into the entinelasm of the bow. The last speaker was introduced—Mrs. J. M. C. Amos, of Texa. Subject: "Christian Education." She said the whole man must be trained for social service, against skepticism, against materials we must place the spiritual above the material things and test the world that Christian Education is the power to save the world our Convention stands for the church and Christian Education. They should walk side by side in develoging our seopic, hence, our National Training School. Mrs. Amos grew eloquent is she spoke of the wonderful advance in science and art. We can not answer a child; who can answer the adult? After all, low little any of us know. Christian Education—the Saviour of mas kind. Rounds of appliance followed this excellent address.

This Convention has been deeply moved with grief and allegres sympathy for the bereft families, and the denomination feels keeple the loss of these leaders.

But, through all these changes may we see the hand of or Heavenly Father leading. For, who can understand His ways? The are past understanding.

Though gone, the examples of love, fortitude and carnest Christian service, shall ever bear record of lives well spent. Then may this be our sentiment:

"Not by lamentations and moureful charts ought we to Celebrate the funeral of a good man (or woman) But, by hymns, for, in ceasing to be numbered with mortals, He enters upon the Heritage of a Diviner Life."

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN MISSIONS.

We took hack at the achievements of the twelve months just pain our foreign mission work, with a feeling of thankfulness to an Heavenly Father, who has guided us through many gloomy bours all days of much anxiety up to this present time. His conforting prombe "and hold am with you alway, even unto the end of the world," he not failed us, and we take courage and press on in full confidence, be fleving that He who has begun a good work will complete it. We have had difficulties and many obstacles to face, which have tried at faith and patience, but we know if we are to go on obeying Carsillast command, it will not be along any pathway of ease, but as we have evercome the tremendous perplexities, we have learned as new hefore the power, love and friendship of God.

He lacks a vision who cannot perceive that a new day is teamlet in our dark and sin sick world. Men are crying for something position of constructive, and realize that, after all, it is only in the solid rock, that we may base life and hope. Men are beginning that the Redeemer of the world. The unevangelist have become more receptive to the message of the gospel. It is time has come on many of our fields and the harvests are ered in. Even on fields where there is large sowing in thing, a new openness of mind towards the gospel message and heathenism is crumbling. This is most hopeful.

A great Protestant Revolution is now taking place in Central and Fasiern Europe. People are turning from darkness to light in such large numbers that the figures are astounding. In one province alone, me million people have turned from Catholicism to Protestantism within the past three years. Russia is ripe and ready for evangelism. in Hungary, Poland and other countries of Central Europe, there are strong religious reform movements and evidences that people are hunary for true religion and vital contact with God. They crowd the churches and will listen as long as a man with the message of salvation will preach. Multitudes are ready to respond to an invitation to accent Jesus. Christians in Russia are reported to be suffering from much opposition and persecution from Bolshevist rulers. A large number of Russian church leaders have been put to death, only for the reason that they sought to unite Christians and were preaching the gospel of life and liberty in Christ. The persecution and general antagonism to religion that does not how down to the dictates of the Soviets is arousing Christians all over the world to plan help for Russians who seek to follow Christ. A ray of hope is expressed by Emest Gordon who says, that despite all the excesses of Bolshevism. is some places, a mighty movement is proceeding which is almost without parallel in the history of Christendom. In Siberia, whole villages have gone over to evangelical Christianity. In one town, three thousand were haptized in one day and in the government of Maskov, five hundred new Russian evangelical churches are reported. The Second All-Russian Territorial Council of the Orthodox Church convened in Mescow on April 29. The actions at this meeting brought the ecclesiastical and religious life of Russia into closer contact with the free churches of the West. The delegates went on record for the complete separation of church and state and for a return to the actual commandments of Christ, our Saviour. This will mark the beginning of a great reformation in the religious life of Russia.

There is a great awakening in China. Real progress in Chinese Christianity was shown in their National Christian Conferences at hanghai in May of last year, when the whole meeting was managed he Chinese. The Christian message was delivered to the Chinese fellow Christians by the Chinese, and the meeting marked the epoch the our hundred thousand Christians of China took steps to assume the leadership of the Christian movement in that great republic. nee in new movement in China known as the Spiritistic movewest which is reported to be rapidly spreading. Its weakness is shown is the confined intellectual basis, the opportunity for trickery, and the had fact it caters wholly to the literary and aristocratic classes. The tachings contain no idea or plan of salvation or redemption from sin. It is another evidence of the desire of the Chinese for the of life- if not for the only True and Living Way. Despite her lambes, flouds, earthquakes, strikes, civil wars, political disgrace and international complications, China's multitudes have turned toward tests thist. The true flight has abone. Last year more tonies of the hibbs were sold than in any of the most prosperous of steredie yea. Since the beginning of Bible distribution in China over thirt nillion cight hundred thousand have been scattered. One sludent of a base' school sold over twelve thousand two hundred in ten days. At the end of last year there was a combined evangelistic tampaign in a huge tabernacle in Canton, South China. The total attendance was one hundred thousand with two thousand two hundred ninety-eight converts. Last winter the churches were engaged in an extensive Social Purity Campaign, which, it is hoped, will accomplish much in elevating the moral tone of the city. Realizing that the greatest need of the Chinese church is trained leaders, the missioners forces in the field in Canton have united in the support of the Union Theological College, where they will prepare men to reach the whole city with the gospel message. The Rev. E. Stanley Jones, who made a recent tour in China, writes of the Christian army of General Feng-There are twenty thousand men in his army, and as far as appope knows not one man smokes, drinks, gambles, loots, or has a veneral disease. Nine thousand of his officers and men have become Chris tians. The National Committee of the Y. W. C. A. in China maintains on its staff, sixty-one Chinese women already trained for leadership among their own people. Nearly ten thousand young Chinese girls have already become members. In a flood district in China a missionary writes: "Our evangelistic force cannot begin to cope with the teaching of the hundreds of inquirers. At a word of invitation they gather and listen to the gospel preached and take tracts and Bible portions to read." Christian women in Hongehow, China, have or ganized into a society to get every Christian woman to do four things-1. To read the Bible. 2. To pray for objects beyond their own inmediate interests. 3. To contribute something. 4. To work to bring someone else to Christ. Just now missionaries are in the milst of a time of seed sowing. Never have the thoughtful people been so ready to listen to the gospel message. Opposition to Christianity has practically ceased in some fields. Men by the hundreds are coming to see that if the political and social life of China is to be saved in these days of transition from the old order to the new, she must look to the teaching of Jesus and the power of His endless life.

The influence of Christianity in India is having a wonderful effect. but it will be a long, hard struggle. Caste retards india's progress more than anything else. Her greatest need is a trained Indian Chris tian leadership, and this largely among the young. The missionaries plan to have enough village schools, primary, high, and Christiae colleges, to give religious training to every young Christian. The is the only solution for India's problems. The mass movement among the Indian outcasts are still in progress. One district reports four thousand five hundred haptisms, and many thousands waiting An Indian Mission Board of six Indian leaders and only two American missionaries, has been formed, which will take over a large part . the entire work in India, such as to conduct Christian work in its area, to train, appoint and supervise workers, and to secure and admin ister funds. The Bible already exists in every Indian vernacular o any real importance. In Bengal, the Christian women of education and ability fill responsible posts as assistant school inspectresses. speaks well for the "new woman" of India, that thus far, she been found fully worthy of her trust. This movement for sea-gov ment in India will have permanent results. Indian leaders is the In time, native leaders will stand beside the missionary, and replace him in the management and control of native Christianin.

The spiritual awakening in Italy is pronounced. One of the obvious forms of evangelical effort is the dissemination Scriptures, which in the past year has been larger than ever

The translation of the whole Bible into Italian has recently been completed; therefore, missionaries will be able to reach many bither(a autouched.

The Gospel is being rapidly heralded in Korea. In one district, in a single day sixty-six lepers were baptized. All were Bible students. In Germany, there is a revolt against the Church, and at the same time, there are some signs of religious awakening. Churches are laring a difficult time, but their freedom means new liberty and may mean new power. A new missionary association has been formed to intensity spiritual life and to do Christian work. Young people are breaking away from conventional forms of religion and seek to express themselves in practical, social ways. They need strong wise leadership to direct them in the Living Way of Christ.

In spite of lingering handicaps in Hungary, missionaries report a phenomenal increase. The people are heart hungry and flock to every precibing service

The trend of the Jews is toward Christianity. In Hungary alone, thirty thousand Jews have become Christians since the war. A mission in Budapest reports seven hundred Jewish baptisms during the past four years.

Great things have happened for Christ in the Philippine Islands and in the Isles of the Sea. Thousands of students are volunteering to become missionary workers. Before this year closes, we will no doubt lear of a great religious revival in this territory, such as these people late never before experienced.

Africa is a land of green and golden glory, but may still be called the neglected continent. If Africa is to be saved, she must be saved through her own native leaders. Other nations are not seeking large apportunities towards Africa's evangelization, and do not hear her pleadings to "come over into Macedonia and help us."

Our missionaries have been loyal and self-sacrificing. Their faithulness has been unfaiting throughout this year of anxiety and unorerianty. No one except God, will ever know what sacrifices have been made for the continuance of the work. We have suffered financially and spiritually, but our Board and missionaries have shown great courage to meet the situation. In spite of the heavy bucken of debt and overwhelming needs, they have refused to be utterly cast down, ut of the depths, prayers have gone up to God, and He is hearing and answering them.

The Rev. John Ntlahla in Transkie, South Africa, reports the work promising with the opening of a new building. Miss E. F. Butler at bashn Industrial Mission, Liberia, thanks God and the faithful friends for the help she has received this year. The hungry have been the naked clothed, the lost have heard the Gospel. Churches, " ors and massionary societies have sent money, books, cloth, medfein many other necessary things to keep the work going. Recently M's Butler reports having enjoyed a convocation of chiefs and bings in Suehn Town, through which she reached many children for the mission. Even though they have three buildings and a chapel, they are forced to turn many away because of lack of room. She needs money it which to repair the buildings, and to build a dermitory for boys, a larger chapel, additional class rooms for the girls an administration builtding and dining hall; she needs money to may the wages of four farm men so that food stuffs may be grown on our three hundred fifty acres of land there.

Miss Priscilla Bryan and Dr. Robert Sisusa at the Bible Industrial Mission, Liberia, have cause to rejoice. Many native boys are coming to the mission and begging entrance.

Rev. Horton at the Jordan Seminary and Training School, Man rovia, reports a new church opened for a neglected tribe near the city. Rev. and Mrs. G. T. Stevens at the Burroughs Industrial Mission Royesville, write that more children apply for admission than can be provided for.

Dr. D. S. Nichols at Cape Palmas, Liberta is proud of the fact that the government has granted our work five acres of land. School work is encouraging. Church membership has greatly increased.

Dr. W. T. Amiger, Superintendent of our work in Liberia is home to bring us the joys and sorrows of his experiences, and the pleading of those among whom he has labored. He comes to regain strength and vitality and to help Secretary East and the Board to raise fuels for the prosecution of our Liberian work. An organization known a Africa's Redemption Association has been formed this year for the purpose of training native Liberian men and women for service to

It is the purpose of our Board to establish a training and industrial school outside the city of Monrovia. Over four thousand dollars are on hand for its purpose, but the need is for fifty thousand.

To hear of the Pentecostal showers that have fallen on foreign fields is encouraging, but how discouraging to see the millions yet untouched with the gospel of Jesus Christ, the millions unshepherded over the seas. May Christ open our eyes and let us see the world is He sees it, feel the need as He feels it, and give unto us the same passionate desire to save the world that He always hed.

The meeting of the Baptist World Alliance in Stockholm. Sweden. has given workers in the great mission fields of Africa, India, China. Japan and Latin countries a great vision and a call to the dedication of all their strength to the advancement of Christ's kingdom.

Japan is the foreign theme in mission study this year, "Creative Forces in Japan," "Japan on the Upward Trail." "The Woman and the Leaven in Japan." "Young Japan." "The Honorable Japanese Far are among the books being studied. They are brimful of inspiration and helpful information, and should be studied in every misignary society.

To day the doors are wide open for personal service in foreign fields. To day is our opportunity. Clearly what is needed is the patient presentation of the teachings of Christ by those who live His lite of loving service: not seeking to gain any recognition for selves, but only to interpret God as Christ interpreted Him and to selve mon in need as the Son of man helped them when on earth. "" circumstances which confront us summon us to a renewed and God, to a firmer confidence in each other, to a more devoted consecration of life to the service of God and man. Every missions: society represented here in this Convention should be counted the Missionary Regulars, the systematic form of giving as by our Board. Every missionary society here should make month's contributions to our Training School in Washington, D. C. many girls from over the seas are being trained for service and their own people. We long and pray for universal ove, be to principles taught by Jesus Christ to become the principles rains to National life of the world, but not until we as Christian women re the vision of a lost world, study conditions in foreign lands and give more liberally of our money for the prosecution of the work, will we be carrying out the Great Commission to "Go ye, and make disciples of all nations." To this end we implore sincere prayer and united intercession coupled with unstinted sacrificial giving.

The world not ready to submit to the Supreme but the Influence of Christianity is recognized in the administration of all Christian governments. Cilizens of the United States are persons in the United States and those who have been nature.

They are subject to the laws of the country and privileged to enjoy all the rights guaranteed by the Constitution; yet, in the South, some cilizens have been dealed the rights of suffrage. If we do our duty, as editzens, we should enjoy all the rights of cilizenship. No doubt, the founders of the Constitution, meant to be just to all the cilizens. The irreligious cilizen has received the same privilege as the religious; however, greater responsibilities rest upon the Christian cilizen. By love and forbearance, rather than violence, Christian cilizen should lose no opportunity to make sentiment for the good of their communities with reference to all peoples. They can do this hy rightfully using their votes. The State was discussed, with reference to cilizenship; Suffrage was discussed and all Christians urged to vote and discharge their duty, toward the highest interest of their state and country.

She also thanked the friends throughout the union, for the courteeles extended her during the past year. Read her report as she gave it to us in print:

REPORT OF FIELD SECRETARY

Consider the Condition of the Field

I come to you with a message about the poor, needy people who have never had a chance in life! If we do not get them to stop and consider, many will be lost. Christ came to seek and save the lost!

I have done the hest I could with the work that has been entrusted to my hands. (This is the greatest satisfaction to me.)

In considering the condition of the field, days should speak and multitudes of years should teach wisdom. People have differed in all ages, and will continue to differ, but we must have a vision of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, and stop confusing our people. It haders them from going forward.

Let us have Christian fellowship the world over. The things we are suffering for most is Christian fellowship. . . "Do unto others as we would have them do to us." As soon as we can get this, we will be yokefellows—you pulling on your side, I pulling on mine: Team work working together for God.

The One who said, "I will be with you!" I am a witness that he has been with us. If we get into deep water. He will not let it errow us. He will be feet for the lame, eyes for the blind, ears for the deaf. God will do all for us, that we will let Him do.

Courtesy pays big dividends—so we should invest liberally.

More of our group to-day are reasoning their way forward, instead of merely drifting, than ever before in our bistory.

There seem to be some human impossibilities, but with God all things are possible. Let us be with God! Take Jesus with you, child of sorrow and of woe!

We will go deeper into God. It will be better for us farther on Trouble will not last always.

Have you caught the vision of social work? Oh, my slaters, I bee you, to consider more and more, your social responsibility. I know, you know, our responsibility to others. There is much in life that is hurtful. Tell the people of it! There is danger on the line of life. The time to tell the people about danger, imperore they get in trouble Do not wait to hear the groans of the injured. Tell them now!

There is a large field of service and a great opportunity to day for women's organizations, local, district, state and national. Our people are leaving the rural districts, going to the cities, and going wild over what are called amusements—dance halls, pool rooms, noring pictures that are not educational. They are wandering away from the church, and working on Sundays. Oil fields, lumber milk and factories are making new centers for our people. More missionaries are needed. Medical missionaries with sanitary advice are greatly needed.

We need more spiritual leaders that are quiet, tender and modes, to build character, to teach the people that it pays to see Jesus.

My sisters and my brethren, hear the cry of the lost bodies and sout! Hear the cry of the slums and congested quarters of sin is our cities. More workers are needed in God's harvest field—preaches, missionaries, kingdom builders, agents to raise money are all greatly needed; young men to preach, young women for missionaries and nurses.

God is calling for volunteers to find the lost! Whom shall I send! Who will go for us? I think we might apply the words of this hymn:

"Let none hear you idly saying. There is nothing I can do While the souls of men are dying. And the Master calls for you! Take the task He gives you gladly Let His work your pleasure be! Answer quickly when He calleth—Here am I—Send me, seud me!

Is there anyone here who will answer this call of the Master, and say: Here am I—Send me, send me! A prayer for consecration I am ready to train for service,

If so, write your name on a piece of paper and send it up to the President.

We have not had trained social workers all along, but we be them now and they are increasing every year. But we are that to our Heavenly Father for the old missionaries that carried the numbers in the heat of the day, made great sacrifices.

AND LAID THE FOUNDATION FOR YOUNGER WORKER. In old missionaries pressed their way through dark, rainy and misswamps. No one will ever be able to know of their sorrows, as their joys.

Vacation Bible Schools

Bible School Teachers, I hope you will set the woods on fire, that every woman may go from this Convention determined to have a Vacation Bible School next year in her community. I have seen the great good of Vacation Bible Schools for children. Some are much by volunteer teachers, children learning the Bible and loving the Bible. Children taken out of the streets and alleys and vacant bits made nice and clean and taught to grow up and not grow down.

I beg, in Jesus' name, save the children! Look backward or forward; you will see, it pays to save the children. Have you a girl or boy that you want to succeed? Tell the mothers and fathers! Stop, mother and tather, and consider your children! Stay at home, mothers! Patch, darn, make over old clothes, leave off finery, eat the things you need most, well cooked, served decently and in order. Leave off jurgy and extravagance; take care of your children! They must not be neglected. Your life is a failure, if your children are logt.

Poor, needy people to day are crying for protection. They do not want to be lost. If you are a soldier in the army of the Lord, come ont on the battlefield and take the world for Jeaus.

Let's sing: "Hark! the Voice of Jesus Crying," "A Prayer for Consecration!" "Blessed Saviour, Count on me!" Lam.

Yours for the redemption of the world to Christ.

MRS. E. E. WHITFIELD.

Lincoln Heights, Washington, D. C.

At the close of Sister Whitfield's address, upon her call, many came forward and consecrated themselves anew for the Master's service. Sone—'Count on Me."

Dr. L. G. Jordan prayed that all might renew their determination to do the Master's will on earth, even as angels do it in Heaven. Mrs. McDowell spoke of our only professional farmer woman. President Layten stated we should hear from her later.

Mrs. Nevada Stevenson made an interesting talk telling of our pleasure in having the Quintette to sing for us, and then presented Mrs. Kelly, who in turn gave each of the young women some tollet offering, as a testimonial of our appreciation.

By request Quintette sang—"Seek and Ye Shall Find." Special reference was made of the different girls who had made such a helpful contribution to our meetings.

Dr. L. G. Jordan, our pioneer Secretary Foreign Mission Board,

Rev. Bowling counted himself happy to be privileged to visit on Convention and present a Gospel message to us. Text-Ruth till Subject-"The Marriage of Ruth and Boaz." The builders of the house of Israel were Rachel and Leab, who were mothers. As mother of great men, they builded up Israel. Motherhood was exalted: Por single life all right: careers for women all right: but, without mother no nation can develop into what God would have it be. A family with one child means retrogression. The highest ideal should be families of healthy, strong mothers and fathers, with many children: accidents of sickness, death, and varied misfortunes should be taken into account. So, one or two children count little in building m race, but many children should be the goal. Mothers should could upon the sacrifices to be endured, and gladly accept them for the sake of their children. Rachel and Leah were real mothers, evel concerned as to the names of their children, the names being it nificant as to the lives they would live. Not only Rachel and Leab. but all good women of their day were desirous of children. Hamel the mother of Samuel and Moses' mother, given due praise. Vigin Mary, the mother of Jesus, stood by him, with her matherly love. and insight, even to Cavalry's Cross, and on to the Resurrection Mora When we talk of building up a race, we must consider the mothers. not women of wealth and high social standing; but rather women of purity, sobriety and uprightness of character. The builders Israel were careful, as to the marriages of their children; even a Abram was concerning Isaac; and as Rebecca was to see that Jame married the right kind of woman. Women owe it to themselve to be pure and beautiful as God purposed they should; using moderation in dress and be careful ever to consider health, as well as beauty, in planning for the adornment of the body. He said that women should be provided for; should be careful in selecting a lifetime companion; he should be known to care and provide for those he loves. Such an one will provide for his wife and children and eajoy the companionship and fellowship of his wife. Thus we shall work out the divorce evil and childrens families. The preacher closed with a beautiful fribute to Ruth, who was indeed a builder of Israel and because the great grapdmother of King David, who was one of the greatest kings and leaders of Israel and one of our Lord's ancessers.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON HOME MISSIONS

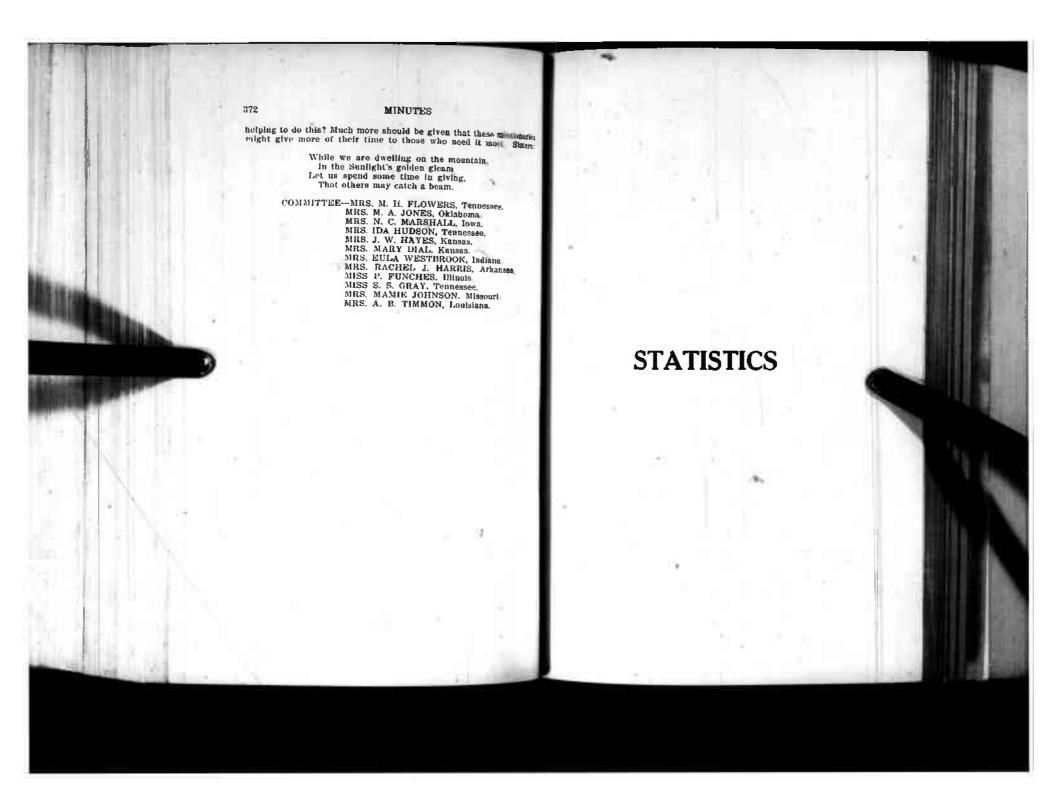

We your Committee on Home Missions, submit the following: Much attention has been given to a mere meager part of our Home Mission work but the work of Home Missions has not been clearly defined and many of our women are still in the dark regarding the real object of Home Missions.

First: Many of our women think that Home Mission work is helping the proor and needy in the church and community; I must admit that is indeed a very worthy thing to do, but it is not Home Mission work. That is our Christian duty. Now the Home Mission work is looking after the foreign people who come into this country, and giving the Gospel to them in destitute places; not only the Gospel of the Bible but the Gospel of training the young people to take care of home and seeking to teach others how to live in their homes, yes, to do this community work among the lowly people, not only the lowly and our own, but among all people, for Jesus Christ died to all the same and He would have us to make happy the hearts of the poor neglected of the races.

Our Home Mission work has not extended all over these United States and the Isles of the Sea as It should.

Sisters, we ought to arise to the great need of doing more for the support of Missions in the destitute parts of our home land. As an organization, we should have literature to spread, showing the work of flome Missions with its needs, and helping us to put on programs showing our work on the home field.

Convention is doing a work in nearly every state in the South with the conjectation of the Southern Baptist Board in helping us to put missionaries in the rural districts to distribute literature and each the people in the remote rural districts of our state. Are we
