Dear Friend of Koinonia:

Yep, you're right. That's what it said. KATALLAGETE. You're holding in your hands a complimentary copy of a new magazine that's actually called by that name.

Any way you look at it it's both an eye-ful as well as a mouthful. KATALLAGETE (Cat-ah-LOG-eh-teh). Unbelievable. People just don't give names like that to magazines.

True, but this is no ordinary magazine. That big word -- KATALLAGETE -- says something big. It's the Greek word which Paul uses in Second Corinthians 5:20 when he cries, "Be reconciled to God." That's high-sounding stuff for "Get in the go with God."

A group of us called the Committee of Southern Churchmen believe that God is going places these days and that he's mighty anxious for us to go along with him. We think there are things to be done in his world that can't be accomplished by laws or money.

So we publish KATALLAGETE. Despite its stuffy name and at times, I confess, some stuffy articles, it says something powerfully important every now and then. That's why I wanted you to have a copy of it.

Look it over. If it doesn't say anything to you, put it in File 13 (the wastebasket). If it rings a bell, or even makes a tinkling sound, send two bucks (scarcely more than the cost of one pound of Koinonia pecans) for four issues of KATALLAGETE. Address The Committee of Southern Churchmen, 1207 Eighteenth Avenue, South, Nashville, Tennessee 37212.

Sincerely,

Clarence Jordan
