Mill Valley, Calif.; Harold C. Bennett, executive secretary-treasurer, Executive Committee, Nashville; Allen; and James H. Landes, executive director, Baptist General Convention of Texas, Dallas.

Allen staffer to be No. 2 at Radio-TV Commission

Luke E. Williams Jr., 54, for 18 years director of church activities at First Baptist Church, San Antonio, Tex., has been named executive vice president of the Baptist Radio and Television Commission, effective Apr. 15.

He will be an assistant in internal administration to commission president Jimmy R. Allen with whom he worked 12 years when Allen was pastor of First Baptist, San Antonio.

A former president of the Southern Baptist Religious Education Association, Williams has served churches in Ft. Worth, Jacksboro, Dallas and San Antonio, Tex.; Chattanooga, Tenn.; and Birmingham, Ala.

Mrs. Williams is the former Joyce Virginia Smith of Chattanooga, Tenn.

British Baptist elected to Ruschlikon presidency

C. Ronald Goulding of Great Britain has been elected interim president of International Baptist Theological Seminary, Ruschlikon, Switzerland, effective Sept. 1.

Goulding, who will be 65 in July, has been associate secretary in the Baptist World Alliance's Washington office since 1976. He is past president of the European Baptist Federation and was secretary-treasurer of the federation and associate secretary of the BWA in London 1965-76.

Garhard Claas of Hamburg, West Germany, secretary-treasurer of the European Baptist Federation and chairman of the seminary executive board, announced Goulding's election to the post for a period of up to three years. Goulding will replace Southern Baptist missionary Isam E. Ballanger, who is resigning to devote more time to his post as the Foreign Mission Board's field representative for Europe.

Goulding will be the first European to hold presidency of the seminary, founded by the Foreign Mission Board in 1949.

Business, bold missions to be Baptists' overarching theme as they gather by the river

In a program largely devoid of superlatives but heavily favoring Bold Mission Thrust and denominational business, Southern Baptists will converge near St. Louis' famous landmark arch June 10-12.

Three Kentuckians are among 83 persons scheduled to appear on the program of the 123rd annual session set in Cervantes Convention Center.

Henry B. Huff, a Louisville attorney, chairman of the convention's denominational calendar committee, reports for that committee June 12 at 4 p.m.

Grady and Eleanor Nutt, also of Louisville, will direct a theme interpretation based on "That We May Boldly Say" at 7:45 p.m. that day. Nutt is an entertainer and comedian.

Huff and the Nutts are all members of Louisville's Crescent Hill Baptist Church.

Others in charge of theme interpretations include Landrum P. Leavell II, president, New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary; Albert McClellan, associate executive secretary, SBC Executive Committee, Nashville; Stan Coffey, pastor, First Baptist Church, Albuquerque, N. M.; Huber Drumwright, dean, School of Theology, Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Ft. Worth, Tex.; Sarah Frances Anders, chairman, Sociology Department, Louisiana College, Pineville; and Harold C. Bennett, executive secretary-treasurer, SBC Executive Committee.

Five hours and 10 minutes (approximately one-third) of the convention's total time is designated for miscellaneous business and election of officers. Eight separate periods are scheduled for business.

Georgia leader refuses invitation to stay to 70, sets retirement at 68

Searcy S. Garrison, executive secretary-treasurer of the Georgia Baptist Convention executive committee since 1955, has announced his retirement effective Dec. 31, 1980.

Garrison made the surprise announcement to the Georgia Baptist executive committee, which had last year asked Garrison to continue in office through 1982, when he would reach age 70.

However, Garrison told the executive committee: "I am persuaded that it's a part of wisdom for me to step aside according to the established policy of the executive committee and the convention." That policy says employees may retire at 65 but must retire at the end of the calendar year in which they reach 68. Garrison will be 68 in November.

Garrison has been chief administrative officer for Georgia Baptists longer than any other executive secretary in Georgia history. He came to the position Jan. 1, 1955 from the pastorate of Bull Street Baptist Church in Savannah and president of the Georgia Baptist Convention.

From 1955 through 1979 annual Cooperative Program gifts from Georgia Baptists have increased from $1.8 million to $12.7 million. During the same period total mission gifts through the executive secretary's office have increased from slightly more than $3 million in 1954 to $27.3 million.

During Garrison's tenure the Georgia Baptist Convention has completed four major capital improvement and endowment programs, with a fifth program now under way. Seven Baptist student centers have been constructed in Georgia, two assembly operations have been developed and a $6 million Baptist center in northeast Atlanta was built.

a traditional second one-year term as president, without accompanying fireworks which erupted last year at Houston.

The anticipated 16,000 messengers to the St. Louis convention will likely replace Abner V. McCall of Waco, Tex. as first vice president and Don Touchton of Brandon, Fla. as second vice president.

The 19 SBC agencies and related auxiliaries and institutions have collectively been assigned five hours and 10 minutes of program time also. They have 18 slots to fill.

Only four major addresses are scheduled. Speakers are: Adrian Rogers, Memphis, Tenn., SBC president (president's address); Ed Young, pastor, Second Baptist Church, Houston, Tex. (convention sermon); Stephen Olford, evangelist, Wheaton, Ill.; and Carl E. Bates, pastor, First Baptist Church, Charlotte, N. C.

William J. Reynolds, guest professor of music at Southwestern Seminary, is director of convention music. A variety of soloists and musical groups will appear.

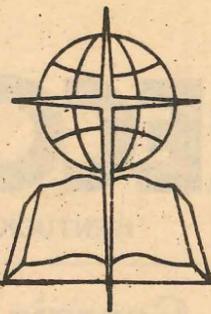

James L. Pleitz of Dallas, chairman of the SBC committee on order of business, commented, "The purpose of the program is to inspire us to carry through on Bold Mission Thrust. We also want to provide enough time to hear from messengers who want to have their say and to conduct the business of the convention."

A complete convention agenda, and programs of other major groups meeting that same week in St. Louis, will appear in Western Recorder's Apr. 9 issue.

Daley Observations

Survival of the frugal

Southern Baptist editors in their annual meeting in mid-February took a hard look at some of the issues confronting Baptists and Baptist churches in the 1980-90 decade. Among the most interesting and demanding challenges Baptists face in the 80's is the American economy. Inflation and spiraling prices already are putting stress on us and apparently the worst is still to come.

The editors' consideration of the economical outlook was led by Orrin D. Morris, a staff member of the Southern Baptist Convention Home Mission Board. Morris claims no special insights but what he sees in this decade will spell difficulties for some Baptist churches and actually threaten the healthful existence of those which don't adjust.

Inflation is here to stay, according to Morris, and we might as well learn to live with it. In the 80's there will be some double digit inflation years but average annual inflation is expected to be in the range of 6-8%. Everything will cost more but energy prices will lead the increases. Conservative estimates put gasoline at $2.00 a gallon by 1985 and $4.00 a gallon by 1990. Some petroleum will be replaced by natural gas and coal but these will not be cheap. Synthetic fuels are not expected to provide much relief before 1990.

This means churches depending upon members to drive considerable distances will lose some of their attractiveness. This includes inner city churches drawing from the distant suburbs and country churches drawing from towns and cities. If a considerable number of workers decide to move back to abandoned areas of cities close to their jobs, older urban community churches may find new life. Walking to church might once again become the style.

Large churches drawing now from distances had better be concerned with organizing car pools and with more use of public transit. Gasoline prices along with the costs of heating and cooling will mean more and more church meetings and activities will be lumped together so that one trip will suffice instead of the present multiple trips to church each week. Committee meetings and other small group activities will more and more take place in neighborhood homes within walking distance of each other instead of in the church.

One of the big questions is whether inflation will eventually affect church contributions. So far Baptists are to be commended for increasing contributions at about the same rate as inflation but predictions are families will more and more feel the pinch and will have to divert some income now used for recreation and other extras to necessities. When it comes to choosing between vacations, mobile homes, boats, etc.

and church contributions, what will the choice be? Committed church members will put church contributions first but not all Baptists are that committed.

The elderly and others on fixed incomes will likely not be able to continue the share of church contributions they have provided. Indeed, some who have been contributors to the church in the past might need financial help from the church to survive in the 80's.

A serious question for the denomination is what will happen should local churches find more and more of their income is required for staff salaries, debt service and utilities? Churches that borrow to build with the interest rates today will really feel the stress and when the choice has to be made between local needs and outside needs, world needs usually suffer. The 80's will be testing times for some churches just at the time they are confronted with the demands of Bold Mission Thrust.

There is one reassuring fact related to the outlook for the 80's. Southern Baptists throughout their history have never been daunted by adversity. Some of our finest hours were when the going was roughest economically. But such times call for careful planning and wisest use of available resources.

Families that do not determine now to alter economic lifestyles to the times will not be able to do their part in undergirding churches financially and churches that do not plan wisely and operate frugally will not be able to bear their share in world mission outreach.

Need for evangelism unites Louisville Christians

It was a crisp, clear March morning in Louisville. The interstates, expressways and streets were crowded with people on the way to their businesses. Several extra hundreds of cars joined the traffic that morning taking hundreds of persons to an unusual business gathering that held more hope for human needs than most any industry that opened for business that morning in Louisville.

It was the "United Christian Witness" prayer breakfast where hundreds from all Christian faiths in Louisville gathered to pray for the forthcoming simultaneous evangelism and renewal campaign in the Louisville area.

This is an unprecedented effort for Louisville. From the Baptist side it was inspired by Bold Mission Thrust and its foremost moving spirit is Allen West. In early planning the question came why not invite all Christian faiths to join in a citywide campaign.

A very warm response came from other groups and the two year planned event is about to take place. The agreed upon dates are from April 6 to May 25 (Easter to Pentecost).

All plans have taken into account the many differences in belief and practices among the groups. Each group and church will do what is considered the thing to do in the way thought proper to do it. In instances like Baptists out and out evangelism will be the emphasis, in other cases the emphases will be upon renewal. While many differences are recognized, all groups are agreed that Jesus is Lord and the deepest need of every human is a redeeming experience with Jesus Christ.

The inspiration included brief contributions from a Methodist, an Episcopalian, a Nazarene, a Baptist and a Roman Catholic. Every one of these speakers included something which drew 'amens' from Baptist participants.

I attended this event both as a reporter and a participant and I came away with an unusual blessing. I got no strong impression it was an ecumenical affair but rather a sincere joining of kindred hearts in search of God's blessings. There was the realization both of diversity and of unity and we were grateful to God for both.

Now for the basic reason for this editorial treatment of a regional activity among Kentucky Baptists. Dr. Allen West asked me to ask every Western Recorder reader to pray for this evangelistic thrust in Louisville. I know many of you will join me in such a prayer.

The indomitable and unflagging Roy Boatwright

Ponce de Leon failed to find everlasting youth because he looked in the wrong place. Instead of looking for a fountain of eternal youth, he should have looked for a man named Roy Boatwright and asked his secret. Many preachers die in their boots but few continue to go at the same rapid rate all the days of their lives.

Roy's energy and enthusiasm seem to increase instead of decline with every passing year. And he is not trying to make up for some lost time because he started preaching at 16 and became a full time pastor at age 17. Since then he has been pastor of several churches, served as a state and associational missionary and was Sunday school director for Kentucky Baptists for many years.

Roy retired officially at 65 but has been busier than ever since then. After several interim pastorates of short duration, he began helping a group of enthusiastic Baptists in Bowling Green who were determined to constitute and to build a new church. In an unbelievably short time the church was begun, choice property was purchased, an entire plan was constructed and a complete model organization was put together.

His latest undertaking is directing the activities of the Franklin Baptist association in the Frankfort area. Early reports indicate positive responses are already obvious. One thing is certain. Those going had better get on board. Roy knows only one throttle setting and that's "full" and only one station and that's "success."

Musically speaking, a worthy note

The enrolment statistics recently released indicate the churches in the Southern Baptist Convention experienced a 2.9% increase in music enrolment.

But did you know Kentucky Baptist churches reported an increase in music enrolment of 5649, or 9%? That's fantastic, and Kentucky led the entire convention in numerical increase.

This remarkable record reflects the leadership of Eugene Quinn and the state music department, as well as it gives evidence of strong leadership in the churches.

I rejoice with you over this growth indicator as Kentucky leads the SBC in this area. Congratulations!
William J. Reynolds, Nashville, Tenn.

Baptist News in Brief

SWBTS

Despite casualties, they preached the Word

A group of high-powered speakers emphasized the authority and power of the scriptures in a Bible conference at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary but told participants it's living the Bible that counts.

The three-day Bible conference originally was to have been jointly sponsored by the seminary and planners of a series of Heart of America Bible Conferences initiated last fall by evangelist James Robison and W. A. Criswell, pastor of First Baptist Church, Dallas, to affirm the authority of the scripture and call for spiritual renewal.

But seminary president Russell Dilday Jr., citing "programming conflicts" with Robison, dropped him from the program and announced in February the seminary would take over sole sponsorship of the event.

Criswell, who had a recent heart attack and is under current doctor's advice to curtail activities not directly related to his pastorate, didn't attend the conference. Another invited speaker, Southern Baptist Convention president Adrian Rogers, was still recovering from gall bladder surgery and did not attend.

The speakers, all Southwestern Seminary graduates who took the podium before packed audiences of 1200 to 1400 in the seminary's Truett Auditorium, focused on the theme "Communicating the Message of the Bible in the '80s."

Bailey Smith, pastor of First Southern Baptist Church, Del City, Okla., described the role of the minister as a paradox. Though a man of limited abilities, the minister is tapped into an unlimited source, he said.

Smith challenged the audience, composed almost exclusively of seminary faculty, students and family members, to capitalize on those things which God has to offer by facing the confrontations of the new decade. "If you want more of the blessings of God, you will have to increase the battle," he said.

James T. Draper Jr., pastor of First Baptist Church, Euless, Tex., said the challenge of the '80s is for God to build great "evangelistic lighthouses" and to use the Bible as the blueprint.

"Preaching the authority of the Bible does not build evangelistic churches. We must believe it but also live it," Draper said.

William M. Pinson Jr., president of Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, emphasized there's no discrimination between proclaiming the gospel and applying the gospel. Although some call application of the Christian message "the social gospel" or "liberal," it is just as important as evangelism in the life of the believer, he said.

Jimmy Allen, president of the Southern Baptist Radio and Television Commission, said he sees a new spiritual hunger and awakening in the world. While modern man may reject the witness at his door, he's constantly turning his television dial, Allen said. He feels the church should use the media as an electronic arm to reach those it could not otherwise reach.

Joel Gregory, pastor of Gambrell Street Baptist Church, Ft. Worth, said institutionalized religion wears on the vitality of the church. The way to avoid this institutionalization is to engage in a healthy criticism of ourselves and our churches, he said.

W. Oscar Thompson, assistant professor of evangelism at Southwestern, said the No. 1 priority in a Christian's life is to bear fruit. Distinguishing between leaves and fruit, Thompson said man will have to account for his fruit, not his leaves. He said baptisms, budgets and buildings are leaves. They can be used for evaluation and measurement, but fruitfulness in the Christian life is achieved by reproducing the character of Christ.

"Fruit is nothing more than the life and ministry of Christ," Thompson said.

Dilday did not formally address the conference but moderated all sessions.

TBC rid of Belmont Plaza

The Tennessee Baptist Convention has signed $675,000 worth of guarantees to facilitate the sale of its troubled Belmont Plaza and renters were to begin occupying the 123-unit retirement center in late March.

The guarantees became necessary to enable Belmont Plaza Inc., a group of Baptist laymen, to secure a $3.5 million mortgage loan from a Nashville bank when the corporation's bond issue proved unsaleable.

Earl Wilson, president of the convention's executive board, blamed the "shaky condition of the bond securities market" for the inability of Equitable Securities Corporation to sell the bonds. The new bond issue was to have defused the original issue of $5 million which was issued by the Tennessee Baptist Service Corporation to build Belmont Plaza.

Because of the wording of the original bond indenture funds derived from sale of bonds couldn't be used for operating expenses as understood by the service corporation. So when the complex was completed in February 1979, there were no operating funds and no one could move in.

Tennessee Baptists met in April 1979 in special called convention for the first time since 1874 and voted then to sell or transfer ownership of the building. In November, the convention accepted the offer to buy from Belmont Plaza Inc.

SEBTS at $3.5 million

Trustees of Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary adopted a $3.5 million budget for 1980-81, elected Paul Fletcher of Marion, Ala. as business manager, agreed to buy a fire truck for the town of Wake Forest and voted to renovate historic Lea Laboratory.

The new budget allocated a major share of the $398,000 increase over 1979-80 to faculty and administrative salaries in an effort to offset skyrocketing living expenses.

The major source of income for the seminary, the Cooperative Program of the churches of the Southern Baptist Convention, will provide $2,510,557, or 71 percent of the budget.

Fletcher, director of development at Judson College, will succeed O. L. Cross, who is retiring July 31. Fletcher, a native of McLean, Va., is a graduate of Wake Forest University and former vice president of the investment banking and brokerage firm of Hornblower and Week-Hemphill Noyes. He begins April 1.

Little women? Here's help

"Woman's Missionary Union in the Small Church" is now available to churches of less than 100 members. Kentucky WMU has produced this mini manual to enable more than 500 Kentucky churches without missions organizations to find an avenue for mission involvement.

The mini manual, written by Mrs. Ross Figart, Boone's Creek association WMU director, is free from Kentucky WMU, Box 43433, Middletown, KY 40243.

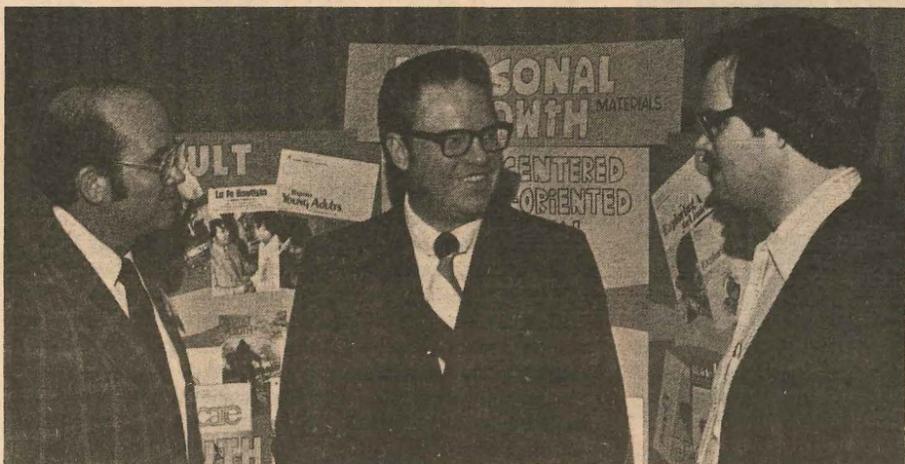

Prepares to depart

For health reasons, C. L. Pair, for seven years editor of the Baptist Beacon, newspaper for Arizona Southern Baptists, will retire Apr. 30.

Pair, who will be 67 Apr. 9, has developed a neuropathy from a 15-year history of diabetes that causes extreme pain, especially in stress situations.

Pair was a pastor in Arizona for 11 years before he became editor of the 12,500 circulation weekly. He was a long time pastor in east Texas before that.

A graduate of Louisiana State University Pair also attended Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. He expects to be involved in part time church staff work after retirement.

More than 200 persons recently participated in a seminar on "Church Training in the '80s" at the Baptist Sunday School Board, Nashville. Shown with Roy Edgemon [c], director of the board's Church Training Department, are Vernon Cole [l] and Mike King of the Kentucky Church Training Department.

Work has been stopped for months on this new Baptist communications center in Buenos Aires, Argentina, because of a shortage of funds to finish the project. J. Robert Burtis [foreground], chairman of Southern Baptist missionaries in Argentina, says the recording studio and other facilities which this building will house are badly needed. But until more money becomes available, the unfinished building serves as a highly visible reminder of the nation's 180 percent inflation rate and the reduced buying power of the American dollar in many countries overseas.

Peace pipe

Like a bridge over troubled waters

by Ray Furr, Staff Writer

Mar. 14-16 I went to one of the best revivals I have ever attended. It was at Myers Park Baptist Church, Charlotte, N. C. They called it a peace conference, but I know a revival when I see one. I am thankful to the church's world citizenship group, "Mission to the Future," and their leaders, John Freeman and Dale Mullinnex, who made the occasion possible for my own spiritual renewal.

All of the elements which are characteristic of revival were obviously present. There was a reading of the Bible. Eugene Owens, pastor of Myers Park, read from Micah 4 and Luke 22. Somehow I could see what he meant when he said, "I can't see Jesus as a marine."

Then came the scary stories. Glen Stassen, associate professor of Christian ethics at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, compared the Russian invasion of Afghanistan to their 1968 intrusion into Czechoslovakia. The SALT I talks ceased then as SALT II talks have stopped now.

"We have increased our ability to be destructive," declared Stassen.

He contended it is possible for the United States to deliver more than 6500 megatons of nuclear explosives on more than 11,000 targets, and we continue to build three more per day. It is frightening when one realizes there is enough nuclear weaponry to completely destroy the world 40 times.

Of course, no revival is complete without preaching about the end of the world. Mike Clark, minister of peace at Riverside Church in New York, believes there is a good probability of nuclear war before the end of the century. "Registering for a new draft may mean we are registering for a new apocalypse."

"The clearest manifestation of death in our time is the idolatrous obsession with military power and the uncontrolled arms race which it engenders. At this moment, there are some 37 armed conflicts raging around the globe, many of which could draw the superpowers into confrontation for the last time," Clark suggested.

I was made aware again of mankind's sin. For every dollar we spend to alleviate human suffering and pain, we spend $50 on weapons which will destroy life. Man has created something he cannot control. We cannot fight a nuclear war and survive.

The Holy Spirit convicted me of my sin at the Myers Park peace conference. I thought if I would continue to sit back in my quaint, secure life and not become involved, it would all work itself out for the best. The end of the world is not the best result. We do not have the right to destroy something we cannot create. We do not have the right to force Jesus' hand to come again as Judas tried to force his hand to his messianic expectations. My sin of omission will not allow life for those I love.

I was called to repentance. It is a New Testament word which means "a change of mind." God is Creator, Judge and Redeemer in this world and we are his instruments.

Bill Elder, minister of Christian citizenship, Christian Life Commission, suggested to peace conference constituents, "There is a thread of hope. We must find out what kind of peace policy we need, find out who shapes this policy and shape the policy shapers."

The final element of revival is the invitation. All four speakers suggested ways by which people may know we are disciples of Christ working towards a peaceful world.

First, we need to find out all the facts.

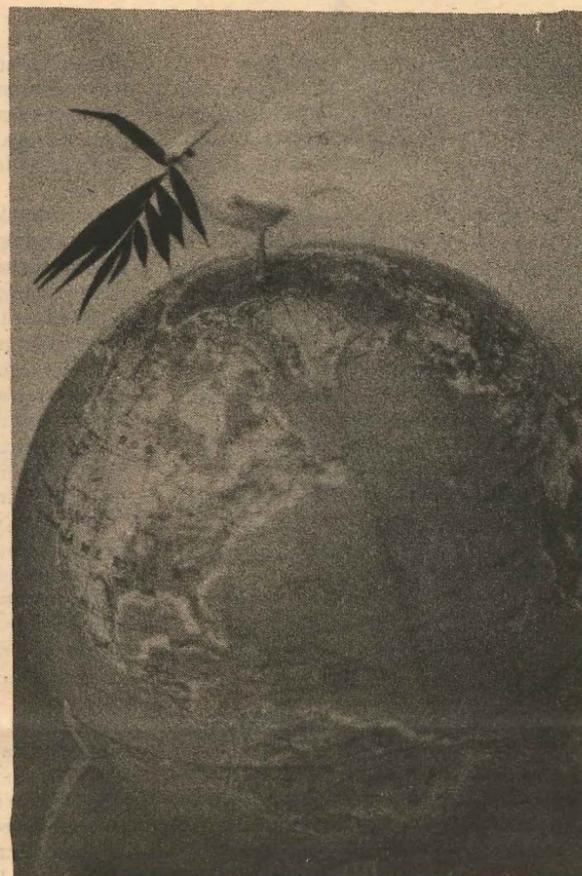

Second, we need to write a personal letter to our congressman telling him how we feel about policy.

Third, there is a need for organized peace groups within the local church which meet regularly and discuss new issues as well as alternative actions.

Fourth, denominational leadership should have at least one full time employe working as a peacemaker.

Finally, we need to preach sermons and hold more peace conferences like the one at Myers Park Baptist Church.

There is hope for peace if we take our Christian discipleship seriously.

Handel bars

The bells were ringing

Commission, SBC, entertain questions about peacemaking in an open forum at the Myers Park Baptist Church peace conference.

The fifth annual statewide handbell festival, sponsored by the Kentucky Baptist Convention's Church Music Department, was held Mar. 8 at Walnut Street Baptist Church, Louisville. Seventeen churches, representing 23 individual choirs, attended. Eugene F. Quinn, department director, estimated about 350 people attended.

When the handbell festivals began five years ago they were attended by approximately 60 people. Since that time the number of Kentucky Baptist churches having handbell choirs has increased to about 56.

One of the biggest drawbacks in starting a handbell choir is the expense. Quinn stated each bell octave costs about $1000 and a church cannot have a choir without two octaves.

Donald Allured, Birmingham, Ala., the only full time handbell clinician in the country, led the mass choir rehearsals. He taught the choirs improved ringing techniques and new information about their bells. In addition, he critiqued the 11 choirs participating in optional solo numbers.

Don Spencer, associate director of the state music department, declared, "We were delighted with the increased representation. All responses we heard about the festival were positive."

Plans are under way for next year's festival on Mar. 7 at a place to be announced.

Grace Baptist Church, Pike Association, has called Robert Bozarth as its new pastor. Bozarth's first day on the field will be Mar. 30.

Bozarth comes to Grace from Gary, Ind. He has previously pastored East Williamson Baptist Church and had been the moderator of Pike Association.

Dunn assumes dual duties Apr. 1
Robert Dunn, pastor, Greenview Baptist Church, Northern Kentucky Association, will begin duties as joint manager of the Baptist Retirement Village and Bullittsburg Baptist Assembly Apr. 1.

Dunn has been on the convalescent center board and the building committee of the association during construction of the new building.

A native of Paducah, Dunn is a graduate of Murray State University and Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary.

Dunn has previously pastored Olivet Baptist Church, Paducah.

He and his wife, Ann, have five children.

Congregations

Potts honored at Farmdale
W. G. Potts was honored by Farmdale Baptist Church, Louisville, where he is a member, Mar. 9.

He has been a Baptist minister for 70 years. He preached his first sermon in Mt. Pleasant Baptist Church, Shelby County, Mar. 6, 1910. He has served many Kentucky churches as pastor and was associational missionary for Ohio River Association.

Potts is 92.
The church closed the service by singing his favorite hymn, "Shall We Gather at the River?"

Versailles adopts Ivyton First
Last year Versailles Baptist Church decided it needed more personal and direct involvement in missions. It reached out to Ivyton First Baptist Church, near Salyersville.

Last October the attendance of Ivyton First was running in the fifties. Just recently it had 90 in attendance. Throughout the winter the church held regular baptismal services.

Versailles Baptist Church budgets a modest amount for Ivyton First each month. It has been the desire of Versailles Baptist Church to have this direct mission involvement while increasing Cooperative Program and associational mission gifts.

49 bells to FBC Franklin
A new set of carillons will be installed Apr. 27 at Franklin First Baptist Church.

Another new addition to the church is a four-octave set of handbells, donated by Paul Massey in memory of his wife, Ruth. The church will also be receiving eight modular tables, gloves, music binders and stand, padding and cloth for the table and music for the handbell choirs.

Munday directs new movement
Ron Munday, pastor of Sharon Baptist Church, Graves County Association, is national director of the new 180° movement. The program is an operation to help men and women who have problems with alcohol or other drugs.

The association invites any church interested in beginning a program or in making a contribution to contact the National 180° Association, Box 336, Mayfield, KY 42066.

Rogerses hold family conference
Bill and Martha Rogers will lead the first family life conference held at First Baptist Church, Burkesville. The conference will begin at 7 p.m. Friday, Apr. 18.

Rogers will speak on biblical foundations for marriage and family. Saturday he will deal with practical suggestions to help families communicate.

Mrs. Rogers will lead a conference on parenting principles. The Sunday sermon will be "Coping with Stress in the Family."

The service will be followed by a single adult fellowship and a discussion of pressures single adults face in today's world.

Graefenburg adds WR supplement
Graefenburg Baptist Church, Waddy, has begun publishing a monthly supplement to its church newsletter, using the back page of Western Recorder. The state Baptist paper is sent to every resident family weekly, with a page devoted monthly to Graefenburg's local news.

Pastor John Hewett told his people Western Recorder is "an invaluable aid in keeping up communication between Kentucky Baptists."

Any church interested in a similar plan may contact the Recorder office in Middletown.

Immanuel to honor Hamilton
Mar. 30 has been designated to honor Roy Hamilton's 50th anniversary of preaching at Immanuel Baptist Church, Louisville. Hamilton was pastor of Immanuel on two occasions, 1951-64 and 1972-76. After his retirement in 1976 he was elected pastor emeritus of Immanuel.

He has been invited to preach at the morning worship service Mar. 30 celebrating the date he preached his first sermon Mar. 30, 1930.

A fellowship meal will follow the service.

Charles Holland recognized
Charles W. Holland, Louisville, was given a recognition dinner at Pleasant Ridge Baptist Church, Charlestown, Ind. He was honored for three months as interim pastor.

Ronnie Carter is the new pastor.

Virgie observes anniversary
Virgie Baptist Church, Pike Association, observed its sixth anniversary with a first annual homecoming service Mar. 16.

Virgie recently voted to start a Brotherhood program and has purchased a sound system for the sanctuary.

Gardenside donates bus
Gardenside Baptist Church, Elkhorn Association, has given a 66-passenger bus to New Castlewood Baptist Church, Castlewood, Va.

Gary Robinson, a student at Clear Creek, is pastor at New Castlewood. When he became pastor in October 1978 the church was averaging nine in Sunday school. Sunday school attendance has jumped to an average of 59 since then.

James Heard is pastor at Gardenside.

Deaths

Mrs. Yokley dies at home
Sallie Branch Vann Yokley, 89, died Mar. 6 at her home in Washington, D. C.

A graduate of Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, she was active in Baptist churches in both Southern and Northern Baptist conventions with her late husband, W. Ross Yokley.

Mrs. Yokley is survived by four daughters and seven grandchildren.

Services were held at Highland Baptist Church, Louisville, where she was a long time member. Interment was in Zachary Taylor National Cemetery, Louisville.

Ordinations

England tapped by Fountain Run
First Baptist Church, Fountain Run, ordained Clyde England Jr. to the ministry Feb. 17.

Emmitt Strode was the moderator of the presbytery; Marcus Sherfey, clerk; Evans Lemons led the interrogation; L. G. Wood delivered the ordination sermon; Carline Spears brought the ordination prayer; C. D. Thomerson gave the charge to the church and the candidate; and Enoch Carter presented the ordination Bible.

England is pastor of Oak Grove Baptist Church.

Christian Education

E'town for Campbellsville

Elizabethtown businessmen voted to participate with Campbellsville College in its diamond jubilee celebration commemorating the college's 75th anniversary. The decision was made at a Feb. 14 meeting of 40 area businessmen.

The campaign, known as the Elizabethtown Diamond Jubilee Campaign for Campbellsville College, is one of a series being conducted to raise funds for the school during its birthday celebration.

Hankins Parker joins SBTS

Hankins F. Parker, former pastor of churches in Florida and Kentucky, has been named director of estate planning at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. He will also be associate director of Southern Seminary Foundation, a non-profit corporation that manages charitable trusts for donors who wish to receive income from their gifts to the seminary.

Parker, who has been pastor of both Highland and Melbourne Heights Baptist churches in Louisville, was formerly pastor of First Baptist Church, Paducah, and Miami Springs (Fla.) Baptist Church. A native of Florida, he and his wife, Frances, have three daughters.

GC names Apple, Hawkins

Ben M. Elrod, president, Georgetown College, has announced Lindsey Apple and Bert Hawkins will assume new administrative positions at the college effective June 1.

Apple, dean of students at Georgetown since 1974, will rejoin the history faculty to direct interdisciplinary studies. Hawkins will become dean of students.

Apple, a graduate of Georgetown College, joined the history faculty in 1970 after earning the master's degree from the University of Kentucky and the PhD degree from the University of South Carolina.

Hawkins, also a Georgetown alumnus, joined the college administration last July.

He has extensive administrative experience. He has taught at Eastern Kentucky University and has been assistant director, then director of the Kentucky law enforcement council program fund before becoming director of public safety at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

He was the administrator of the executive office of staff services for the Kentucky Department of Justice before being named commissioner of public safety for the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government.

Wayland president retiring

Roy C. McClung, president of Wayland Baptist College, Plainview, Tex., announced he will retire as soon as the college trustees can find and install a new president—as early as July 1 and no later than Jan. 1.

McClung, 62, was pastor of First Baptist Church, Plainview, a post he had held since 1958, when he became president of the school in 1963.

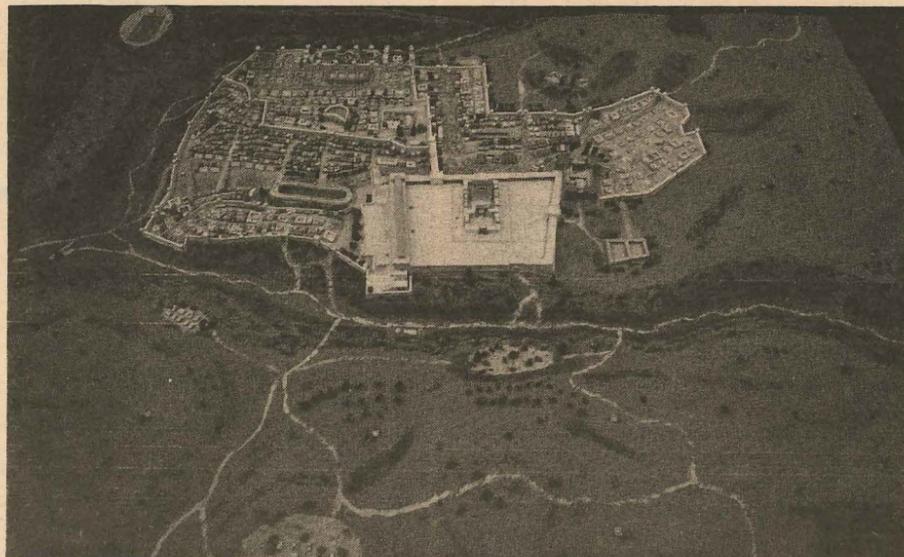

He was named president of the Wayland Foundation, the development arm of the college, and will continue to work for the college in that area.

Jerusalem at Clear Creek?

In 1972 a dream emerged to build a lifelike three-dimensional scale model of the city of Jerusalem at Clear Creek Baptist School. That summer professor Robert Fitts suggested constructing a model of the biblical landmark for teaching a basic course in biblical introduction.

Former students Wayne Henderson of Elizabethtown and Joe Mobley of London gathered materials for the foundation of the model. Professor Tommy Holtzclaw, professor Robert Fitts, many students, interested alumni, Air Force Captain J. C. Bowling (an electronics engineer) and others with special professional skills moved the project along. It was decided to simulate the topography of the area during the time of Jesus and also depict the streets, walls and buildings.

In November 1979, seven years later, the dream became a reality. The city was finished. This grand city of the ages is depicted as it was during the days of Jesus Christ.

The lifelike three-dimensional scale model at Clear Creek School depicts Jerusalem as it was during the days of our Lord. Built to a scale of one inch equals 80 feet and constructed of wood, styrofoam and plaster, the city where Jesus Christ spent the last days of his earthly ministry comes to life. Lights and recorded taped narration guide the viewer along the footsteps of Jesus. Research and careful construction allows the viewer to receive educational enlightenment as well as an inspirational uplift.

SWBTS gives 13% raises

Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary adopted a $9.6 million budget and elected seven new faculty members during the spring trustees meeting.

The budget for the 1980-81 fiscal year is a 14 percent increase over the current $8.4 million budget and includes salary increases of 13 percent for faculty and staff.

According to Russell H. Dilday Jr., seminary president, 69 percent of the new budget will be used for educational instruction. The Southern Baptist Convention Cooperative Program will provide 56 percent of the total.

The trustees elected five new faculty in theology and one each in religious education and church music.

Thomas V. Brisco, 31, was elected instructor of biblical backgrounds. Brisco currently is instructor of religion at Ouachita Baptist University in Arkadelphia, Ark.

Guy Greenfield, 47, was selected professor of Christian ethics with tenure effective May 15. He is presently pastor of the White Rock Baptist Church, Los Alamos, N. M.

Dan G. Kent, 44, associate professor of religion at Wayland Baptist College, Plainview, Tex., is a new associate professor of Old Testament.

William Kirkpatrick, 41, was elected associate professor of theology with tenure effective Aug. 1. He's associate professor of religion at William Jewell College, Liberty, Mo.

Robert Bryan Sloan Jr., 31, of Roscoe, Tex., was elected instructor of theology. Sloan is currently pastor of the First Baptist Church, Roscoe.

Robert Raus, 48, will become associate professor of church recreation. He's associate professor and program director of recreation and park administration at Illinois State University.

Charles David Keith, 31, was elected to the full time faculty as assistant professor of conducting. He has been guest instructor during the 1979-80 academic year.

Granted tenure were L. Russ Bush III, assistant professor of philosophy of religion; Al Fasol, assistant professor of preaching; Tom J. Nettles, assistant professor of church history; and Ebbie C. Smith, associate professor of Christian ethics and missions.

The Campbellsville College Collegiate Chorale, under the direction of Larry Reed, associate professor of music, will begin its annual spring tour Apr. 5-13. The groups' repertoire consists of hymn arrangements, spirituals, patriotic songs, as well as compositions by Beethoven and other masters. Also featured will be several original numbers by staff members of Kentucky colleges and churches, and puppetry by Mark Hughes, a senior church recreation major from Daylight, Ind. The chorale will stop in Brownsburg, Indianapolis, Hammond and Gary, Ind.; Richmond, Marengo, Batavia and Godfrey, Ill.

Mary Magdalene

John 20:1-2 Certain women observed where Joseph and Nicodemus placed the body of Christ in the sepulcher, and then returned to their homes and rested on the Sabbath. Before sunrise on Sunday morning Mary Magdalene went to the tomb to anoint the body of Christ as a token of her love for him. She was amazed to find the stone had been rolled away from the entrance and the body of Christ was not there. Mary Magdalene ran quickly to Peter and John to inform them the body of Christ was not in the sepulcher.

John 20:11-18 The alarming news caused Peter and John to run hastily to the tomb and to enter it. When they failed to find Christ's body in the tomb they were amazed and then returned to their homes promptly.

Mary Magdalene was not able to remain away from the spot where her Lord's body had been placed. Knowing Christ's body was not in the tomb, Mary's grief increased tremendously, but it would have been better had she rejoiced that his grave was empty, as proof of his deity and messiahship.

In grief, Mary Magdalene stooped down and gazed into the tomb. She saw two angels in white apparel, sitting where they had laid the body of Christ. Turning around she saw Christ, but failed to recognize him. He inquired: "Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou?" Thinking she was talking with the gardener, Mary urged him to tell her where his body had been placed. As soon as he called her "Mary," she recognized his tender and familiar voice and exclaimed: "My Great Master." Thus she was the first to see, recognize and talk with the risen Christ.

After forbidding Mary Magdalene to touch him because he had not yet ascended to the Father, Christ commanded her to go and tell his disciples about his resurrection and forthcoming ascension. She promptly did what he told her to do, as any true disciple should do.

LIFE AND WORK SERIES

The gospel of resurrection

The content of the gospel—1 Cor. 15:1-5 The gospel which Paul preached was received by revelation from the Lord. Also, it was connected very closely with the Old Testament. The gospel is the announcement of the "good news" or "glad tidings" God has provided righteousness for unrighteous men. It is the "good news" of salvation which is offered freely in Christ.

There were three facts in the gospel which Paul preached to the saving of those who believed on Christ.

1. Christ's death. In fulfillment of Old Testament scriptures, like Isa. 53, Christ died on the cross to atone for our sins and provide a way for our forgiveness. By Christ's death every believer in him is set free from the penalty of his sin and reconciled to God.

2. Christ's burial. Christ was buried in the tomb of Joseph of Arimathea. His burial showed the reality of his death, and the fulness with which he shared human experience.

3. Christ's resurrection. Early Sunday morning Christ arose from the dead, laid aside his grave clothes, and walked out of the tomb, triumphant over death and the grave.

These three events—Christ's death, burial and resurrection—constitute the outstanding truths of the gospel which Paul preached to the Corinthians. These facts should increase our faith in love for and devotion to Christ. Paul stated various eyewitnesses of the risen Lord, including Cephas or Peter, the apostles, 500 brethren and others could testify they had seen the Lord after his resurrection.

The centrality of the resurrection—1 Cor. 15:12-19 If Christ had not arisen, he would still be dead, all the preaching through these 19 centuries would have been "vain" because it would have been the proclamation of a falsehood, all faith in Christ would have been exercised in vain and would have been worthless because it would have been rooted in a delusion, the faith of all living Christians would be resting on what never happened, the righteous would have perished and the Christian life would be a misery.

The certainty of the resurrection—1 Cor. 15:20 Nothing is any more certain than the resurrection of Christ's body from the dead, and because he did arise our horizon shines with the light of eternal hope, for we shall arise from the dead also.

Civilization

Frank Owen

Up until about 1960 (in America, at least) it was rather assumed that mankind was becoming more and more civilized all the time. And there was a kind of worldwide scientific advancement of comforts, arts and sciences, culture, etc. Society was seen as on a sort of automatic escalator that could go no way but up. Those things that had belonged to only the few were becoming more nearly the universal possessions of people at all levels of society and likewise in other places on the globe. Except for outbreaks of war, itself, mankind all over seemed to have been growing gentler, more refined, more and more cultured—civilized.

It is obvious, now, that something has been happening to this former progress. A process of de-civilization seems to have set in that can scarcely be denied any longer.

It seems like it first began to appear in the hijacking of airplanes, which has now popularized in these latter years. We have had to install elaborate and costly screening equipment and personnel at every airport.

It first showed itself in international relation at Munich, Germany when members of Israel's Olympic team were held hostage and then slain.

Kidnapping now has become a mode of statesmanship. Terrorism is a diplomatic weapon. The way for a nation to deal with its fellows is to kidnap its visitors and hold them hostage. We are being kept in prayerful fear for hostages in the hands of people of violent reputation, even whose religious faith has been known as the Religion of the Sword.

It was terrible for gangland hoodlums to reek violence upon one another but when governments so behave toward each other internationally in peacetime we indeed are beginning to lose our grip on civilization. Society is losing the power of self-control. The wisdom, character and skill to govern ourselves are threatening to slip from us.

A true revival of the religion of our Lord Jesus Christ would halt this deterioration and save society. Lord, let it begin in America! "The light that shines brightest at home shines farthest abroad."

Laymen need the state paper

Glendon McCullough wrote these words shortly before his untimely death in an auto accident in 1978. He will be remembered as executive director of the SBC Brotherhood Commission, Memphis, Tenn. His message is as vital today as it was then.

A lack of knowledge about what is going on in our Baptist fellowship is a luxury Baptist laymen can no longer afford.

Baptists and other Christians in some parts of the state, the nation and the world are doing things other laymen should know about.

This exchange of ideas, this knowledge about exciting things going on in missions and in all other areas of Christian endeavor is a most significant ingredient to a healthy, mature Baptist life.

There is no better way for a Baptist layman to participate in this exchange of ideas than by reading regularly the Baptist state paper.

Every Baptist church member should have access to his state Baptist paper.

Admittedly, some of the publications are better than others. Any state Baptist fellowship, however, is strengthened when its constituency knows what is going on.

Many Baptist state paper editors have taken courageous stands on controversial issues in the denomination. For some, it has even taken courage to print news Southern Baptists ought to be told. They are due our admiration and respect for courage to print the truth, even though at times the truth might seem to hurt.

Most of the time, the news is good. Sometimes it is not. But I feel Baptist editors should "tell it like it is," and lay people should respect the integrity of those who face up to their problems as well as their strengths. This is a healthy sign in Southern Baptist life.

The state paper plays a unique role in Southern Baptist life. It is a forum for discussion of issues. It seeks to inform Baptist lay people on what is going on. And it tells the inspiring story of what Baptists are doing together, working through the state conventions, the Southern Baptist Convention and the Cooperative Program that undergirds state missions, home missions, foreign missions.

Every layman in the SBC needs to read the state paper. Laymen have the responsibility for seeing to it the state paper is in the church budget.
