EDITOR'S NOTE: There is a word missing in the April 9 ABP story, "Weaker faith-based legislation passes, but controversies remain."

In the fifth paragraph from the top, the opening sentence reads: "The provision was already a compromise with groups that explicit expansion of the government's ability to fund pervasively religious charities."

In that sentence, the word "oppose" was inadvertently left out between the words "that" and "explicit." Please change it so the new sentence reads: "The provision was already a compromise with groups that oppose explicit expansion of the government's ability to fund pervasively religious charities."
