Radio, News Personnel Urge Baptists: 'Ask Help'

'Ask for help' was the advice given pastors and church leaders by radio and newspaper men at a church publicity and publications conference at Campbellsville College.

Larry Troxell, area editor of the Somerset Commonwealth-Journal, told church workers that most papers are glad to get and use material from churches. "However, it usually requires so much work to get into a news format that it is drastically cut or left out completely," he explained.

Billy D. Huffman, manager of radio stations WCDS and WOVO, Glasgow, echoed the same of radio publicity for churches.

Others who spoke at the conference echoed the problem, but all of them also said they would be glad to help pastors get the know-how to put their publicity items into a more useable format if they would only ask.

Huffman suggested the use of "highly professional SBC-produced programs" such as "Powerline" instead of broadcasting a worship service because such programming has greater listener appeal.

The three-day conference featured sessions on religious writing by Illinois Baptist editor Robert J. Hastings and a session on improving church bulletins and newsletters by Campbellsville journalism professor L. D. Kennedy.

Ken Forman, associate pastor, and the staff of Campbellsville Baptist Church received an award for best church newsletter. H. Curtis Erwin, pastor of Glasgow Baptist Church, accepted an award for best church bulletin. Louis Shepherd, missionary of the Liberty Baptist Association, received an award for the best publicity release.

Summer Music Work Draws 1,256 in State

Representing 326 churches in 35 associations, 1,256 participants enroled in 19 weeks of associational and regional camp music classes in Kentucky in 1975.

According to Eugene F. Quinn, state music secretary, the field work included six weeks at Camp Joy, five at Jonathan Creek, four at Hudgins Hill, three at Schafer Camp, and a week in Laurel River Camp.

Children, youth and adults enroled in these classes studied five hours of intensive training in musical rhythm.

Music field workers will be offered by the Church Music Department of the Kentucky Baptist Convention to enrich regional and associational camp programs again in the summer of 1976.

Edwin Crawford, director of development at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, will address the annual meeting of the seminary's Kentucky alumni association Nov. 12. The group will meet at 5:30 p.m. for dinner at Holiday Inn North in Elizabethtown during the Kentucky Baptist state convention. Don Peterson, pastor of First Baptist Church, Dayton, is president of the seminary's Kentucky association and will preside.

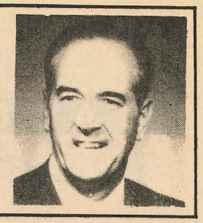
Consider It

by Franklin Owen



The Cooperative Program is the name of the world mission budget of Kentucky Baptists and of Southern Baptists. It was first developed in Kentucky under the name Unified Budget. By 1925 the Southern Baptist Convention adopted it under its present name. It is the mission plan through which every Baptist and congregation, small or great, can give what it can to the full scope of mission causes.

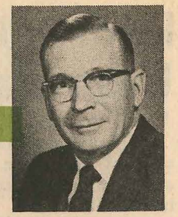
We are now in the 50th year, the jubilee year of the Cooperative Program. As a fitting means of observing the celebration Southern Baptists have tried to challenge every church to consider increasing its percentage of sharing through the Cooperative Program by one percent. This is a most practical goal, an achievable goal in most cases.

Your denominational servants only want the churches to give what they want to give; but beloved, we certainly would try hard to persuade the increase of your "want to." Has your church considered it, made a conscious decision about it? I would appeal to you once again. We call it "Operation One." One of the provisions of "Operation One" is this one percent in the jubilee year. There is still time. If it is more than you can give, well and good, but don't just let it go unconsidered.

Every church's part is important. Our success lies principally in the faithfulness of the many givers of smaller capacity rather than in the larger gifts of the few (much as we appreciate them). Every little bit counts.

Once there was a preacher. He was a little preacher. His name was Little. He was pastor of a little church that could only pay him a little salary. He was married to a little woman with whom he lived in a little house and they had seven little Littles. Yet, it appeared that they always got along pretty well, despite so little for so many Littles. One of the members said, "Brother Little, how is it that you with this little church and little salary get along so well with Mrs. Little and those seven little Littles?" He replied, "The answer is simple, EVERY LITTLE HELPS."

DALEY OBSERVATIONS



One Secret Of Baptist Cooperation

What is the secret of the unity and cooperation of 12½ million Southern Baptists? Non-Baptist observers often ask because it just doesn't make sense considering the absence of any authoritarian denominational structure and the complete autonomy of every church and every Baptist.

Not even many Baptists can explain it but we thank God for it and go on enjoying it. James L. Sullivan, the retired Sunday School Board president, calls this bond "the rope of sand" in his recent book which is as insightful as anything ever written about the bonds that hold Baptists together.

There are many, many things which all Baptists do not agree upon but we are of one mind on two essentials. We all believe Jesus Christ is the only answer to man's dilemma and that it is our obligation as disciples to get this good news to every living human.

But there is more to our cooperation than common convictions. Such cooperation requires denominational organization. Organization requires personnel to administer plans and programs and our attitude toward these administrators has much to do with our cooperation.

We thank God for such tools as the Cooperative Program but our confidence is not in plans but in persons. A denominational agency, state or convention-wide, can never rise above its leaders. Right or wrong, this is the fact. Our multimillion dollar foreign mission program depends upon our respect and our confidence in Baker J. Cauthen. The same goes for Arthur Rutledge of the Home Mission Board, the presidents of our seminaries, and on and on.

Among Kentucky Baptists response to our cooperative effort depends largely upon confidence in the integrity of Executive Secretary Frank Owen, other persons in the Baptist Building, Baptist college and school presidents and on and on. The giving records of recent years demonstrate confidence in present day Baptist leadership in Kentucky.

The same principle applies to a local church. As goes the pastor, so goes the church. People follow a pastor who is respected and liked but support slumps when the pastor is not liked and not trusted.

This is nothing new. It's always been that way. When needs arose in the early church the apostles asked the members to select administrators for the program of benevolence to needy widows (Acts 6). The qualifications for these administrators were very high so as to guarantee confidence in them. Nowhere is confidence more necessary than in handling money and materials of a congregation.

Three qualities were required or just two according to some translators. They were to be "men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom." Bob Bratcher in the T.E.V. translates it "men among you who are known to be full of the Holy Spirit and wisdom." Either way a good reputation was required along with divine and human wisdom to justify the reputation.

In our denominational structure this places a tremendous responsibility upon those entrusted with the selection of heads of Baptist agencies and institutions, both in state conventions and in the Southern Baptist Convention.

So far as the Kentucky Baptist Convention is concerned we are probably at an all time high in confidence in our leaders. The same is true in the Southern Baptist Convention.

But this is not guaranteed to be true always just because it is the Lord's business. Denominational office can be used for worldly recognition, reward for service, return of personal favor or other unworthy purposes.

The next few years will see an unusual number of denominational leaders in Kentucky and in the Southern Baptist Convention retire. Those selected in their places will have much to do with the response of those who are asked to underwrite our various ministries. Let us be as careful and wise as the first congregation of believers in Acts 6.

Church Mission Giving

Our receipts for the fiscal year broke all previous records. They even surpassed a budget which was raised before God Bless Kentucky Baptist givers.

The business office has prepared the annual report of receipts for the Cooperative Program and Designated funds, listing them by associations and churches. Check your church's record of gifts. If there is an omission or error please notify us. Address your report to Barry Allen, Business Manager, P.O. Box 4343, Middletown 40243.

Thank you for this expression of missionary concern and for your sharing through the Cooperative Program.

SBC Ends Year $4.1 Million Ahead

Despite the nation's economic uncertainty, the Southern Baptist Convention's national Cooperative Program unified budget ended the 1974-75 fiscal year Sept. 30 with receipts totaling $4.1 million more than the operating and capital needs budgets of SBC agencies.

The fiscal year produced $41,114,253 in Cooperative Program receipts and another $35,639,969 in designated contributions. Total receipts amount to more than $76.7 million, or 8.44 percent more than the $70.7 million collected in 1973-74.

The $41.1 million Cooperative Program figure is about one-third the amount collected by 33 state conventions across 50 states and one-tenth the amount collected in 34,734 Southern Baptist churches.

Porter Routh, executive secretary-treasurer of the SBC Executive Committee, said, "Many factors enter into this increase, such as continued concern of each SBC agency, the 50th anniversary of the Cooperative Program, response of pastors and churches to greater sharing, and the decision by 17 state conventions to increase the percentage of their total Cooperative Program receipts with SBC agencies. Above all, we need to be grateful to God for his continued blessings." (BP)

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LIFE AND WORK SERIES

by H. C. Chiles

(These Lessons for October 26, 1975)

Sharing His Concern

Matthew 9:35-38

Instead of establishing a residence and dispensing his favors to all needy applicants, Christ proceeded on a tour of Galilee, teaching in the synagogues, preaching the gospel of the kingdom, healing diseases, comforting the sorrowing, and raising the dead.

Christ readily acknowledged that "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few." Christ gave a definite command as to how to obtain a supply of laborers: "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest." If we are to pray earnestly for laborers to be sent forth, we must be willing to be among those who are sent, as the Lord wills.

Matthew 10:1

Christ always calls people to him ere he sends them forth to work for him. After the 12 had received the proper training from him, Christ wanted them to go forth and put into practice what he had taught them. Christ gave them power to heal all the maladies that afflict the human body, even reaching to the control of demons.

Matthew 10:5-7

Christ gave the 12 specific instructions as to the field in which they should work. He forbade them to go to the Gentiles, and commanded them to go "to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." He charged them to proclaim "the kingdom of heaven is at hand."

Matthew 10:16-20

Christ made it clear to the 12 they would encounter the opposition of those who did not have any consciousness of their need of the gospel. He wanted them to know their lot as his followers would be similar to his own, so they need not expect any favorable consideration from his enemies.

Christ comforted them with the assurance that the holy spirit would prompt them what to say in their defense when persecution came. They were sustained in the knowledge that the love, wisdom, and power of God would be available when the need arose. Inasmuch as he was slandered and persecuted, his followers should not be surprised when they are misrepresented and opposed by his enemies for "the disciple is not above his master, nor the servant above his Lord." Christians do not have any right to be borne to glory on flowery beds of ease.

The Folly of Self-Sufficiency

Esau was an outdoorsman whose chief renown lay in the fact that he was an excellent hunter. Blessed with a splendid physique and great courage, he lived a rough and rugged life in the fields. Jacob was a quiet and meditative indoorsman who delighted to remain at home with his mother.

Genesis 25:29-34

One day Esau returned from a hunting expedition. As he approached the tent his nostrils caught the aroma of the pottage Jacob was cooking. Esau begged Jacob to give him some of that red stuff he was cooking in order that, with it, he might appease his unusual and almost uncontrollable hunger. Knowing Esau would promise almost anything when hungry, Jacob made the base proposal to give him the pottage in exchange for his birthright.

Dominated by appetite, Esau was insensible to the spiritual advantages of the birthright and was willing to sacrifice his dearest treasure for a supper. Beans meant more to him than a birthright. Pottage meant more to him than principle.

Genesis 29:21-30

After Jacob had taken an unfair and despicable advantage of his hungry brother and defrauded him of his birthright with its coveted blessing, angry Esau vowed that he would murder the "supplanter" at his first opportunity. So, to remain at home was no longer safe for Jacob. Quick counsel with his mother, who favored him above Esau, started Jacob swiftly toward the habitation of his uncle, Laban.

During the month Jacob was Laban's guest, he met his daughter, Rachel. This soon ripened into love.

When Jacob asked Laban for Rachel's hand in marriage, the latter struck a bargain with his nephew. In keeping with a custom which was prevalent in that era, Jacob agreed to work for Laban for seven years on the condition he would receive Rachel as his wife. As soon as the seven years of working and waiting elapsed, Jacob approached Laban and required him to give Rachel to him for a wife.

Outwardly Laban gave every indication he was granting Jacob's request. Immediately he began making preparation for the elaborate wedding ritual. When the bride was brought to Jacob under cover of darkness and, according to Eastern custom, heavily veiled, Laban played a dastardly trick on Jacob by substituting Leah for Rachel. Laban's despicable deception of Jacob was inexcusable even though the latter had previously deceived his father and brother.

Furious, on account of the pain of being deceived, Jacob went to see his uncle, who had victimized him, and sought a showdown. Laban tried to justify his misbehavior on the basis of the social custom that a younger daughter not be permitted to marry prior to the marriage of her older sister. Carefully avoiding any acknowledgement of having deceived Jacob, crafty and artful Laban offered to give Rachel to Jacob provided he would work for him another seven years. Jacob's love for Rachel prompted him to accept Laban's proposal and give him seven additional years of hard work.

If Bells Could Speak Of Their Donors

by W. H. Mitchell

Regional Representative,
Schulmerich Carillons

If thousands of Schulmerich Carillons scattered around the world were able to tell the stories of their donor's lives, what inspiring scenarios they would pour forth! In working out the details of many carillon installations and dedications, I have come to know the donors quite well. I have found them to be concerned for the betterment of their communities even at a personal sacrifice of their own resources. Let me cite a few of them I have had the great pleasure to know, to admire, and to remember . . .

I think of a lady, elderly when I met her, who many years ago lost her husband on their wild, remote, snake-infested ranch in the mountains of New Mexico. She courageously operated the ranch herself while she raised her two little boys. They are now successful doctors in Texas. After they left home she studied for and secured a "Ham" radio license so she could talk to them every morning on short-wave radio. For the church in her remote community she donated a Schulmerich Carillon and then installed it herself! She has passed on, but the community is reminded of her daily when the bells peal forth their vesper hymns.

Never shall I forget the gentleman who donated a large Schulmerich Carillon to the University of South Dakota. He truly represented the American tradition of hard work with its ultimate rewards. Despite working at three jobs while attending the university in the worst years of the Great Depression, he was unable to finish. Over the years he became a millionaire, Board Chairman of a large grain corporation, and a leader in civic activities. He told me one time the formula he used concerning gifts. He always gave those things which would be beneficial but would not be attainable from budgetary funds. He was just starting to make plans to donate still another carillon to a college in his home community when he died suddenly, but his carillon at the University daily rings out the hours from the memorial tower bearing his name.

At a convent in Colorado the Sisters carry on their duties, stopping for prayer when the Schulmerich Basilican bells ring forth from the chapel. The donor was certainly not a millionaire. Incredible as it may sound, she was the elderly housekeeper for the priests at a parish rectory. It was her dream 15 years ago to make this one great and beautiful gift in her lifetime. When her bells ring out the evening Angelus I am sure the Sisters pray in her memory.

Nor can I forget a dear little 70 year old registered nurse, still needing to work every day for a living. She wanted bells as a memorial for her late husband, and she wanted them to sound out from her church just as she and her husband had heard bells many years before in Nova Scotia. This was such a personal dream in her life and she wanted this gift to be totally anonymous for fear others would think it overly sentimental. Even the church treasurer did not know the source of the cashier's check I handed him. She attended the dedication ceremony, but no one knew of her secret nor of the happy childhood memories the bells brought back to her. I wonder if she realized how much that carillon was enjoyed by the church parishioners and the citizens of that city.

Another story that has stayed with me is of a Southwestern church that was involved in building their new edifice. The Chairman of the Building Committee never thought he was to become the donor of a Schulmerich Carillon. He was about to retire from a life spent teaching school in that city and he was certainly not wealthy. After the death of his wife he moved to California, but he felt he should provide some memorial at this church where his wife's funeral was conducted, where his children had been married and where his grandchildren would be baptized. On his modest pension this was not easy. He returned to attend the dedication and he told me then why he wanted to donate those bells. He said it was his "parting gift" to the town where he had served and he wanted to keep on serving it with the inspiration of bells after he would no longer be there.

The title "Professor of Modern Languages" does not connote great wealth, but in this case it applied to a lady who loved music, loved her college, and loved the orderly life on the college campus. Her wealth was her warmth and cultural richness. She was a unique person with original ideas in teaching and in her decisions. When it was time for her retirement she did not follow the routine pattern of receiving a "going away" gift of a watch or a suitcase. Instead she made a gift to the college, a Schulmerich Carillon. When I last stopped to visit her some 15 years after the carillon was installed she told me how much she enjoyed hearing the bells chime out the Westminster every hour, and how happy she was because of the grateful acceptance of the bells by the entire community.

Over the years I have found it intellectually stimulating and spiritually uplifting to know these fascinating personalities who find our carillons a means of expressing their love of life and of their fellowman. I think that if our bells could talk about their donors they would speak of them as "kind hearts and gentle people."

There are many occasions when the donation of a carillon of bells is appropriate. Schulmerich, the world's largest bell company, is the major source of these bell instruments. Through our experience and expertise we may be able to assist you in selecting the right bell instrument for donation to your church. We have several donor consultants on our staff who would be pleased to assist you. Please feel free to call our toll free number 1-800-523-6510 or write: Schulmerich Carillons, Inc.
