"Do you know what you're going to be when you grow up?" Charlie Brown is asked in a "Peanuts" cartoon.

"Lonely," is his reply.

According to a recent headline in The National Observer (August 12, 1972), "Everybody is Lonely." Loneliness, the ensuing article claims, is the most pervasive fear in our society.

What is loneliness? It is not just being alone, although many persons who must live alone know loneliness. But periods of solitude have often marked composed, healthy lives.

Even a life which is thronged by other persons can be invaded by loneliness. Sociologist David Riesman described modern society in terms of a "lonely crowd." Never before, he contended, have persons lived so close together on the outside and yet been so far apart on the inside.

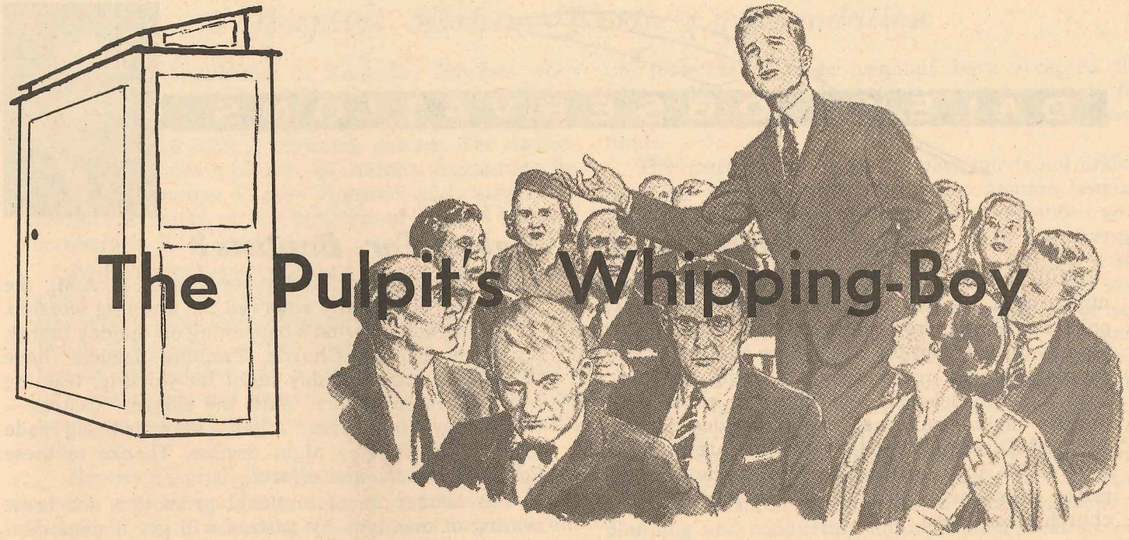
Loneliness is the feeling that no one knows you and cares for you as you really are.

Jesus realized what life in the "lonely crowd" could be like. He saw the crowds, "harrassed and helpless, like sheep without a shepherd" (Matthew 9:36). He faced the onslaught of loneliness that Friday when "all forsook him and fled" (Matthew 26:56).

Jesus offered lonely persons the way out of dehumanizing isolation. He revealed a more intimate and fulfilling relationship than the world had ever known — friendship with God. He disclosed himself honestly to the disciples and molded them into a caring, redemptive fellowship of friends (John 15:15-16).

But this fellowship was no closed clique. Those who had found the friendship of God in Christ were turned outward to become "friend-makers" for God. The reality of the relationship which had supplanted loneliness stirred their appeal: "On Christ's behalf, we beg you, let God change you from enemies into his friends!" (II Corinthians 5:20 TEV).

Today no person has to remain in the "lonely crowd." Hope and healing for loneliness abound in the congregation which has become an honest, caring fellowship of friends and "friend-makers" in Christ.



The Pulpit's Whipping-Boy

By C. DeWitt Matthews
Midwestern Baptist Seminary
Kansas City, Missouri

Helmut Thielicke, magnificent German preacher from Hamburg, says that there are two principle ways in which a man should preach — declaratively and confessionally. I've often thought about his insistence on the priority of these sermonic approaches.

Obviously, some preachers do more accusing in their sermons than declaring and confessing. In fact, they have a habit of giving a steady diet of analysis of their congregation's failures, pointing out in the process the weakness of the institutional church and what Christians generally ought to do, but don't do. Sometimes these men lacerate their hearers with such pointed verbal scoldings that the congregation seems to be the pulpit's whipping boy. Frankly, even a little of this kind of preaching sometimes is too much and, I believe, does little good in improving a congregation's attitude and performance.

Now and then, sermons are needed that point out a people's shortcomings. But men who often preach accusatively may be actually, though inadvertently, confessing their own failures without openly admitting them. Psychologists call this process projection — thinking about one's own misdeeds but calling them by someone else's name. Such highly accusative men may be bordering on an inner sickness that stems from their own insecurity. This illness may express itself in demogogic harangues.

But a man who habitually declares with an inspiring flourish the great truths of God's provisions and expectations will usually draw others to respond to God's mighty acts.

Likewise, it is healthy for the preacher as well as for the congregation if the sermon puts the preacher's failures along-side of those his people are experiencing. Ministers are very human men and should never pose as anything else. Most of their people will love them all the more if on occasion they preach confessionally — frankly admitting how far short of the ideal they themselves fall.

But preachers generally shy away from this kind of "disrobing," thinking that it will cause their people to lose respect for the ministry. On the contrary, confessional preaching, when sincerely and artfully done, is so refreshingly different from the usual "do as I say, not as I do" kind of sermon, that congregations, I have found, respond to it appreciatively. After all, most church-goers already know that preachers are not "little tin gods," but men with clay feet whom God has called to serve other clay-footed pilgrims.

When a preacher makes a habit of analyzing, accusing, fussing and blaming congregations, he's usually erecting in his people's minds great walls of hostility. Consequently, many of them fight back, either by actively opposing his efforts or simply boycotting services. They know they don't have to endure his tongue-lashings, so they absent themselves. After all, who enjoys being brow-beaten, especially when the blows fall in public with no adequate chance for a congregation's rebuttal?

Admittedly, preaching should be corrective, but, as in disciplining children, accentuating the positive usually gets the desired response more rapidly than will a fussy effort to fix blame on a congregation.

All of us know ministers who need to learn that inspiring people with sermons is one of the best methods to get them to do right.

A competent church staff member recently told me, "Our preacher beats on us so much that we feel we're doing nothing — but I know we are. The fact is, we're not that bad, nor are we failing so ingloriously. But he rarely sounds the positive note and he'd choke before he'd compliment the people for what they've already done."

In the same vein, a faculty colleague when returning from hearing a blisteringly accusative chapel preacher, said, "When I attend worship I resent being bludgeoned to the ground, for what I need most is to be lifted to God."

How unfortunate that some preachers don't see the distinction!

The tender Robert Murray M'Cheyne, though dying when still young, had learned the proper tone for preaching. Once, when listening to his fellow ministers report on their sermons, he was appalled when one volatile young cleric vehemently said, "I preached on 'and these shall go away into everlasting punishment'." M'Cheyne then quietly asked, "Were you able to do it without weeping?"

Accusative sermons, if used at all, need to be done with the tenderest compassion. So, if the preacher will declare with enthusiasm the great acts of God and confess his own failures in the same context in which he describes his people's, he will more surely be a part of the redemptive process.

DALEY OBSERVATIONS

What About Sunday Nights For Baptists?

Will Baptist churches soon be dark on Sunday nights with evening training and worship activities only a memory from the past? Is Training Union already dead except for a gasp here and there? Should people who get up to attend morning worship and even Sunday School be expected to come back on Sunday night? Isn't one worship service on Sunday enough? These and similar questions are often asked over coffee cups by Baptists though they are rarely raised in business meetings or discussed officially in church committees.

An honest answer to the first question is that at the present rate of decline in Sunday night attendance more and more Baptist churches will follow the example of many congregations of other denominations in calling off Sunday night activities. There are notable exceptions but Sunday night is an embarrassing sight in many Baptist churches.

Our first tendency is to bemoan the spiritual decline of this age and talk about our fellow Baptists who have deserted the Lord's house for some place or activity of their choosing. We wish for the good old days when the Sunday night crowd often outnumbered the morning congregation and Church Training was not far behind Sunday School in attendance. We are certain we could have these again if only Baptists were not so spiritually cold.

It is not that simple, however. We forget that in the lifetime of many of us society has changed from basically agricultural and rural to industrial and urban. In the good old days the church was about the only place to go and it served a social and even a recreational need as well as a spiritual one. Today's affluence has given many church members trailers, boats, cabins on the lake and other recreational equipment which they never had before. The countryside and even small towns have been largely emptied of young adults who have gone to cities for employment as machines more and more replaced them on the farm. Modern technology has provided many enjoyable things like color television which in turn has contributed to the professional football mania whose weekly cultic activities often coincide with the Church Training period on Sunday evening. In addition to all this is the stealing of the Lord's Day by greedy businesses which requires employees to work during regular worship hours and which tempts Sunday shoppers with super specials. Many of these business shrines begin their Sunday services at 11 A.M., the same hour historically reserved for morning worship.

Taking note of what's happening on Sunday nights, Southern Baptist Church Training leaders have launched a "save Sunday night for worship, training and fellowship" effort. With the slogan, "Church — the Sunday Night Place," a noble effort is being made to stem the Sunday night decline. Thanks to these for their concern and efforts.

But neither denominational promotion nor brow beating of members by pastors will get it done. Unusual gimmicks including contests and spectaculars of many kinds are a temporary boost but are generally short lived and often leave the patient worse off than before.

How a church member spends Sunday and Sunday night is a revelation of the extent of his Christian commitment and spiritual depth. It is not that God is a scorekeeper putting stars by our names for every time we go to the church but if we truly love the Lord we will long for the special day and special place to meet Him and our spiritual brothers and sisters.

A popular and growing view among Baptists is that we can do anything we please on Sunday after we have gone to church. And so we like the early service, especially in summer, because we can get our obligation to God over and have for ourselves the rest of the day. Drive-in early worship services in beach attire, with trailer hooked up and an itch to get going are growing in popularity.

What does this say? Actually it says Sunday is ours and we favor God by giving Him a little bit of it. It's like pinching off a little piece of candy to give to the one whose it actually is while keeping the bar for ourselves. Sunday is the Lord's, not ours. How much of it is to be spent in specific worship, learning and training activities is up to Him. Sunday night is still Sunday. If the Lord wants Sunday mornings and Sunday nights, He has a perfect right to them as well as all the time between.

When it comes to Sunday night in Baptist churches, it is not a matter of saving the Church Training hour and the traditional evening worship hour. It is a matter of saving ourselves from spiritual starvation, a fruitless life without training and a woeful accounting to God for taking for our fleshly gratification what he has provided for our spiritual renewal.

A Hospital Ministry Worth Commendation

If all the ministries of Kentucky Baptists were as successful as the hospital ministry, we would have fewer worries. By all standards Kentucky Baptist hospitals have been a crowning success. The dedication last Sunday of the $6 million expansion facilities of Central Baptist Hospital in Lexington is another example of the progress of Baptist hospital ministry in Kentucky.

While many have had a part the one man due most credit is Dr. H. L. (Burt) Dobbs. Starting with one financially struggling hospital years ago, Dobbs has led in the opening of two more model healing institutions and another one is under construction. Dobbs is a wizard himself and adds to his stature by surrounding himself with unusually competent associates.

Baptist Hospitals, Incorporated, under Dobbs' leadership is to be commended for an expanding healing program while receiving less and less financial aid from Kentucky Baptists. In the era of construction of the existing hospitals Kentucky Baptist financial support was much more substantial than at present. An annual appropriation of $100,000 for many years has been reduced in recent years to $40,000. Dobbs and the directors of these hospitals have accepted the cuts without complaint which is most unusual for any Baptist group sharing in Cooperative Program funds.

The operation of successful hospitals is not understood by some Baptists who might assume because it's a Baptist hospital treatment can be provided with or without payment of the costs. With the average cost of hospital treatment about $85 a day for a patient it is easy to see how a hospital could not stay in business long without receiving payment for services. Even as it is our Baptist hospitals do thousands and thousands of dollars worth of charity work each year. Only a fraction of this is provided from the Mother's Day Charity offering taken in churches and Sunday Schools each year.

Dr. Dobbs, Central Baptist Executive Vice President Ben Brewer, Public Relations Director Cecil Lea and other hospital officials left no stones unturned in planning and conducting appropriate dedication services for the new facilities at Central Baptist Hospital. All the activities were in keeping with the highest standards. The commendation and appreciation of Kentucky Baptists are properly directed to these leaders in our healing ministries.

PROTECT 'LIBERTIES'

Dear Editor:

I want to commend you for including the following articles in the September 2 issue of Western Recorder: "How Duped Can We Be?," "Unbelievable Inconsistencies," "Political Pressures of the Rich," "McGovern Pledges Aid to Parochial Schools," and "House Committee Hears Major Clash on Parochial Aid Plan."

I pray that the many religious freedom-loving persons in Kentucky who read this magazine will be stirred to action. As Leo Pfeffer (renowned defense lawyer of church-state separation) stated in New York, October 2, 1971:

"If the people of the United States abandon their obligation to be vigilant in the protection of their liberties, perhaps they don't deserve to enjoy them. . . . We have been derelict in our duty as citizens, and we have nobody to blame but ourselves if we lose. The battle must be fought initially in the legislature, not initially in the courts. The courts are the last resort. But you simply cannot say to the courts, you've got to do it. It's too much for the courts alone. The people have got to fight the battle or it will be lost in the end."

In order that you may become better informed and actively involved, I invite you to join Americans United for Separation of Church & State. This organization has been defending the principle of religious freedom for 25 years. OFFERINGS AND WORSHIP

Dear Editor:

Thank you for your splendid editorial in the September 9, 1972, issue captioned "The Offering Should Be A Part Of Worship." I agree wholeheartedly with every word of it. What a hollow mockery to pray an offertory prayer and then pass empty plates through a congregation of worshipers!

I was a member of Parkland Baptist Church for many years. The deacons took the offering and, after giving each man a plate, the head usher passed before them and each deacon placed his envelope in the head usher's plate. The whole congregation saw their deacons setting the examples as they worshiped God with their tithes and offerings.

Recently you reported on an interview with Carl Bates on the occasion of his retiring from the presidency of the Southern Baptist Convention. He expressed concern over the diminishing attendance in our Sunday schools and our other organizations. He said there was nothing wrong with our Sunday Schools that a rediscovery of Arthur Flake's book, Building a Standard Sunday School would not cure. As one who has taught that book countless times, I completely agree with him.

These two views, yours and Bates, expressed by two of our denominational leaders, give rise in my heart to the hope that brighter days may lie ahead for Southern Baptists.

Colleges And Schools May Not Share In 'Coop.' Overage Funds

By Bob Terry
Associate Editor, Western Recorder

All the excitement over aid to Kentucky Baptist colleges and schools from the 1971-72 Cooperative Program overage may have been premature.

For a fact, the $115,375.62 overage is there, but it may not be distributed according to the Christian Education Advance formula as reported earlier by the Western Recorder in former executive secretary Sander's column, in a news story and an editorial.

This possibility arose Friday, September 15, during a routine check of facts by this writer. While attempting to determine when the motion specifying that all Cooperative Program overage would go to capital needs, Garnett B. Morton, business manager of the KBC, and this writer discovered a previous convention action regarding these funds. That action stated that all overage funds in the 1971-72 Cooperative Program budget would be evenly divided between the Cooperative Program and Baptist student centers (1970 Convention Annual, page 96).

Here is the history of the issue as it has been reconstructed at this time.

In March of 1970, the Executive Board's finance committee considered specifying that all 1971-72 Cooperative Program overage would go into capital needs. This was in accordance with the 1970-71 budget which carried a similar stipulation.

However, this was rejected and the committee recommended a 50-50 division between the Cooperative Program and Baptist student centers. In the 1969-70 budget, all overage had been designated for capital needs for Baptist student centers.

The 50-50 division was approved by the Executive Board in May of that year and ratified by the November, 1970, meeting of the Kentucky Baptist Convention. It should be remembered that the budget adopted in November does not begin until August of the following year.

In August of this year, when it became evident that there would be a sizable overage in Cooperative Program receipts, the finance committee of the Executive Board voted to divide the overage funds according to the CEA formula.

The apparent confusion may have resulted from a general recommendation approved by the convention for the 1972-73 budget which states that "If the Cooperative Program receipts exceed the total budget goal, the overage shall be for capital needs" (1971 Convention Annual, page 99).

Finance committee chairman J. T. Miller of Whitesville said in a telephone interview, "I guess we just all goofed. The capital funds had been designated in the 1970-71 budget and the 1972-73 budget so we just let it slip by."

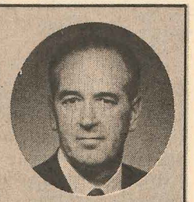
Miller added that he was sure the committee would rescind its action since it conflicted with a KBC adopted motion.

"No checks have been written," continued the former convention president, "so no harm has been done." Miller added that the committee adopted proposal would have needed Executive Board approval before it could have been official under any circumstances.

Executive secretary Frank Owen commented, "Fortunately these funds are not disbursed and we won't disburse them until after the next finance committee meeting at which time I am confident we will carefully consult the 1970 convention action and comply with it."

DISTINGUISHED — The late Mrs. J. W. Jesse, right, is shown with Kentucky WMU executive director Miss Kathryn Jasper as they hold a "Distinguished" citation for the WMU of Jenkins Baptist Church in Pine Mountain Association. On the table are achievement awards earned by seven WMU age-level organizations. Mrs. Jesse, who died August 30, was church WMU director at the time of the picture. The Jenkins church was erroneously listed in "State Week of Prayer" materials as not giving to the state missions offering until last year. The correct information is that Jenkins church consistently leads its association in contributions to mission offerings. Last year it gave $228 of the total $592.84 given by Pine Mountain Association for state missions offering.

Preach Preacher Preach



FRANKLIN OWEN
Executive Secretary, Kentucky Baptist Convention

For some few years now it has been "stylish" to disparage preaching as well as other traditional worship activities which are carried on inside the church. "Do the demands of the Gospel, but quit preaching at people." This article is to "heist" a different tune.

Preach, man, preach. There is a body of doctrine to be proclaimed and transmitted from generation to generation. Somebody must proclaim Biblical truth or the Christian faith in the world will lose its guidelines.

Christian action originates in Christian beliefs. "... and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher?" (Romans 10:14b) The Bible records sacred truth. Hungry souls yearn for more of the truths of God and their meaning than is transmitted in action. In the words of Jesus, "... Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." (Matthew 4:4)

Not for the world would I downgrade the importance of the deed, but I resist the error of him who wants to cancel or reduce the use of the method by which the potential deed is planted in the heart, namely the preaching of the Word.

No passing error of man can long stifle the proclamation of Christian truth through the ancient art of preaching. The people are too devoted to it to allow this.

I know the church needs to do other things too, but how in the world could Christian people of our day get so twisted up in their thinking as to cast stones at the church for doing at least this much of what it is commanded to do.

The souls of men need the church community and the communication of religious knowledge is the most appreciated activity of such community.

People hunger for the application of the best minds and voices to the sacred Scriptures and their meaning. They will gather to hear it proclaimed like human beings gather at the table at meal time, because it is to them spiritual bread.

If you neglect preaching, people will go elsewhere to hear it. If you quit it, they will get someone else to do it in your stead. I say, the people are devoted to it and God still blesses it. Don't let misguided people discourage you. Preach, brother, preach.

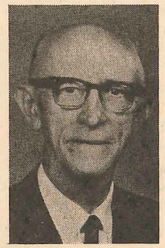
—Frank Owen

1,000 Expected At Campbellsville Gathering

Upwards of 1,000 men are expected to attend the annual Baptist Men's Convention October 5-6 at Campbellsville Baptist Church in Taylor County.

State Brotherhood director Forrest Sawyer pointed out that this meeting will mark the return to the starting place of the annual meetings. In 1959, the state Brotherhood department sponsored the first statewide convention which drew about 400 participants.

Heading this year's gathering will be Glendon McCullough, executive secretary of Southern Baptists' Brotherhood Commission, and Vance Havner, popular revival and Bible conference speaker.



Havner

McCullough

McCullough will bring a special message on the final session of the convention. He is a former executive with the Home Mission Board and state Royal Ambassador secretary for Georgia Baptists. A graduate of Southern Seminary, McCullough is also a former associate pastor of Druid Hills Baptist Church in Atlanta.

Havner is considered America's most traveled evangelist. He left the pastorate of the south's oldest Baptist church, First Baptist in Charleston, South Carolina, to enter full-time evangelism in 1940. Since that time he has authored 26 different books and led countless revival and Bible conferences across the country.

He will speak at the first two convention sessions on Thursday evening and Friday morning. A special feature will be "Reflections by Havner" during the dinner meal Friday.

Also appearing on the convention program will be Eugene Hill, secretary of missionary education and promotion for the Foreign Mission Board, and Kentucky executive secretary Frank Owen.

Hill, a former missionary to China, served as pastor of several Kentucky churches during his days at Southern Seminary. He will bring the closing message of the convention. Owen will address the group during the opening session.

Other highlights include mission action conferences and a scramble golf tournament. Conference topics are: aging; alcoholics; economically disadvantaged; headliners; moral problems; resort; sick; and evangelism.

"We're trying to give our men a combination of inspiration, fellowship and practical guides," explained Sawyer. "We believe that the time together on the golf course and in the dining halls will strengthen the personal ties the men have and encourage them spiritually as they hear what God is doing in the lives of laymen just like them.

"The practical aid from the conferences, together with the inspirational messages, will help the men to return to where they live and work with a new determination," Sawyer continued.

The golf tournament will be held at nearby Greensburg Country Club. Tee off times are from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. Thursday. Greens fee is $3 payable upon arrival.

Women Set World Day Of Prayer

Hundreds of thousands of Baptist women will gather in small groups in 74 or more countries around the world on Monday, November 6, for annual observance of the Baptist Women's Day of Prayer.

Mrs. R. L. Mathis, president of the Woman's Department of the Baptist World Alliance, said that the prayer groups will be in session at some longitude throughout the day. The women will have in their hands a program listing prayer needs in every continent, and they will also pray for the World Mission of Reconciliation Through Jesus Christ, a three-year program of evangelism and reconciliation ministries.

The women will take an offering for Baptist women's activities on every continent and for Baptist world relief. (EBPS)

Cooperative Program Observances Suggested

Cooperative Program Month is observed as a month of prayer and emphasis on the Cooperative Program. It is a time set aside each year by many churches as a special period to give attention to the plan Southern Baptists have adopted as their primary method of missions support. A better understanding of and appreciation for the work of Christ through the Cooperative Program will come to every church which observes Cooperative Program Month this October.

The suggested theme is "Committed to Care." Resource materials are written around this theme. Choose from the following suggestions those that will be helpful in your church. The materials are designed for a four-week emphasis.

Sunday, October 1 —
Caring for Those in Need through the Cooperative Program

1. Secure resource material from your state convention agencies that minister to the aging, homeless children and youth, youth in trouble, people in ill health or in a state of destitution. Distribute and use the material in all appropriate ways to inform the membership of the ministries of these agencies.
2. Display the poster and distribute the Sunday handout which illustrates the emphasis for this Sunday. Posters should be used throughout the building on bulletin boards, in departments, etc. Distribute the handout in the morning worship service.
3. Pray in the morning and evening worship services for persons, by name, who minister to those in need.
4. Invite one of the persons who has helped or has been helped through a Cooperative Program supported agency to give a brief testimony during a worship service.
5. Preach on the subject "Caring for Those in Need." The sermon should illustrate, through the use of appropriate Scripture, how Jesus ministered to those in need, and then how you, through your church, state, and agencies of the Convention, minister to those in need in Jesus' name today.

Sunday, October 8 —
Caring for Those Who Serve Through the Cooperative Program

1. Secure resource materials from your state Baptist college(s) or university(ies), any of six Southern Baptist seminaries, the Education Commission and the Seminary Extension Department describing their work. Distribute and use materials in all appropriate ways to inform the membership.
2. Display the poster and distribute the Sunday handout which illustrates the emphasis for this Sunday.
3. Pray in the morning and evening worship services for persons by name, who work with Baptist youth and adults or for persons who are preparing for Christian service through these Christian educational institutions.
4. Invite someone who is working with youth and adults, or ask a young adult to give a brief testimony on how he is helping or being helped through his college or seminary to prepare others or himself for Christian service.
5. Preach on the subject, "Caring for Those who Serve." The sermon should illustrate, through use of appropriate Scripture, how Jesus and other Bible personalities prepared themselves for service and how, through your church, young people and adults of this day can prepare for service.

Sunday, October 15 —
Caring for the Lost World through the Cooperative Program

1. Secure resource material from your state convention office and the Home and Foreign Mission Boards, who have been given the assignment of going to all the peoples of the world with Christ's message. Secure material describing the work of the Radio and Television Commission also. Distribute and use the material in all appropriate ways to inform the people.
2. Display the poster and distribute the Sunday handout which illustrates the emphasis for this Sunday.
3. Pray in the morning and evening worship services for persons who are serving or who have been served through the efforts of these Cooperative Program supported agencies.
4. Invite a person representing the state, home or overseas ministry to give a brief testimony of his ministry made possible through the Cooperative Program.
5. Preach on the subject, "Caring for the Lost World." The sermon should illustrate, through the use of appropriate Scripture, how Jesus and his disciples shared the gospel with the people of the then known world and how we in these days, through our prayers, gifts and personnel, share the gospel with the lost people of the world.

Sunday, October 22 —
Committed to Care through the Cooperative Program

1. Distribute a copy of the section of your church budget related to mission support. Describe how much, in dollars and percentages, of the total budget has been given in each of the past five years, including current year. Indicate what percentage of your mission dollar remains in the local community, goes for state mission causes, and is used in mission causes outside your state convention.
2. Display the poster and distribute the Sunday handout which illustrates the emphasis for this Sunday.
3. Pray in the morning and evening services for one state and one Southern Baptist Convention cause supported through the Cooperative Program.
4. Ask a member of your church to give a brief testimony on "Why I believe in, pray for, and give through my church to support Baptist world missions."
5. Vote on that section of the church budget related to world missions, have a period of silent prayer, then lead in a prayer of commitment for all Baptist world missions supported through the Cooperative Program.
6. Preach on the subject, "Committed to Care." The sermon should illustrate, through the use of appropriate Scripture, how men and women, including Jesus, were totally committed to the will of the Lord, and how present-day Christians should become committed to this same Lord. This commitment is reflected in the commitment of the individual and church to the wise use of all material possessions and to the support of church and mission causes.

Church Mission Giving

Our Baptist people and our churches have exceeded the $4,200,000 goal for the Cooperative Program by $115,375.62. Total Cooperative Program receipts for this current fiscal year are $4,315,375.62. This is tremendous. We praise the Lord for leading our people to such response.

The Business Office has prepared the annual Report of Receipts for the Cooperative Program and designated mission gifts, listing them by associations and churches. Check your church's record of gifts. If there is any difference in your records and ours — report to G. B. Morton, Business Manager, P.O. Box 43433, Middletown 40243. August 31, 1972, was the close of the convention year — many gifts with checks dated in August were postmarked after August 31 and therefore could not be counted on the 1971-72 year but will begin this new fiscal year.

Thank you for this expression of missionary concern and for your sharing through the Cooperative Program.

Franklin Owen
Executive Secretary-treasurer

National Baptist President Supports Nixon

The National Baptist Convention, U.S.A., Inc., ended its six day, 92nd annual session in Fort Worth, Texas, with feelings sharply divided over a politically oriented speech delivered by the organization's president, Joseph H. Jackson of Chicago.

Jackson's speech was immediately followed by his reelection to an unprecedented 20th term as president of the 6.3-million member body, which claims to be the nation's largest black organization.

Although Jackson was elected by an overwhelming majority of the delegates, with only four dissenting votes cast, a number of persons walked out at the close of his speech, many others abstained from voting, and some charged that the election was a "railroading" job. There were no other nominations for the top post.

Controversy had flared at the meeting, attended by some 12,000 delegates, when Jackson announced his support for the reelection of President Richard Nixon at a preconvention news conference, which received prominent play by local news media.

Open dissent toward the black leader's political stance came to the forefront when Jackson's annual address was interrupted at one point by loud "boos" from the audience when he praised President Nixon and sharply denounced Democratic nominee George McGovern.

He charged that a McGovern administration would be a "government of committees," adding that "there's only one other country that operates that way, and that is the Soviet Union."

He cautioned delegates not to be misled by McGovern's promises to help the poor, saying, "He dropped 'poor' Eagleton from the ticket and got a rich man to take his place.

"McGovern says that he'll get us out of Vietnam in 90 days. If he does more than Nixon in Vietnam, he'll carry a white flag."

At that point, Jackson's remarks were almost drowned out by loud "boos" and shouts from throughout the convention center.

Staunch Jackson supporters charged afterward that the "boos" had come mainly from McGovernites who had been bused in for the speech from Dallas, where the Democratic presidential candidate had made several appearances the day before.

But news reporters at the session noted that many of those who had voiced opposition were wearing delegate badges.

Despite the opposition from some quarters, staunch "old guard" Jackson supporters defended the convention president's remarks and predicted that he will continue to "come out on top," just as he has survived heavy opposition throughout his 20 years in office.

A top black Baptist leader from California, Edward V. Hill, argued that there weren't 200 people present who would have voted against Jackson. There are a lot of people who are pro-Jackson but not pro-Nixon, said Hill, president of the California black Baptist body.

In resolutions passed by the convention, delegates denounced "booing" as a "backward step" in human relationships, called for "tolerance and respect for the rights of those with whom we do not agree," expressed disapproval of network news coverage of periphery activities at national political conventions, and supported continuation of the Olympic games. (BP)

Black Baptist Organization Condemns Nixon

Democratic presidential hopeful George McGovern received a somewhat left-handed "almost" endorsement from the National Baptist Convention of America meeting in Dallas, Texas.

In the only secularly political action of the gathering, more than 2,000 delegates unanimously approved a resolution condemning the Nixon administration and declaring, "We cannot in good conscience support this administration for reelection."

While the convention spoke strongly against the Nixon administration, it declined to give an outright endorsement to the McGovern candidacy.

Even so, E. Edward Jones, chairman of the convention's Commission on Social Justice, said, "This is the strongest stand we have ever taken in an election year."

The resolution, presented by Robert Wilson of Dallas, host pastor for the National meeting, called on the denomination's four million members to "actively support (voter) registration efforts and to go to the polls in November and vote in good conscience, not for men nor parties, but for principles consistent with the spirit of Christ seeking the good will of all men."

Charging that the Nixon administration "consistently acts against the best interest of poor and minority citizens," the resolution said it "threatens the progress toward full citizenship of all citizens which this nation has made over the last two decades."

The resolution specified several "disturbing" actions by the administration:

—"Packing" of the Supreme Court with civil rights conservatives.

—Veto of bills which would provide better educational opportunities for minority poor and child care for needy, working mothers.

—Use of inflammatory code terms of racism such as "busing" and "welfare."

In other action, the convention approved a report of the Commission on Social Justice which opposes the establishment of a volunteer army, decries the lack of grassroots involvement by black people in government, and supports busing as a means to achieve equal education. The report also calls for an end to the war in Vietnam.

Jones said an all-volunteer army would mean that the rich will never share in the agony of war and in the shedding of blood.

Concerning the explosive issue of busing, Jones said, "I think a lot of folks ought to stop hollering about busing and, if it is so bad, a lot of large white churches ought to stop their busing."

James Carl Sams of Florida was reelected to a one year term as president of the convention. (BP)

LIFE AND WORK SERIES

The Demands Of Faith

Abraham was the product of a pagan home in a nation of idolaters (Joshua 24:2). His family lived in Ur of the Chaldees, or what is known today as Iraq. He came to believe in the true God, Who dealt with him in sovereign grace.

Abraham's call — Genesis 12:1-3

In some mysterious way God summoned Abraham to leave his home, kindred and country, and to go into a land which He had chosen for him. It was a call to depart from the center of moon worship, and numerous other forms of idolatry, unto fellowship with God, unto purity of worship and unto the purposes which had been formulated in heaven with reference to his life and work. The call of God is always away from a sinful manner of life. The separated life is the crying need of Christians today (II Corinthians 6:17).

Along with that sovereign and gracious call from God for Abraham to become the founder of a new nation, through which He could work out His redemptive plan, there came an invaluable seven-fold promise: to make of Abraham a great nation, to bless him, to make his name great, to make him a world-wide blessing, to bless them who blessed Abraham, to curse any who might curse him, and through him to bless all the families on the earth. God's protection, power and provision are guaranteed to His children who are engaged in doing His blessed will.

Abraham's response — Genesis 12:4-7

It was a mark of wisdom for Abraham to leave Ur. It was not a small matter for him to leave those who had been united closely with him, either by blood or by the ties of friendship, and to start on the journey to the far-off land of Canaan which he had never seen.

In response to the call and command of God, and without asking any questions or offering any objections, Abraham promptly, cheerfully and hopefully started on his pilgrimage without knowing where he was going or what the future held in store for him. He firmly believed that God would guide him and provide for him as he sought to comply with His expressed will.

Abraham's response to God's command was that of partial obedience. He did not leave his kindred as he had been commanded to do. His father and his family moved along with him. He permitted the natural ties to interfere with his obedience to God. His six years in Haran were wasted.

It took the death of his father to bring Abraham to full obedience. Ties of the flesh had to be severed before Abraham could proceed to the place of victory and promise.

Having learned the folly of compromise and procrastination, Abraham resumed his pilgrimage which brought him through a realm of danger (verse 6) into the presence of God (verse 7). Having learned to obey the will of his heavenly Father, Abraham built an altar and "called upon the name of the Lord" (verse 8).

Abraham's faith
Hebrews 11:6, 8-10

Faith is the firm persuasion and expectation that God will fulfill the promises He has made, and this conviction is so strong that it gives to the souls of those who exercise it a sense of possession as though they have what has been promised.

Exercising faith in God, which is the highest act of man in response to the divine energy, is well-pleasing to God. Without faith one cannot please God. Exercising a living faith in God enables the believer to live in such a manner as to obtain a good report.

When Abraham left the comforts of his home, the people whom he knew and the land of his birth, and started on his famous journey into the regions beyond, he made of life an illustrious adventure. "He went out, not knowing whither he went" (verse 8). Possessing faith in God and resolved to be obedient to Him, Abraham looked far into the future and saw a city, of which God was the architect and masterbuilder, into which the redeemed will enter and enjoy perfect communion. ■

The Battle For Men's Minds

The expression on one's face, the words upon his lips and the works of his hands are but the indications of what a man is thinking. The value of one's thinking is determined largely by that with which it is occupied. That which goes into the loom of thought determines the quality and usefulness of the finished product. One's thought-life determines his character. For that reason great care should be exercised as to what enters the mind.

A great battle for the minds of people is being waged today. Tremendous strides have been made in recent years in the realm of communication. The world is continuously bombarding the minds of men with its propaganda. Basic to this tremendous effort is the motive of financial gain. To achieve its goal great stress is placed on pleasure and profit. Worldly interests make great use of television, radio, the printed page, the telephone and word of mouth.

Instead of allowing the use of mass media to be monopolized by those who have ulterior motives and purposes, God's people should make the maximum use of them in disseminating Christian truth for the good of man and the glory of God. The gospel of Christ needs to be communicated to those who are not Christians with urgency and initiative. When it is proclaimed as it should be, the Gospel has a strong impact on the mind, conscience and will.

A charge to keep
II Timothy 4:1-2

Writing under the shadow of death and anticipating that he would be taken home to be with the Lord in the near future, Paul wrote to Timothy about the things that were vital and essential. From the time of his salvation Paul had been called upon to pay a tremendous price for the witness which he bore as a dedicated Christian. Without any thought of boasting about anything he had done for the Lord, Paul wrote to his dear friend and young colleague in the ministry and reminded him of the hardships, afflictions and persecutions which he had been called upon to endure because of his devotion to Christ, with which Timothy was already familiar, having witnessed some of them with his own eyes. Paul was trying to impress upon him the fact that he too would suffer if he remained loyal to Christ. He wanted Timothy to realize that this world would never be a friend to grace and those who live in a godly manner.

In his last charge to the young preacher Paul laid upon him a most solemn obligation. The witnesses whom he called upon to substantiate his testimony were God the Father and Christ the Son. To Christ an account will have to be rendered by Paul, Timothy and every other Christian. Believers in Christ should look forward with pleasant anticipation to the time when they will stand before the judgment seat of Christ and receive the rewards for all of their good works.

From Paul Timothy received the charge to keep on preaching the Word with earnestness and constancy. He urged him to stick to the preaching and teaching of God's Word and to refuse to be sidetracked. The preaching of the Word was not an elective, it was the great imperative. The servant of Christ who preaches the Word is to strive to acquaint people with the mind of God, to preach the Gospel to the unsaved, to show the lost that they need the Saviour and His salvation, and to set before them the only remedy which the Lord has provided. He is also to teach God's Word to Christians, showing them how to overcome temptation and to live to the glory of God. God's man is commanded to reprove, to rebuke and to exhort.

A challenge to persevere
II Timothy 4:3-5

Paul reminded Timothy that the time was approaching when people would refuse to listen to and accept sound teaching. Even though more and more people reject the teaching of God's Word and oppose and persecute those who proclaim it, and search after those who will proclaim to them what they want to hear and what will satisfy their lusts, God's messenger must not give up and quit. He must go on preaching the Word even if it results in his being subjected to persecution.

A call to purity of life
Philippians 4:8-9

Paul emphasized the tremendous importance of substituting wholesome thoughts for injurious ones. In this concise and inexhaustible statement Paul challenges all Christians to cultivate elevating thoughts. He urges us to meditate on those things which are worthy of praise — things that are true, honest, just, pure, lovely, and of good report. Paul knew that when the mind dwells on clean things like these one would become more Christlike. ■

A NEW CHURCH — The Beacon Hill Baptist Church, formerly a mission of the First Baptist Church of Somerset, was constituted as a church recently. Franklin Owen, new KBC executive secretary, spoke at the morning service and Eldred M. Taylor, pastor of First Baptist Church, delivered the message at the afternoon constitution service. As a mission, Beacon Hill, which held its first services in 1965, was listed in the top 100 churches in the state for per capita giving to missions through the Cooperative Program. They began as a church with 346 members. Ansel K. Gambrell is pastor of the Beacon Hill church. Above, exterior and interior views of the new church are shown.

Kentuckian's Hobby Proves A Witnessing Tool

Kentuckian Kent Faris had finished language school and was ready to go to work as a field missionary, visiting and preaching to Baptist congregations throughout the state of Espirito Santo, Brazil. But, by his own estimate, the Bellevue native was far from fluent in Portuguese, the national language. So he began illustrating his sermons with simple chalk drawings.

Faris

How these pictures have brought nearly 1,000 visitors to Baptist churches during the past six months is a tale Faris enjoys telling.

As the University of Kentucky graduate's language skills improved, so did his flair for illustrating the Good News, until now Faris finds it almost impossible to speak without drawing. It might be the appeal of the chalk, he says, or the elation he feels at hearing the "oohs" when the final black light flashes across the changed pictures — but the chalk drawing has become an integral part of his mission activity.

During a visit to a little church in Itapina, Faris unexpectedly found a way to make the pictures an even more effective part of his ministry. As he prepared to leave, two youths asked for the drawing he had made during the service. Rather than choose between them, Faris casually announced that whoever brought the most visitors the next Sunday would receive the picture.

Several weeks later he received a request from the Itapina church for another picture. The first had resulted in more visitors than anyone expected. Several members had brought from 13 to 18. The winner, who had brought 47, refused his prize when he saw the disappointment of a girl who had brought 46. He offered her the picture if the church would ask the artist for another.

After that, Faris left his chalk drawings at the churches as premiums for the most visitors brought the following Sunday. Eventually he started doing oil paintings in church and offering them as prizes.

In Ibatiba the visitors collected by one eight-year-old boy overran the small church; he brought 62.

One contest resulted in some hard feelings. The pastor's wife was determined to win and although she brought 80 visitors she was second to a woman with even more determination. Maria, with the contest in mind, had prepared two banquets and plenty of sweets to lure her visitors; she brought in 143 and won the picture.

Out of this grew certain restrictions: no sweets or banquets to entice visitors!

"I continue to marvel," says Faris, "at the power of a simple idea delivered into the hands of God. In the first six months of our second term of work, the pictures have brought more than 800 visitors to 10 Baptist churches. With 129 other churches in our state of two million, this single idea may be worth 5,000 visitors."

Clear Creek Gets Large Gift

A gift of $54,843.39 was received recently by the Clear Creek Baptist School, Pineville, from the estate of J. Berry Jones, Shelby County.

K. S. Clendaniel, Clear Creek's vice president in charge of development, said "The gift from the J. Berry Jones estate is the largest single bequest received by the school in its 46 year history."

Under the terms of the will, $7,500 was designated for building purposes and will be used to help provide additional housing facilities for students. The balance has been added to Clear Creek's permanent endowment.

The Clear Creek Baptist School, owned and operated by the Kentucky Baptist Convention, is a theological school which trains adults for full-time Christian vocations.

OFFERING METHOD

Dear Editor:

I received my Western Recorder this morning and as I read your editorial, "The Offering Should Be A Part Of Worship," it reminded me of a recent discussion in my Sunday School class. We said we felt embarrassed when the plate was passed, sometimes with very little or nothing at all. If visitors are in the service and do not have the offering given in the Sunday School, what kind of impression are we making on them, or on non-Christians who probably do not know how the offering is given?

If we use the Sunday School method and the giver really wants to give for the love of God, he could put it in the envelope and the treasurer of the Sunday School could turn it in to the church. However, if we are using the Sunday School to collect the offering in order to get more money, I do not believe God will be pleased with this method. Of course it is what lies within each individual's heart, how God will bless the gift.

WHERE DO WE GET INVOLVED?

Dear Editor:

Involvement has been an overworked word in 1972. Every media in our society has clamored for a portion of it from us. The word has been used so broadly and in some cases has been so ambiguous that understanding it has blocked and bottle-necked any implementation. To me, involvement means "to care enough to do something." Caring always precedes action, especially when it is prompted by benevolent causes.

Our first step, then, is to set the greatest priority. Where do we start?

What one organization do we have in our community that will best satisfy and best define the reasons for our involvement?

What organization can use our abilities and talents and caring quotient, and carry them from a local level to the immense corners of the world?

What organization has undergirded and supported more worthy causes than any other in our known world?

What organization stands for the greatest principles our country is founded upon?

What organization could you be proud to serve and unashamedly identify with?

What organization wants us to care more than any other and wants a full commitment of highest priority?

The local church with whom you belong.

Won't you agree that the church fits all the requirements and fills all the expectations of involvement?

Then it only remains for us to ask, "Do you care enough to do something?"

USING WOMEN

Dear Editor:

I have read the letter written by Linda Jordan concerning her desire to be ordained to preach the gospel. She wishes to know if Southern Baptists can use women. There is a great need for women to work for the Lord but I think she should carefully read what the Bible says about this. First Timothy, chapter 3, verse 2, says a bishop must be the husband of one wife.

So I hope that Linda Jordan along with other women who think they have been called of God to preach the gospel will find that God can certainly use them to witness to lost people, to teach in Sunday School, work in Training Union and in lots of ways. But let us stay with what the Bible says and not be deceived by what man may say.

God's word is the same yesterday, today and forever.

APPRECIATES GIFT

Dear Editor:

Once again Shelby County Baptists have repeated their remarkable gift to our inner-city ministry by making possible this year a week of Christian camping at their associational camp for 65 fifth through ninth grade youngsters from our neighborhood in Louisville's west end. Under the leadership of Mrs. Thomas Moffatt, chairman of its missions committee, the Shelby County Association repeated its remarkable feat of last year by involving every one of their 24 churches in active support of the project. During the week there were eight professions of faith and much evidence of spiritual growth by the youngsters.

We take heart in our missionary work in the west end from this fine expression of partnership in the Gospel.

Baptist Hospital Opens $6 Million Addition

By C. R. Daley
Editor, Western Recorder

The Central Baptist Hospital, Lexington, officially dedicated its new $6 million addition on Sunday, September 17. The new facilities actually have been moved into as they were completed and are about 95% occupied by now, according to Ben Brewer, executive vice president of the hospital.

In a news conference and a tour of the hospital with representatives of news media Thursday morning, September 14, Brewer said no new departments have been added to the hospital but major expansion and modernization of equipment would enable the hospital to greatly expand its services. Brewer said the capacity of Central had been expanded from 235 to 300 beds and 31 bassinets providing services for 14,000 adult patients a year with another 17,000 for emergency treatment. Approximately 2,000 babies are born a year in Central.

The expansion also included relocation of the Registration Office, the Pharmacy, Radiology, Rehabilitation, Respiratory Therapy and the Clinical and Pathological Laboratories. The chapel, family conference room and the chaplain's office are now located on the fifth floor. A complete air conditioning system and an auxiliary power plant have been added.

Visitors touring the new facilities were especially impressed with the modern sophisticated equipment. For example, all registration of patients is done with the assistance of a central computer linked with the Kentucky Baptist Hospital in Louisville and Western Baptist Hospital in Paducah. Patient information is recorded and stored by the computer for instantaneous recall later on the computer screen or for automatic print out. In the laboratory is a $75,000 S.M.A. 1260 unit on lease arrangements. This unit performs 12 tests simultaneously in one minute for diagnostic purposes. A central supply and materials department on the first floor distributes all hospital supplies by elevator to all other floors.

Week long special activities were sponsored by the hospital prior to the dedication services on Sunday. On Tuesday tours or the new facilities were conducted for the hospital employees. Brewer said it was proper for the employees to be the first officially to see the improvements and additions. The hospital auxiliary made up of about 250 women who contribute thousands of hours of voluntary service to Central were guests of the hospital for tours on Wednesday. Representatives of newspapers, radio and television were guests on Thursday for breakfast, briefing and a tour. On Friday ministers of the Lexington area were guests for breakfast and tours. On Friday evening an Appreciation Dinner was given for friends and benefactors of Central. Kentucky Baptist Executive Secretary Frank Owen was the principal speaker for the occasion.

Climax of the week was the formal dedication services on Sunday afternoon which featured an organ concert by Mrs. James V. Dorsett, wife of Executive Vice President Dorsett of Baptist Hospital, East, now under construction in St. Matthews and a choir concert by the world famous Harlan Boys Choir. Public tours of the hospital followed the dedication exercises.

Central Baptist, which began operation in 1954, is one of three hospitals operated by the Kentucky Baptist Convention through Baptist Hospitals, Incorporated. Kentucky Baptist Hospital is in Louisville and Western Baptist Hospital is in Paducah. A fourth hospital, Baptist Hospital, East, is now under construction in St. Matthews, a suburban area of Louisville in eastern Jefferson County.

H. L. Dobbs, Louisville, serves as president of Baptist Hospitals, Incorporated. Each hospital is administered by an Executive Vice President. In addition to Ben Brewer who administers Central are Homer Coggins, Kentucky Baptist Hospital; Earl Feezer, Western Baptist Hospital, and James Dorsett, Baptist Hospital, East.

Central is considered one of Lexington's major employers with its 610 full-time and part-time employees and an annual payroll of $3,500,000. There are 250 on the Central Baptist Medical staff and a total evaluation of the property and equipment is over nine million dollars. □
