WMU House Party challenged to use God's power for others

Approximately 700 members of Tennessee Woman's Missionary Union attended the annual WMU House Party last weekend at Belmont College in Nashville.

Using the theme of "In the Fullness of Power," the ladies were challenged by speakers and program features to use their lives as a channel of God's power to a needy world. In addition to the four general sessions during the three-day event, there were also two conference periods for leaders and officers in various WMU organizations.

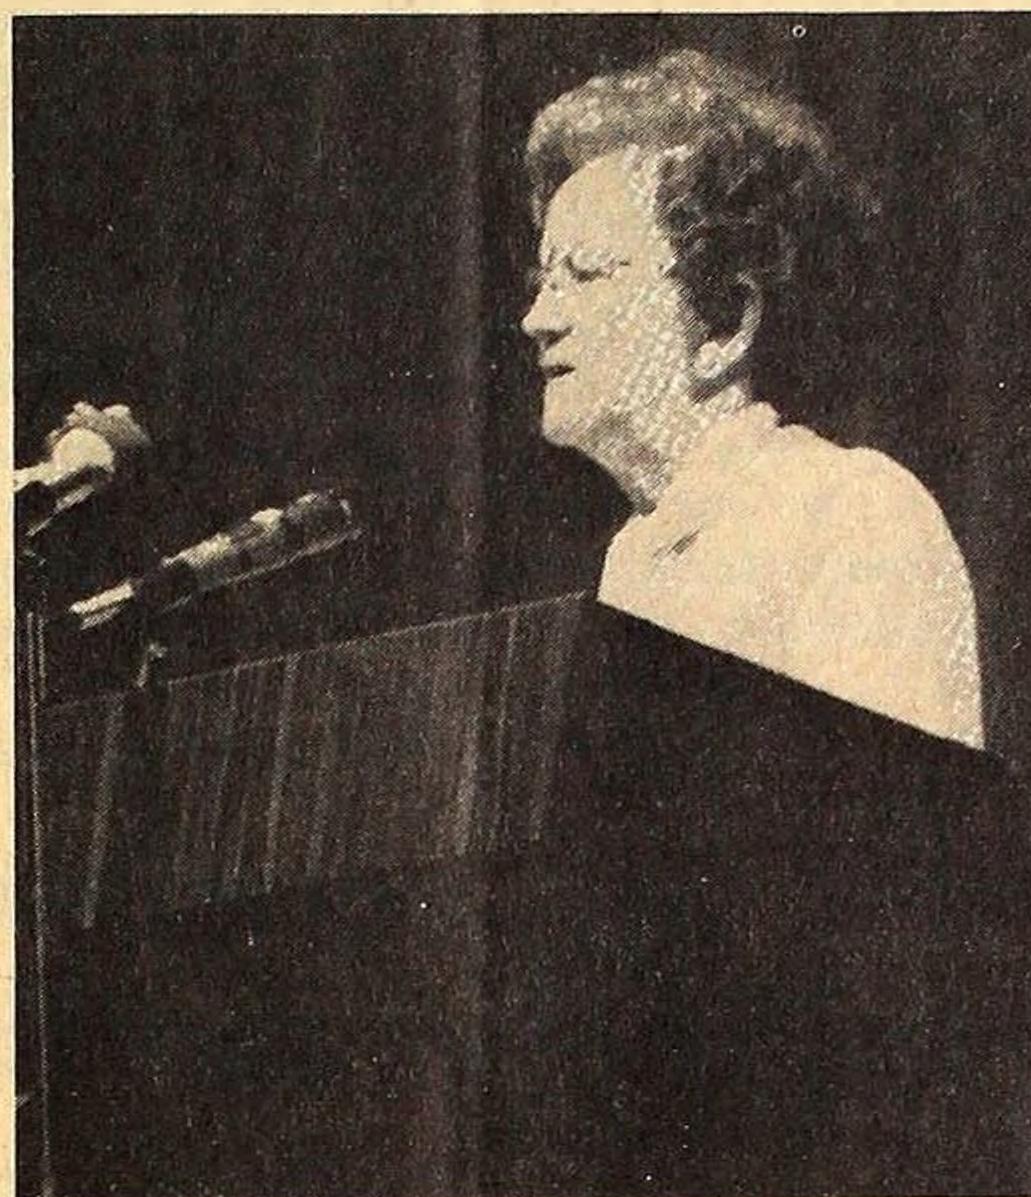

Mrs. Claude Jennings of Lebanon, state WMU president, presided over the annual House Party.

Roy Edgemon, church training director at the Baptist Sunday School Board, Nashville, in his three messages noted that Christians can have God's power if they are willing to see the need for that power. "Until we see the needs, nothing is going to happen in our lives and in our world," he said.

Edgemon added that Christians must also find the place where God wants them to serve and then live the life that will honor Him.

Meditation periods at each of the four sessions were led by Mrs. Roy McGlamery of Memphis. She and her husband are presently on a medical leave from missionary service in Gaza.

Mrs. McGlamery suggested that the ladies make a prayer list from the daily newspaper, asking God to help those facing tragedy. "We need to get our vision away from ourselves and realize there are those out there who need our prayers and our God."

She urged obedience to God in all things. "Regardless how simple the task might seem, it will bring joy," she stated.

Other speakers at the annual House Party were Mrs. Trent Butler, missionary of Switzerland, who told of the ministry of the Baptist Seminary there; and Michael DuVal, US-2 missionary of the Home Mission Board who works as assistant chaplain at the Memphis Correctional Center.

Music was directed by Malvie Giles, concert artist from Magnolia, Ark.

Billy Graham to preach in Poland in October

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Billy Graham will preach in six major cities of Poland, Oct. 6-16, 1978.

Graham, who preached in Hungary for a week in September of 1977, will preach in Poland's capital city of Warsaw and in the historic university and religious center of Cracow. He will also deliver sermons in the industrial and commercial centers of Poznan, Wroclaw, Katowice, and Bialystok.

"I will preach the same gospel in Poland that I have preached around the world for 30 years," Graham said. "There will be no restrictions on my preaching." (BP)

Baptists give aid to Beirut victims

BEIRUT, Lebanon—The Baptist relief committee in Lebanon has spent more than $6,000 in the past month alleviating the suffering of war victims.

The victims included members of the Jerius Toume family, who lived under a tree for 31 days afraid to return to the area where they'd been living.

The committee used more than $3,000 to buy foam mattresses, blankets, sheets, towels, and clothing for people who fled their homes in areas of fighting. The goods were distributed among thousands sleeping in schools, churches, and open fields.

These included the family of Toume, a gatekeeper at the Beirut Baptist School. They have repeatedly endured homelessness and material loss. Since 1975 they've been unable to go to their farm in South Lebanon. During the fighting of 1975-76, they lost their possessions and place of residence in a Beirut suburb. More than 60,000 persons lost their lives in that civil war.

The Baptist committee, made up of local Baptists and missionaries, also allocated money to assist a pastor and several other specific families.

Other relief money is being used to help the Badarro Street Baptist Church repair damage to its building and to replace broken windows in several homes.

The relief committee expects that many families will find their apartments looted when they return home, and the committee will try to ascertain the extent of need created by the looting problem.

Premises of the National Baptist Church in Ashrafiyeh, a Christian Suburb, have been occupied by a right-wing military group. This includes a ground-floor apartment used for church services and the pastor's home above it. The pastor is in the United States, and a Baptist family living in his home was absent when the apartments were seized. (BP)

Prior to the Alexandria pastorate, he led Hickory Hills Church in Memphis and East Commerce Church in Lewisburg. He was interim pastor of Audubon Park Church in Memphis, which is his home church.

Brainerd team builds structure for Pennsylvania church—twice

For over 1,000 hours last month, 51 men, women, and young people from Brainerd Church in Chattanooga labored to build the Indiana Southern Baptist Church in Indiana, Penn.

On Sunday afternoon, July 23, just hours after they had returned home to share their experiences, the group learned that a severe wind storm had eradicated their efforts. Tornadic winds of up to 60 m.p.h had swept through the small Pennsylvania town 50 miles east of Pittsburgh, leveling the newly constructed facility.

Many of the men and women on the mission team had taken vacation time to give to the Bold Mission Thrust effort. "We were all heartbroken to learn of the storm that destroyed the building our mission team erected," Pastor Winford L. Hendrix related. "Although we were all distraught, we were convinced that God had a greater purpose in the efforts we had exerted."

Hendrix's conviction, coupled with the determination expressed by the mission team, resulted in the church membership pledging their strength to rebuild the sanctuary.

Last week, some of the members of the first mission team set their sights northward again, and trekked the 700 miles from Chattanooga to Pennsylvania to rebuild the church.

The group learned that nearly $40,000 in damage was done to the structure where John Stair is pastor. They were committed to rebuild, and to further entrench the gospel of Jesus Christ in the area surrounding Indiana, Hendrix told Baptist and Reflector.

He explained that Southern Baptists are scarce in Pennsylvania, and the influx of Christians has been a real testimony to the people.

"During the initial building period, a number of people from the town visited with our mission team and the church's pastor to find out what they were doing," he said. "Now that the team is back up there rebuilding, our witness is even more profound."

The church has received considerable publicity since the storm, resulting in further inquiries from the townspeople.

Stair shares the conviction of the mission team. "He was very disappointed by what occurred," Hendrix said, "but he, too, knows that the Lord can use this for a larger purpose."

Shortage of sponsors handicaps Mission Service Corps growth

RIDGECREST, N. C.—Mission Service Corps assignments are being slowed because of the lack of available sponsorship, David Bunch told more than 2,500 persons at Ridgecrest Baptist Conference Center.

Bunch, director of Mission Service Corps coordination for the Southern Baptist Home Mission Board, briefed participants at Home Missions Week on the status of the denomination's plan to send 5,000 one-and-two-year volunteers to the field by 1982 to supplement career home and foreign missionaries.

"We currently have 60 persons who have been processed and approved who could go to the home mission field immediately if they had financial sponsorship," Bunch said. "Some of those persons have partial sponsorship but do not have sufficient funds to allow them to serve on the field."

So far, Bunch said, 134 persons have applied for home missions service through MSC. Of that number, 47 have been assigned, and 38 of those are serving on the field. These figures do not include Foreign Mission Board totals.

Of the 38 persons already on the home mission field, nine have full sponsorship provided by persons who made commitments during a dinner in Washington, D. C., last May for interested Baptists who have financial resources.

Commenting on the report, William G. Tanner, executive director-treasurer of the Home Mission Board, noted: "There are hundreds of people who want to serve the Lord who are only awaiting financial sponsorship to go to a mission field. There are hundreds of young people who want a career in missions who are waiting on funding so they can be appointed.

"Southern Baptists must be far more responsible in the giving of our money to fund the kind of advance we need if we are to present the gospel to every person in our land by the year 2000," Tanner said. "On the average, each Southern Baptist gave about the amount of a hamburger to home missions last year. We must do far better than that if we expect to win our land."

Bunch said Southern Baptists are in a learning process about Mission Service Corps, which was adopted by messengers to the 1977 Southern Baptist Convention in Kansas City.

"Mission Service Corps is a totally new approach to providing missionary personnel," he said. "Because Southern Baptists are so numerous and so diverse, it is taking time to teach everyone the how to of MSC."

Bunch noted Southern Baptists "are unaccustomed to securing their own sponsorship. We have been slow—so far—to accept the responsibility for developing our own financial support. The slowness is not negative. We are just learning how to do it. In fact we are moving faster than I thought we would."

"We have had a tremendous number of inquiries, and now some persons who made inquiries are beginning to respond with applications," he said. "Since many of our people work, it has taken time for them to arrange schedules and their jobs so that they may serve in one or two year appointments."

"Everywhere I go, however, I find people excited about getting into MSC," he said. "This includes church, associational, and state leaders as well as individuals. (BP)

Church tries drive for mission funds

PASCAGOULA, Miss.—Calvary Baptist Church has launched a pilot project to raise funds for the Southern Baptist Bold Mission Thrust above regular contributions.

The church in Pascagoula, Miss., may be the first Southern Baptist church to involve itself in a fund-raising campaign for Bold Mission Thrust, the SBC plan to reach the world for Christ by the year 2000, says John Alexander of Jackson, Miss.

"We can't reach the current Bold Mission Goal (which calls for significant increases in funds and personnel) at the current rate of giving," says Alexander, director of the Mississippi Baptist Convention's stewardship department, which is directing the Missions Challenge Campaign at the church.

Alexander bases the campaign on a modified version of the "Together We Build" fund raising plan for church construction promoted by Southern Baptist stewardship leaders. But he said it adds a prayer emphasis, a missions education emphasis, and an emphasis on Mission Service Corps, the Southern Baptist Convention effort to place 5,000 short-term mission volunteers on home and foreign mission fields.

"And an advantage is that we're reaching top financial leaders in the church with a missions education program whom we aren't usually able to reach through regular missions education programs," says Alexander.

The church hopes to raise over $100,000 for Bold Mission Thrust. "We have had a growing concern about our need for a greater commitment to missions," said Byron Mathis, pastor of the Pascagoula church. "This new campaign gives us the tool we have been searching for to inform and commit our people."

Alexander says such a program will do no damage to regular giving, citing examples where churches have continued to give over and above regular offerings after they were challenged to give for a special purpose.

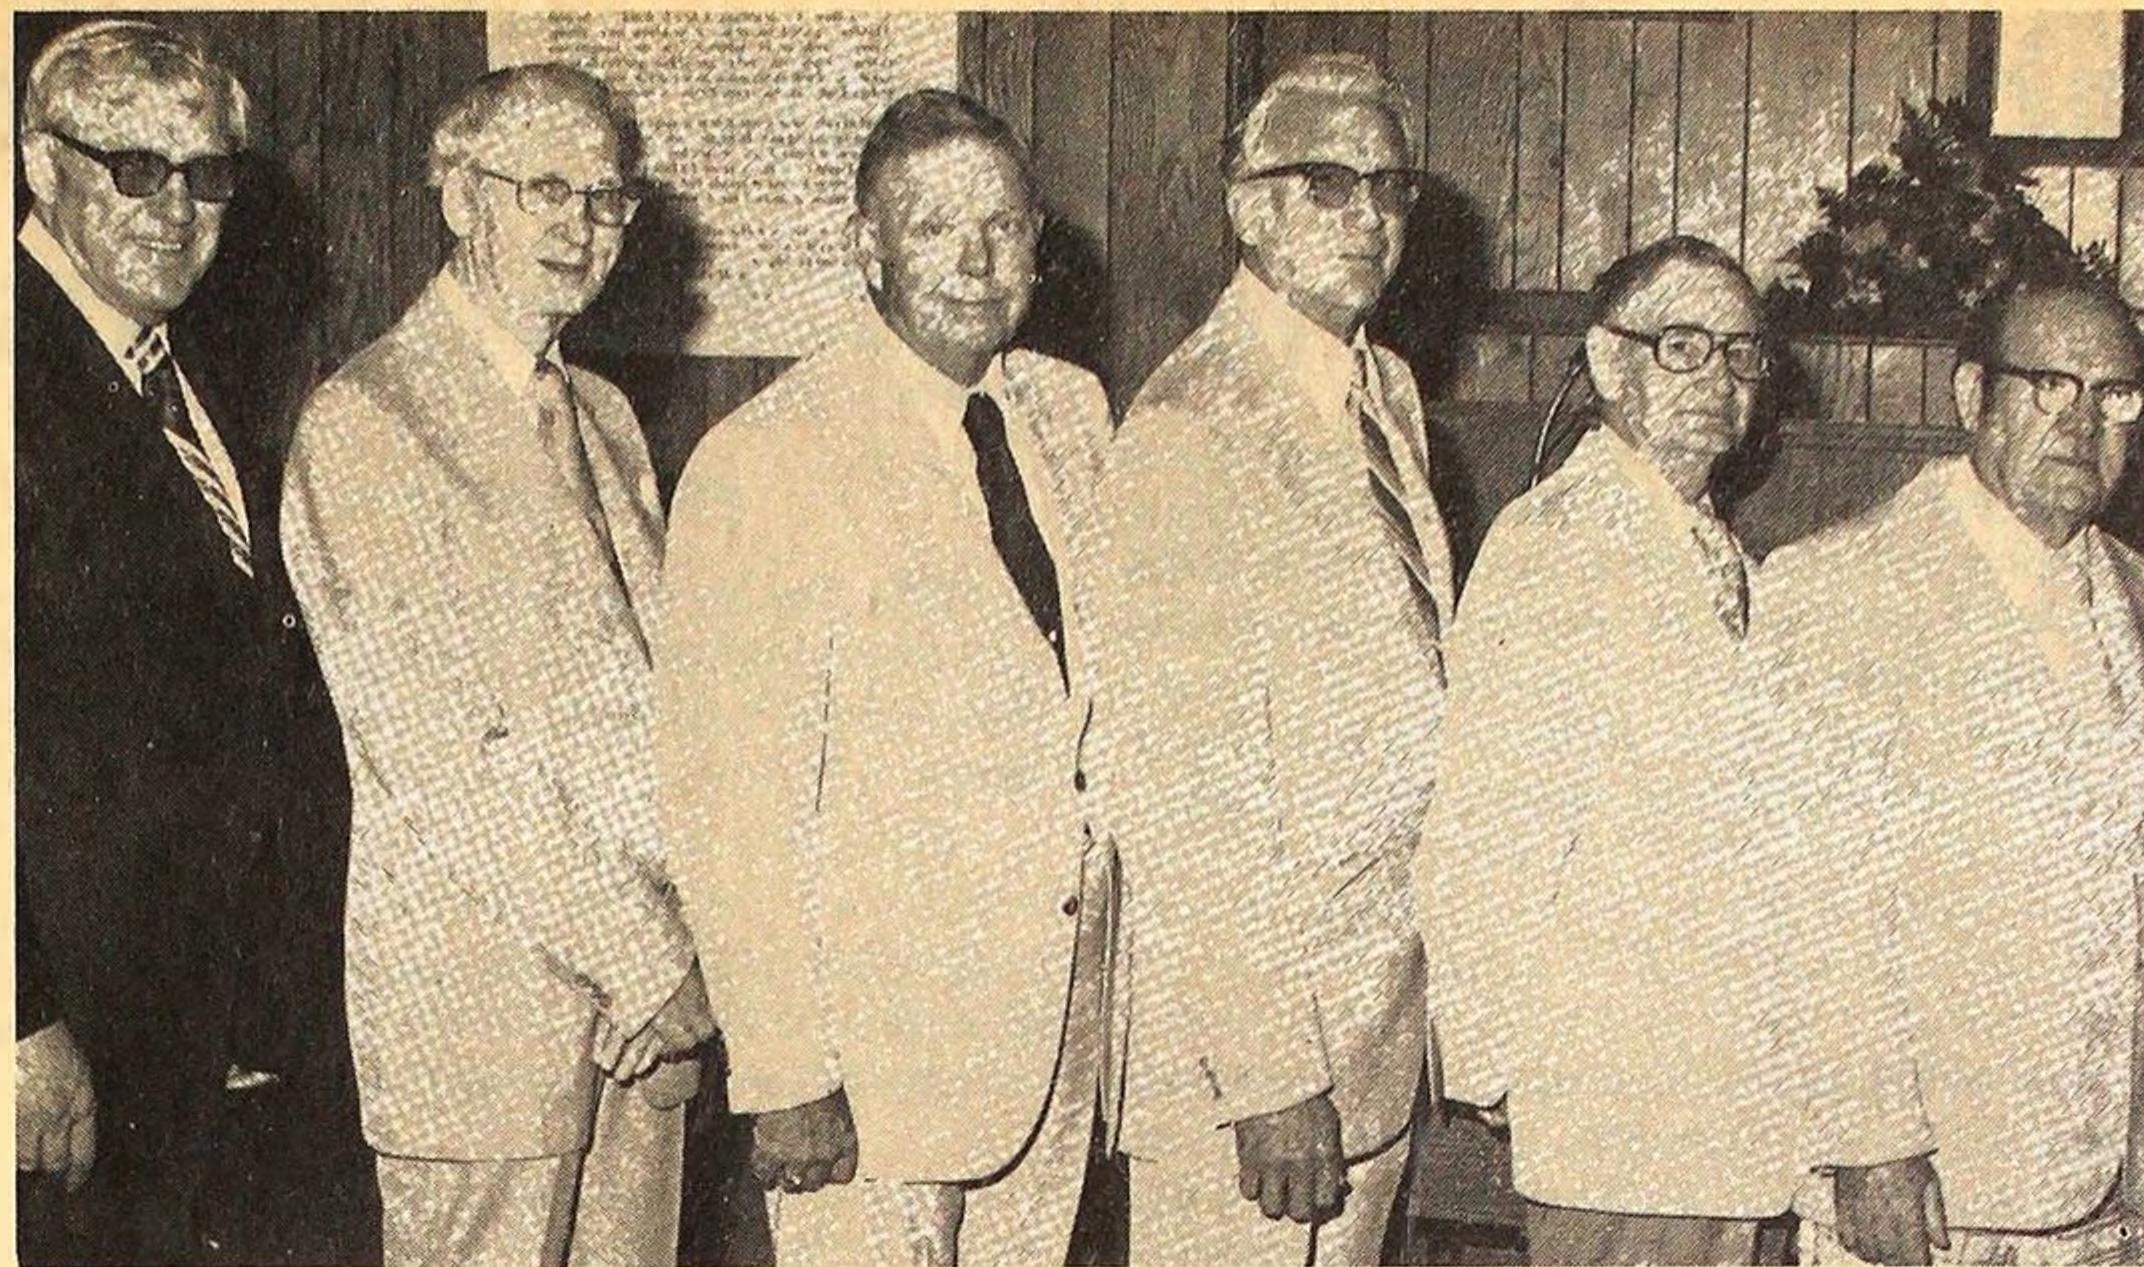

"Giving begets giving," he said. "Any time you can lead a person to a deeper commitment of himself and his possessions to the Lord, you'll find that his giving breaks out in a variety of ways. When he learns the real joy of Christian giving, he wants to do more and wants his friends to do more. This has been proven again and again." (BP)

C-N grads hear special message

Bill Bruster, pastor of Central Church of Bearden, Knoxville, told approximately 50 seniors at Carson-Newman College last week-end that they are a special entity. The 50 students received degrees in a special ceremony Aug. 18 in Gentry auditorium of the Henderson Humanities Building.

The east Tennessee pastor said that the seniors are special because of their heritage, because of God's love for them, and because of their potential. Their heritage, he pointed out, includes the support of Tennessee Baptists, the greatness of the institution they attend, and the value of Christian education.

A native of Oklahoma, Bruster held pastorates in the state and in Arkansas before coming to Tennessee. In addition to being a member of the Carson-Newman Board of Trustees, he taught church history at the school during one semester.

College President Cordell Maddox presented the degrees to the students.

Ground breaking ceremonies for a church building were held on July 18, 1976, on a 3.5 acre site. The congregation is worshipping in its new building.

Extension credits added for home study courses

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Fourteen college level courses taught in Southern Baptist Seminary Extension centers have been given identical credit recommendations extended earlier this year to the same courses offered through the Seminary Extension Department's Home Study Institute.

The expanded endorsement by the American Council on Education's Office on Educational Credit came following a careful evaluation by council officials of the academic standards for college level courses in Seminary Extension centers. The council found the Seminary Extension courses equivalent to courses of three semester hours credit at the nation's colleges and universities.

Many Seminary Extension students take some of their courses through home study and some through centers. The same study materials are used in both systems.

The ACE recommendations will be published in the 1978 edition of "The National Guide to Credit Recommendations for Non-collegiate Courses," an objective reference to which college registrars may refer when evaluating an in-coming student's transcript. The registrar then makes the final determination about how much credit toward a degree plan will be granted for each course. (BP)

Missionaries prepare refugees for departure from Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand—Teaching Asian refugee parents how to diaper their baby and outfitting whole families with clothes appropriate for the climate they will be living in—both are part of a normal week for Southern Baptist missionary Mrs. J. Glenn Morris.

Several hours each week she helps at two refugee transit centers in Bangkok where Asian refugees who have approved for resettlement in other countries wait for their departure dates. Their stay is usually seven to 10 days.

Most families brought few possessions with them when they left their homes, and often one or more members in a family will need additional clothing. Or sometimes the family is being resettled in a country which has a colder climate than the one they left. They need warmer clothes.

Often there are small babies in the group—babies who aren't used to wearing diapers. Mrs. Morris teaches the fine art of diapering to family members going to countries where babies' bottoms usually remain covered.

She also teaches Christian songs and Bible lessons to those interested. When her Mandarin Chinese fails to communicate, she can usually find a refugee at the center to translate into Vietnamese or another language the people

Senate passes own version of tuition tax credit aid

by Carol Franklin

WASHINGTON—The Senate has rejected tuition tax credits for elementary and secondary school students but has given overwhelming approval to such credits for college and postsecondary vocational education.

The Senate passed 56-41 an amendment which removed all references to elementary and secondary education from the bill. Final passage of the measure was by a vote of 65 to 27.

The bill now goes to a conference committee with the House of Representatives to resolve differences between the House and Senate versions.

The House version of the bill was passed 237-158 on June 1. That measure includes elementary and secondary students in its provisions. The amount of credits offered in the House bill are smaller, however.

The Senate version would allow parents to claim a tax credit of 50 percent of tuition for college or postsecondary vocational students up to a maximum of $250 per student. This would become effective Aug. 1 of this year. On Oct. 1, 1980, the tax credit would increase to a maximum of $500.

The House bill would allow the taxpayer to reduce federal income taxes by 25 percent of the amount spent on college tuition up to a maximum of $100 per student this year, $150 in 1979, and $250 in 1980. At the elementary and secondary level, the credit would allow 25 percent of tuition up to $50 per pupil this year and $100 in 1979 and 1980.

The Southern Baptist Convention passed a resolution opposing tuition tax credits at its annual session in Atlanta this year. The Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs, the denomination's government relations agency in Washington, has actively worked against passage of any such measure by Congress.

The Carter administration also opposes tuition tax credits. Carter has threatened to veto any such measure that comes to him. He and Health, Education, and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano are pushing expanded federal college scholarship programs for middle-income students.

Opposition to tuition tax credits has focused on the issue of the separation of church and state, the possible re-segregation of school, the high cost of the credits, and benefits to upper-income taxpayers.

Catholic and private school groups have lobbied heavily for the bill, claiming that the courts would rule tuition tax credits constitutional. (BP)

The trouble with living

By Wallace Greene

"The trouble with living," a friend of mine said the other day in a somewhat less than cheerful moment, "is that it can become so daily. The challenge and spark of work can fade into a dull routine. The privilege and blessing of being husband, father, responsible citizen, and part of the Christian community that is my church—these can sag into a set of dull, continuing demands. And I know my wife occasionally feels the same way. All the big and little matters of homemaking and housekeeping and child care and good neighborliness can sometimes lump together in a bundle of nagging pressures."

But then, while I tried to think of something more helpful than sympathetic silence, his face brightened and he said, "I couldn't make it if it weren't for God's everlasting arms supporting me, and for those particularly precious bright intervals when the Holy Spirit meets some special need or lifts me out of some acute despondency."

My friend may not have realized it, but he was saying in essence the same thing Isaiah said many centuries ago: "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint" (Isa. 40:31).

From the root meaning of the verb to wait (to wind or twist) comes the noun rope. Thus to wait on the Lord is to trust him as your lifeline or lifeline.

Further, to trust in this way is not to wait passively, but in eager expectation. Those who so trust shall renew—or, more accurately—exchange their strength in the sense of exchanging their weakness of God's unfailing power. In times of crisis or extended stress they shall soar as on eagles' wings or run without wearying. But most of the time they must plod along—from yesterday to today to tomorrow. Here they shall walk and not faint. Here is the continuing test and application of their faith.

Greene is a retired employee of the Baptist Sunday school Board and a member of Immanuel Church, Nashville, where he serves as associate teacher in the Adult IV department.

Interpretation

A word of committal

By Herschel H. Hobbs

"Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit."—Luke 23:46

Note that Jesus now addresses His "Father." He does not say "My God." The struggle is over; the victory is won. Now Jesus throws Himself into the bosom of His Father.

The verb for "commend" or commit means to place beside (see 1 Tim. 1:18; 6:20; 2 Tim. 2:2). It is used of committing something to someone for safekeeping and use as intended. Thus Paul committed the gospel to Timothy who, in turn, was to do the same to faithful men.

In 2 Timothy 1:12 Paul speaks of committing his soul to Christ. The words "that which I have committed" render two Greek words meaning "my deposit." It was used as a banking term. You commit or deposit your money to/in a bank for safekeeping, proper use, and to have it available when you call for it "against that day." Paul had deposited his soul in the bank of God's mercy to this end.

Building-destroying fire reunites split churches

VIRDEN, Ill.—A church which split over a problem involving personalities has been reunited by fire.

A few years ago, the Grace Baptist Church divided into two congregations in this 3,800 population town. The new congregation formed the Virden Southern Baptist Church and erected a building.

Then on Dec. 10, 1977, fire destroyed the Grace Baptist Church. Pastor Raymond McAfee and his members began meeting in a Nazarene Church although they had to begin Sunday School at 7:30 a.m. Rather than rebuild the burned building, the members of Grace and Virden Southern have now merged as Grace Southern Baptist Church and meet in the building occupied by the former Virden Church. It will be enlarged by insurance proceeds from the fire.

"I think this is the greatest thing that's happened to Southern Baptists in Virden," said McAfee, whom the church called as pastor. "There are times when it's just as important to consolidate and strengthen existing churches as it is to start new ones. This merger fitted into God's time slot; this was the time for it to happen." Jesus' final word from the cross. He committed His spirit to the Father's hands. This suggests that He placed on deposit with God the Father His redemptive work. It is to be safeguarded and used for its intended purpose, to save all who believe in Him as Savior.

This word was also used for filing a report. So the Son filed his final report with the Father concerning His redemptive mission. It is also used of one placing himself beside another. So when our Lord returned to the Father, He sat "down at the right hand of the throne of God" (Heb. 12:2). He is seated there now "expecting till his enemies be made his footstool" (Heb. 10:12-13).

As Jesus deposited His spirit with the Father, so are we through faith in Him to deposit our souls with the Father. When you do this, one more enemy has become His footstool.

Toward an unhindered gospel

By Paul D. Brewer
 Chairman of the Humanities Division
 Carson-Newman College, Jefferson City

Basic Passage: Acts 28

Focal Passage: Acts 28:16-17; 21-31

The focal point of chapter twenty-eight which prepares for the conclusion of the book is "when we came to Rome" (verse 16). This concluding section is carefully planned by Luke to bring the whole story of the unhindered gospel to a resounding climax.

He shows clearly that the purposes of God cannot be thwarted by the designs of men, and that Paul's arrival in Rome was no mere coincidence. The living God had declared that Paul must "bear witness also at Rome."

The God whom Paul worshipped and served presided over his life. The varied circumstances of Paul's life are used until he has become the respected prisoner, honored castaway, and one who has the respect of all. Everything is in his favor, not because of his own doing, but because God has a need for him to carry the gospel to Rome.

The path to Rome had not been straight nor easy. But through obstacles, human opposition, and storms there had been the abiding calm of a man dedicated to one Lord. After all the storms, the stress, and strain Paul looked back, saw the hand of God in it all, then "he thanked God, and took courage" (verse 15). The goal has been made clear and, even as he travelled toward it, the journey provided countless opportunities for service.

Rome at Last: Acts 28:16

The last part of Paul's journey was along the famous Appian Way. Here he was met by brethren from the church at Rome. They had walked about forty-three miles to greet him. With the strong support they offered, Paul finally reached the city. He was handed over to the official who received such prisoners and was put in light custody to await trial. He had not planned to visit Rome under the guard of a Roman soldier, but his desire to visit Rome was granted.

The Rome of Paul's day was an imperial despotism. The high days of the Republic were gone. These were the days of Nero who had usurped the power of the people. At the center of the city was the Temple to Mars. It reminded all who entered the city that Rome was built on war, conquest, and power. There were about two million people living in the city and most were either slaves or paupers. The wealth of the city belonged to a privileged few.

Preaching to the Jews: Acts 28:17-29

Paul began his ministry in Rome, as he had everywhere else in the world, by preaching first to the Jewish people. Since he was not free to go to the synagogue, he called the religious leaders to his rented house. There was a large community of Jews in Rome, and they were very active in the affairs of the city. Claudius, the emperor, had tried once to expel them (Acts 18:2), but there were so many he had failed.

The message he delivers to the leaders makes it clear that he had not been untrue to his religious heritage. He had done nothing against the people or the customs of their Fathers. He gives a brief account of his arrest and the circumstances which caused him to appeal to Caesar. He points out that the Romans had found him innocent. He had no desire to be alienated from his people.

Paul's defense proved unnecessary. The High Priest from Jerusalem could not come to Rome. He had not sent messengers from Judea. It is an understandable situation. There was not only the distance from Judea but also the very delicate relationships with the Romans which had to be taken into account.

The door was open for Paul to preach the gospel, and he set a day for the interested to assemble. All that the Jewish leaders had heard before was hostile criticism, and they were eager to hear from Paul. At the appointed time, Paul used Old Testament texts to help them understand his message. Some were convinced, but others disbelieved and the final break was evident.

Paul used a long quotation from Isaiah to show how many years before Isaiah had also been deeply distraught because the people would not take his message to heart. When he contrasted the wilfulness of the Jews with the responsiveness of the Gentiles, the interview ended. They turned away from Paul because he claimed that the Gentiles would respond. Paul is not claiming that God had predetermined their choice, but they had closed their eyes to the message. They had rejected the gospel, therefore they did not respond. Their blindness was a result of their decision not to see. Choices once made can have far-reaching consequences.

Unhindered: Acts 28:30-31

Luke ends his book with a summary statement. Paul lived in Rome for two years. It was a long time for Paul. In his eventful ministry, the only places where he spent as much time was in Antioch, Corinth, and Ephesus. Rome was a major pastorate for him. He lived at his own expense since Roman prisoners were allowed to work.

The themes of his preaching while at Rome did not change. He preached of the Kingdom of God and the Lord Jesus Christ. These doctrines were a direct answer to the kingly power of Rome and the secular Lordship of Caesar. The word Luke uses for "preaching" is one that refers to the proclamation of a herald. The word for "teaching" literally means "discipling."

He trumpeted the gospel to the city concerning the true kingdom and apprenticed all who responded to a life under the expert guidance of Jesus Christ. The last word which is translated "no man forbidding" really should be translated "unhindered" or as an adverb "unhinderedly." Paul is in prison and Nero is on the throne, but the gospel is unhindered in its spread. The gospel has defeated all efforts to hinder its spread. It continues even today—unshackled and free.

The book ends here because Luke has completed his story. The church through history must write subsequent volumes. His method throughout has been to let the curtain fall at a place we want to magnify the messenger instead of the message. He gave no information about Phillip, Barnabas, Mark, Peter, and others at points we desire to know. The message is about the unhindered gospel not the messenger. Can we learn this in the church today?

Golden Gate librarian named ATLA officer

Elected during the organization's annual meeting in Latrobe, Pa., Hamm reportedly is the first Southern Baptist seminary librarian elected to a top post since L. R. Elliott, librarian at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth, Texas, was voted president in 1947, the first year of ATLA.

Hamm will automatically become president next year of the 600-member organization, which draws its membership from the professional library staffs of theological schools. He is currently in charge of planning in the 1979 annual conference scheduled to meet in June at Bethel Theological Seminary, St. Paul, Minn.

Other officers are Elmer J. O'Brien, librarian at Lutheran Theological Seminary, Dayton, Ohio, president; Alva Caldwell, librarian at Garrett Evangelical Theological Seminary, Evanston, Ill., recording secretary; and Robert A. Olsen Jr., librarian at Brite Divinity School, Texas Christian University, Fort Worth, Texas, treasurer. David J. Wartluft, librarian at Lutheran Theological Seminary, Philadelphia, is executive secretary of the group. (BP)

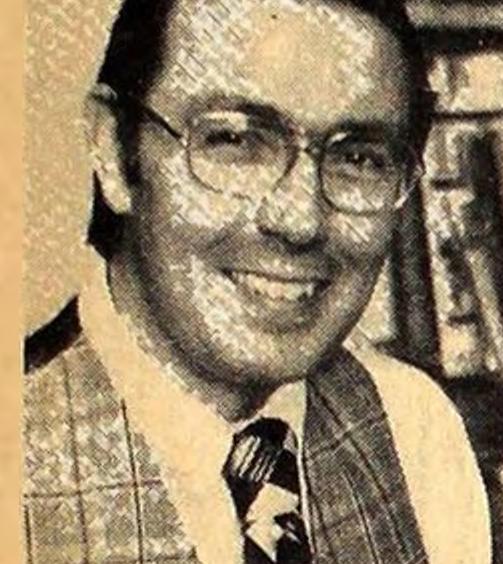

Faith for life and death

By Lee Prince, Senior Minister
Union Avenue Baptist Church, Memphis, TN

Basic Passage: Philippians 1:12-26

Focal Passage: Philippians 1:12-14, 19-26

Death is a part of life. In the still of the night, the house is quiet, I sometimes find myself awake and thinking about my death. What will it mean to me, to my family, and my friends?

Prince

Latest reports indicate the United States has more than 11,000 strategic nuclear warheads. Each warhead can destroy a major city.

As a nation we have a storehouse of death with the power of half a million bombs, each equal to the force used at Hiroshima. Alone, the USA has enough nuclear force to kill the entire population of the world 11 times. Russia may well be able to match us bomb for bomb.

For many individuals, their greatest problem is not death but life.

According to Todays Health there are more hungry people in the world today than there were people in 1875.

The pain of living is real. Lost dreams and lost opportunities cause many to give up hope. We feel like giving up. Our plans are broken. Our future looks empty.

In the British Navy when there is a disaster aboard ship, a special signal is sounded. This signal is called "the still."

"The still" is a whistle which calls the crew to a moment of silence at the time of the crisis. With the sounding of "the still," every man on the ship is to stop for a moment and consider "what is the wise thing for me to do in this situation."

Aboard ship, this moment for calm thinking has prevented possible catastrophe and foolish actions.

Paul is using this passage to call us to a time to think about the quality and direction of our life and our death.

We Control Our Attitude

We may have little control over many of the events of our life, but we do have control over our attitude.

Paul could have felt he was at the "end of the line." He had lost his freedom. He was separated from most of his friends. His future was uncertain. Or was it?

Paul had little control over the events of his life at this point, but he was in control of his attitude. He was able to see the potential of his situation.

His greatest goal was not personal freedom or individual achievement. His goal was the "progress of the gospel."

Our focus needs to be on what we can do. There're a lot of things we can't do. If we start making a list of our weak spots, we're sure to feel discouraged.

What we can't do isn't important. Everyone can do something. We can be very good doing one thing if we'll give ourselves a chance.

In life our effort is the key to progress. If we want better relationships with our family or our associates at the office, we must give our attention to the task.

We do have the power to make the decisions in our life. Even when the events of life appear to have closed off all our options, we can make the choice about our attitude.

Most of us have much more control over our life than we are willing to admit to ourselves. We control our attitude.

Doing Our Duty

When most of us pray, we ask God to help us out of a "tight spot." We want something special. We want an easy way.

Paul had a desire to do his duty. Dead or alive, he wanted to be of service to the cause of Christ.

We magnify Christ by the way we live. The sound of our action thunders down our street.

Example is the best teacher.

Enter the Winners Circle V. 21

Paul reminds us of our position as Christians. We can't lose. We are in a "win" situation.

Everyday we live in the power and purpose of Christ. Meaning is ours through Christ. We are not alone. We are in Christ, and Christ is in us.

Death? Our death! It's a doorway to a fuller relationship with Christ.

Life or death, either way, we are the child of God.

Our confidence is not in ourselves but in our God.

While crossing the Atlantic on his way to America the great preacher George Whitefield wrote in his journal: "Our allowance of water now is but a pint a day, so that we dare not eat much beef. Our sails are exceedingly thin, some more of them were split last night, and no one knows where we are; but God does, and that is sufficient."

With God we are always in the "winners circle."

Living Beyond Ourselves V. 22-24

Paul plays with the idea of his greatest satisfaction, life and duty, or death and glory.

He does not make a selfish choice. He looks beyond his individual desires to the needs of those he serves.

Paul found meaning in life by being alert to the needs of those about him.

One of the great working mysteries of life can be stated in eight words: "The more we give; the more we receive!"

In our relationships with each other, we soon learn the secret of giving. When we give our time, resources, and care to another in an open, non-manipulative association, we enter into the adventure of intimacy.

This is more than the caring of a general for his troops, more than the caring of a physician for his patient, even more than the caring of a parent for a child.

When you stop trying to get from people what they can't give you, you begin to enjoy what they can offer."

In our society, there's a heavy push toward simplicity. Even in our relationships, we find more joy and meaning when we take each other for what we are, "warts and all."

You Can Be Proud of Me V. 25-26

A recent Gallup poll reports 86% of the non-churchgoers, and 76% of the churchgoers interviewed said they felt most churches placed too much stress on church organization and gave too little attention to spiritual matters.

In our churches, our attention needs to be given to the spiritual development of individuals. An example of this need was highlighted by Glendon McCullough, executive director of the Southern Baptist Brotherhood Commission, in his address to the Bold Mission Leadership Conference in Glorieta. McCullough stressed, "We are building in vain if we build walls and roofs and neglect to build character among our children and youth."

Freed from gambling, pastor now helps others

by Jim Newton

RENO, Nev.—Five years ago, Bob Anderson walked home late one night from work as a 21 dealer at a Reno, Nev., gambling casino, too broke even to ride a bus.

He had lost almost everything he valued in life—his house, his car, his television, and most of all, his wife and son.

Like an alcoholic, he was hooked on gambling. It had destroyed his marriage, ending in divorce.

That night in 1973, Anderson walked into his tiny rented room and turned on a cheap transistor radio. A program entitled "Unshackled," produced by the Chicago Rescue Mission, was playing. Anderson listened. Then he asked himself, "If Jesus Christ could unshackle the lives of alcoholics, why couldn't he unshackle me from the chains of gambling?"

It was the beginning of a new life that has led Anderson into the ministry at Rock of the Comstock Baptist Church in Steamboat, Nev., a fast-growing suburb south of Reno. A bivocational pastor, he supports his new family by working in the warehouse of the B. F. Goodrich plant in Reno, leading a Bible study for the other men at the plant.

Whenever he meets someone caught in the vicious cycle of gambling, he is quick to share his personal testimony. He quickly learned the ways of the world when his parents abandoned him in Reno at age 14.

"I was a wild young man," he confided. "I tried everything—gambling, drinking, girls. I traveled all of the country trying to find happiness, but it always eluded me."

Because he had been rejected even by his parents, he had a bad self-image. "I thought I was no good. When I gambled and won that made me feel good. But when I lost, it made me even more depressed and I felt like a bum.

"So I would go back to the tables and try that much harder to win. It was a never ending cycle. Every time I lost, my bad self-image was intensified, and I gambled that much more," he said.

For 15 years, Anderson was a dealer at several casinos in the Reno area, gambling away 90 percent of what he earned. He got involved in drugs and finally lost everything.

Anderson made his faith decision public at the First Southern Baptist Church, Reno, where he was soon elected church training director.

Less than a year later, Anderson enrolled at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary in Mill Valley, Calif., to prepare for the ministry.

Although he had once said he never wanted to return to Nevada, Anderson realized that God could use his personal experience with gambling to help others in the same cycle. He contacted Bob Wells, the director of missions for Northern Nevada Baptist Association, who suggested the need for a new church in Steamboat.

Anderson started the Steamboat church "from scratch" on Nov. 6, 1977. Within a few months, he had baptized four people, and by May attendance was averaging 20 to 25.

At age 39, Anderson feels life is just beginning for him. "Now, I have a purpose for living—to help others like me." (BP)

Less gullible leaders needed for small kids

Early childhood educators and parents of young kids should mentally move to Missouri and demand to be shown why practices and programs involving children should be initiated or abandoned, says the dean of education at San Francisco State College. As things are, too many early childhood professionals docilely "accept as leaders people who have no track record with children," Dr. Asa G. Hilliard told a symposium sponsored by the Early Childhood Teacher Center.

Before major changes are made in teaching approaches and evaluations that affect the lives of children, "there ought to be some place where teachers and concerned parents can see new and influential theories in actual operation."

Some of the top leaders in the early childhood field are "too prescriptive," dispensing untested and unproven "medicines" for educational and developmental ills that may be misdiagnosed or not exist at all, Hilliard charged in a bitter commentary on the current preschool and primary scene.

There is not enough awareness of the degree to which personal and cultural ideologies control the way we respond to children's behavior, he stresses. Everyone dealing with children must be on guard against the tendency to view youngsters through one's own or the dominant culture's "cultural lens and cultural screens."

Even professionals tend to overlook the relative newness of the early childhood fields and the behavioral sciences in which they are rooted, and accept everchanging theories as evolved truths, Hilliard warns. Certainly, parents look to the experts as all-knowing.

In this educator's opinion, many of the more prominent professionals use Piagetian terminology in place of straight talk; mandate tests before the need for them has been established or the tests themselves tested, and, in general, advocate action even in the absence of solid information. Unless the people who work and live with real children in ordinary homes and classrooms develop a critical eye and ear and sharpen up their skepticism, "the stage is set for 'no fault' professional practice," he cautions.

New computer to aid FMB Bold Missions

RICHMOND, Va.—A new computer system scheduled to be installed January 1979 should provide the means for handling anticipated increases in work and services at the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board's home office in Richmond, Va.

"The Foreign Mission Board is keeping up with increased demands for computer processing by keeping current with new technology of the computer industry," says William K. Dawson, manager of the board's data processing department.

The present Univac system, which has been expanded to its fullest capacity, will be sold. The new system, with additional equipment added as the need arises, is expected to meet the board's needs at least through 1983 and possibly through 1988.

Besides handling current jobs faster, the new system will also provide space for additional work. Anticipated new projects for the system include cataloging and keeping track of volunteer involvement in missions, and evaluating progress on Southern Baptists' Bold Mission Thrust goals for foreign missions.
