

SOLVE YOUR BAPTIST INFORMATION CRISIS

by

Reading This Baptist Historical Journal

EVERY WELL-INFORMED Baptist needs to read Baptist History and Heritage, a historical quarterly journal published by the Historical Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention. Since 1965 this 64-page journal has helped Southern Baptists know their history by publishing informative and interesting articles on numerous facets of the history of Baptists. Writers have included professors, denominational leaders, missionaries, pastors, and students. Excellence in content and authorship make this publication a must for the libraries of Baptist institutions, churches, pastors, denominational leaders and church members. By reading this journal you can learn much about your Baptist heritage.

The symbol of the liberty bell and the cross on the cover of this leaflet, accompanied by the words "Let Christ's Freedom Ring," reflects Southern Baptist participation in the Bicentennial celebration of the United States. Early Baptist leaders were important agents in securing religious liberty for all Americans. This illustrates only one of the exciting dimensions of Baptist history that are made known through the Historical Commission's journal.
