were granted. But there are other national interests and in the judgment of this Government...

It will be seen from the accompanying correspondence, that when the condition referred to was first proposed in the Chamber of Deputies...

The United States cannot yield this principle, nor will she do so except on terms which will be beneficial to her.

So great, however, is the desire of the President to see the restoration of peace...

Influenced by these motives, the President will cordially co-operate so far as his constitutional powers may be required...

WASHINGTON, FEB. 15. The undersigned, his Britannic Majesty's Charge d'Affaires...

The undersigned, his Britannic Majesty's Charge d'Affaires, with reference to his note of the 27th of last month...

The French Government has stated to that of his Majesty, that the frank and honorable manner in which the President has, in his recent Message...

It was supposed that this subject was originally introduced by the Hon. John Forsyth...

between two nations who have so many interests in common, and who are so entitled to the friendship and aid of each other...

The undersigned has the great pleasure in reiterating to you the assurances of his most distinguished consideration.

CHARLES BANKHEAD.

Hon. John Forsyth.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, Washington, Feb. 15th, 1856. The undersigned Secretary of State of the United States has had the honor to receive...

The undersigned has submitted the note of his Britannic Majesty's Charge d'Affaires to the President, and is instructed to reply...

The President has further instructed the undersigned to inform the Hon. John Forsyth's Government his solicitude at the anxious desire it has displayed to preserve the relations of peace between the two nations...

Leaving the Majesty's Government to the auspiciousness of the elevated motives which have governed its conduct...

CHARLES BANKHEAD.

(Correspondence of the Southern Patriot.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22, 1856. Mr. Benton presented the credentials of Robert J. Walker, as Senator of Mississippi...

After the Message and documents were read, Mr. Clayton expressed his opinion on the termination of the controversy...

When I see persons at one time extremely courteous, and at another, without apparent cause, to proceed in an indifferent, I am led to conclude there is a bad mixture.

When I see persons more disposed to regulate matters ahead, than at home, I think there is a worse mixture.

When I see Christians more disposed to regulate their conduct, than to regulate their hearts, I think there is a bad mixture.

When I see people polite and affectionate to common acquaintances, but deficient in duty and kindness to dependent relatives...

When I see persons at one time extremely courteous, and at another, without apparent cause, to proceed in an indifferent...

A man who kept a conscience, and who was not afraid to stand up for his principles...

"To-day, the Hon. Richard L. Manning, of your delegation, presented the credentials of Mr. Pinckney, and proceeded with the reading and discharging of the report...

We understand that Gen. Hernandez's dwelling house at Mala Campa has not been burnt, but is in a ruinous state...

Further Hostilities at the Mouth of the Rio Grande. According to reports received from Mesquero...

Yesterday, Isaac Linn, and Willis Nettles ran after hogs a little below Mr. Barry's, when they were met by a party of Indians...

Capt. Jackson, of the Revenue Cutter Jefferson, has returned from his late cruise on the Keyes near New River...

Owing to the difficulties in bringing the militia into service, with which the State is contending, he has assigned the situation of Brigadier General, and accepted that of Lieutenant Colonel...

From the American Register.

"I DON'T LIKE THE MIXTURE." Two men came journeyed together, one of them rode a white horse the other a black one...

"I don't like the mixture," was the reply. "I have often thought this answer to be very comical, and in no indifferent case."

"When I see Christians more disposed to regulate their conduct, than to regulate their hearts, I think there is a worse mixture."
